HARRISON IS DEAD.

EX-PRESIDENT EXPIRES FROM ATTACK OF PNEUMONIA.

Fatal Illness Had Its Inception in a Cold Which Developed Into Grip,
Then Into Pneumonia—Brief Life
Story of the Famous Statesman.

Gen. Benjamin Harrison, twenty-third President of the United States, died at his home in Indianapolis at 4:30 Wednesday afternoon.

For many hours the death angel had hovered over him. Since 5 o'clock in the morning it had been barely possible to count the respirations on account of their weakness, and four hours before dissolution life had been detected only by means of the breath mist exhaled on a mirror.

There were few at the bedside, two relatives besides Mrs. Harrison and the little daughter. Mrs. Harrison knelt at the right hand side of the bed, her husband's right hand grasped in hers, while Dr. Jameson held the left hand of the dying man, counting the feeble pulse-beats. In a few moments after the friends had been summoned to the room
the end came, Dr. Jameson announcing the sad fact.

The great silence that fell on the sorrowing watchers by the bedside was broken by the voice of Dr. Haines, raised in prayer, supplicating consolation for the

EX-PRESIDENT HARRISON.

bereaved wife and family. The end came peacefully. There was no tremor. Only by the absence of the mist on the mirror
was death recognized.

The last word the former President
spoke was to his wife in reply to a question. He said nothing directly that gave the family the impression that he was dying Tuesday. The General said in a disconnected way that he was suffering
no pain, although he complained of the great difficulty in breathing. During the night at short intervals he rallied enough to be able to recognize Mrs. Harrison.
After that time, however, the General
was unconscious and unable to recognize any one.

Gen. Harrison's illness had its inception in a cold he contracted about March 1 and which developed into a serious attack of the grip. Although he placed himself under the care of a physician immediately, the ailment did not yield to treatment readily, and in a few days he was stricken with pneumonia. For a time it was impossible to learn Gen. Harrison's true condition, Mrs. Harrison having refused to allow the physicians to discuss the case. After the condition became critical, however, the doctors were authorized to keep the public informed by means of bulletins.

At 2 o'clock Tuesday morning the turn for the worse came. At that hour the pain from his afflicted lung made him
restless and he began to toss nervously upon his bed. His respiration grew faint-er, his pulse increased and the general symptoms became so alarming that for a time dissolution was expected momentar-
ly. But the patient fought it off. At 3 o'clock there seemed to be some encouragement in his condition, although his temperature was 104.4. Dr. Jameson left the house at 4 o'clock for a period of rest and returned two hours later to find Gen. Harrison more uncomfortable and losing ground with every breath. Mrs.
Harrison and Drs. Hadley and Dorsey remained in the sick room throughout the night.

The first really alarming news from the sick room came at 9 o'clock in the forenoon. An hour later Dr. Jameson announced that Gen. Harrison's condition was still worse and that he entertained
little hope of his surviving many hours.
Ten minutes after that announcement was made another bulletin came from the house stating that the alarming symptoms were increasing rapidly.

Gen. Harrison lingered apparently at the point of dissolution. Tuesday night was a long, anxious vigil to the watchers
at the bedside, and to thousands of the friends and admirers of the ex-President
all over the country. The gloom emanating from the Harrison home spread not only over Indianapolis, but over the State and nation, and the whole country listened with the deepest concern for the story of the fight against death told in the bulletins that came hourly. At the Harrison home hundreds of telegrams, telephone calls and personal inquiries and expressions of grief and sympathy were received from the immediate friends of the family and from men prominent in the affairs of the nation who were associated
at one time or another with the ex-President.

The oxygen treatment used in Gen.
Harrison's case is the same treatment
that saved Rudyard Kipling from death
from pneumonia when he was attacked
by that disease about two years ago.
While it did not bring results that were
at any time encouraging, it prolonged the fight.

NATION IN MOURNING.

President Expresses the Country's Grief at Harrison's Death.

President McKinley Thursday morning
issued a proclamation formally notifying
the people of the country of the death of their former chief magistrate and directing the observance of a period of mourning for thirty days. In pursuance of this proclamation the flags on every public building in the United States, at every army post in the United States, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines
and on every American warship in whatever quarter of the globe will fly at half mast for thirty days.

The proclamation issued by President
McKinley is as follows:

To the People of the United States:
Benjamin Harrison, President of the United States from 1889 to 1893, died yesterday
at 4:35 p. m. at his home in Indianapolis.
In his death the country has been deprived of one of its dearest citizens. A brilliant soldier in his young manhood, he gained fame and rapid advancement by his energy and valor. As a lawyer he rose to be a leader of the bar. In the Senate he at once took and retained high rank as an orator
and legislator; and in the high office of President he displayed extraordinary gifts as administrator and statesman. In public and private life he set a shining example for his countrymen.

In testimony of the respect in which his memory is held by the Government and people of the United States, I do hereby direct that the flags on the executive mansion and
the several departmental buildings be displayed at half-staff for a period of thirty days; and suitable military and naval honors, under the orders of the Secretaries of War and of the Navy, be rendered on the day of the funeral.

Done at the city of Washington, this fourteenth day of March, in the year of our Lord
one thousand nine hundred and one, and in the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and twenty-fifth.
WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

Words from Bryan.

W. J. Bryan speaks of the dead ex-
President as follows:

Gen. Harrison has always been respected by his political opponents as a clean, conscientious and able statesman. Those who differed from him could criticize his policies, but they could not attack his motives. His conduct since his retirement from office has been such as to strengthen his hold on public esteem. The death of such a man is a distinct loss to the country.

W. J. BRYAN.

Cleveland's Tribute.

The only living ex-President gives the following tribute to Benjamin Harrison:

In high public offices he was guided by patriotism and devotion to duty, often at the sacrifice of temporary popularity, and in private station his influence and example were always in the direction of decency and good citizenship. Such a career and the incidents related to it should leave a deep and useful impression upon every section of our national life.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

SOME OF HIS SAYINGS.

Interesting Collection of General Har- rison's Pungent Utterances.

Following are some of the most notable utterances attributed to Gen. Harrison:

"The first dirty errand that a dirty dollar does is to cheat the workmen."

"Let us not be a world power in any save the good old sense—that of a nation
capable of protecting in all seas the just rights of its citizens and incapable everywhere of a wanton infringement of the autonomy of other nations."

"There has been an attempt to associate the United States with this program of civilization upon the theory that the 'Anglo-Saxon' has a divine concession that covers the earth. This appeal to a divine decree is itself a concession to the Anglo-Saxon common law rule that the plaintiff in ejectment must show title."

"Is the morality of the motto, 'My country, right or wrong,' susceptible of defense? Is it not to say, 'It is right to do wrong?' For the sentiment implies action."

"A country at war is very intolerant—
the home guards more than the veterans
and the politicians most of all."

"As there were thirteen original States and Dakota will be thirty-nine, it will be so appropriate in the centennial year of the constitution to multiply the thirteen
by three and show that each grandmother
has a child by her knee."

"We must not forget that the soldier
who fights the war does not declare it.
He must not denounce it nor must any patriot denounce him."

"One dollar voted by the people of any school district for the support of common schools is worth $10 given out of the treasury of the United States."

"There are a great many people in this country who think they understand the railroad problem in every detail. I am not one of them."

"What is the distinction between an ambitious politician and a statesman?"

Leaves $250,000 Estate.

Gen. Harrison's wealth is variously estimated. Public opinion rates it as high as half a million dollars. Those who are best informed about the ex-President's affairs, however, say he was worth about $250,000 or $300,000.

SKETCH OF BENJAMIN HARRISON

His Distinguished Career as Lawyer, Soldier and Statesman.

Benjamin Harrison came of a distinguished family. His grandfather, William Henry Harrison, was ninth President of the United States, and his great-grandfather, Benjamin Harrison, was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. The family was among the first settlers of Virginia, but John Scott Harrison early in the nineteenth century moved to North Bend,
Ohio, where the late ex-President was born,
Aug. 20, 1833.

Benjamin was the second son. With his brother he was educated at College Hill
school, near Cincinnati, and at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, where he was graduated in 1852. He then studied law in Cincinnati, and was admitted to the bar in 1854.
He began the practice of his profession in Indianapolis, which had since been his home.

For a lawyer of international reputation,
who is said to have earned fees as high as $30,000, Gen. Harrison's beginning was sufficiently humble. Soon after he began to practice he was appointed clerk of the Federal court at a salary of $2,500 a year. This was, in fact, the first money he ever earned.
Opportunities followed. Jonathan W. Gordon, one of the leaders of the Indianapolis bar, called upon young Harrison to assist him in the prosecution of a criminal, tried for burglary, and gave his junior the task of making the plea for the State. Young Harrison had taken ample notes of the case,
but when he rose to speak it was night and the court house was dimly lighted, so he could not read a note. He depended on his memory and made such an eloquent and cogent speech that he won the case. Ever afterward his speeches, as a rule, were impromptu.

Mr. Harrison formed a partnership with William Wallace, which continued until 1860, when Wallace became Clerk of Marion County. The same year Mr. Harrison was chosen reporter of the Supreme Court of Indiana by a majority of 9,688. This was his entrance into the political field. When the Civil War began he assisted in raising the Seventieth Indiana Volunteers, and became a Second Lieutenant, although Governor
Morton offered him the command.

By the time the regiment got into the field
Harrison was its Colonel. The command was sent to Bowling Green, Ky., and was brigaded with the Seventy-ninth Ohio, and the One Hundred and Second, One Hundred and Fifth and One Hundred and Twenty-ninth Illinois Regiments, under Brigadier General Ward. Col. Harrison had the right of the brigade, and his command at first was occupied in guarding railroads and hunting guerrillas. He spent all the time possible in drilling his men, on the theory that every day in camp should be a preparation for the day of battle. By this discipline he made his regiment one of the best in the service.

When Gen. Ward was called to Nashville
Col. Harrison became brigade commander and his brigade became part of the third division of the Twentieth Army Corps, under
"Fighting Joe Hooker." In the engagement at Resaca, Ga., when Sherman led his forces against Gen. Johnston, Col. Harrison, who had again taken command of the Seventieth, was one of the first men to cross
the parapet in storming the enemy's works.
Every day following brought an engagement of some kind with the enemy. When the Peach Tree Creek fight was over Gen.
Hooker in a dispatch to Washington gave
Col. Harrison high praise for the efficiency of his regiment. After a furlough, and a canvass for recruits, Col. Harrison returned to Chattanooga and then to Nashville, where late in 1864 he was placed in command of a provisional brigade. When the battle of Nashville was over he was sent in pursuit of Gen. Hood. He took part in the grand army review at the close of the war, and June 1, 1865, was mustered out as brevet
brigadier general.

On returning to Indianapolis Gen. Harrison resumed the practice of the law. In the Grant campaigns of 1863 and 1872 he took an active part, stumping the State for his old commander-in-chief. In 1876 he declined
a nomination for Governor on the Republican ticket. After the regular nominee had withdrawn he consented to run, but was beaten. He was chairman of the Indiana delegation at the Republican Convention of 1880 that nominated Garfield for President.
Garfield offered him a place in his cabinet,
but he declined, preferring to be United States Senator from Indiana, a position held from 1881 to 1887.

Elected to the Presidency.

In 1888 in the Republican Convention Gen.
Harrison was nominated for the Presidency,
receiving 54 electoral votes to 113 for John Sherman and 100 for Russel A. Alger. He was elected and served one term, but was defeated in 1892 by Grover Cleveland.

During President Harrison's term as President the Behring Sea sealing controversy between England and the United States reached an acute stage. The American Government claimed that under the purchase from Russia it had not only a right to the seals on the Alaskan islands, but to exclude our own citizens and people of other nations from killing them within 100 miles of the islands. After lengthy negotiations between the two countries, the dispute was finally settled by arbitration.

President Harrison was the prime mover
in bringing the Pan-American congress which met in Washington in 1890-91
representatives of all the principal South American countries being present. This congress gave a great impetus to the reciprocity movement, which was James G.
Blaine's favorite policy for extending American trade with foreign countries.

It was during President Harrison's term that the first movement was started for a new American navy. The desire of the administration to push the construction of armored vessels with guns of great power resulted in placing on the water the new
"white squadron," which played such an important part in the Spanish war.

Since he resigned from the Presidency Gen.
Harrison took little part in politics. He resumed the practice of law and was identified with several cases of international importance. One was the Venezuelan arbitration case in Paris, for which, it is said, he received a fee of $50,000 from Venezuela.

Gen. Harrison was always a staunch Presbyterian and a Unitarian. He was on the committee that had in charge the question of revising the Westminster confession, which recently sat in Washington.

Gen. Harrison was twice married. His first wife was Miss Caroline Scott, of Oxford, Ohio, whom he married in 1853, and by whom he had a son, Russell B., and a daughter, who is now Mrs. James P. McKee.
He died in 1892 at the White House in Washington. His second wife was Mrs. Mary Lord Dimmick, who was a niece and companion of the former Mrs. Harrison. They were married April 7, 1896. One daughter, Elizabeth, was born of the union.

CATARRH THIRTY YEARS.

A Remarkable Experience of a Prominent Statesman.

CONGRESSMAN MEEKISON GIVES PERUNA A HIGH
ENDORSEMENT.

CONGRESSMAN MEEKISON, OF OHIO.

Hon. David Meekison is well known,
not only in his own State, but throughout America. He began his political career by serving four consecutive terms as Mayor of the town in which he lives, during which time he became widely known as the founder of the Meekison Bank of Napoleon, Ohio. He was elected to the Fifty-fifth Congress
by a very large majority, and is the acknowledged leader of his party in his section of the State.

Only one flaw marred the otherwise
complete success of this rising statesman. Catarrh with its insidious approach and tenacious grasp, was his only unconquered foe. For thirty years he waged unsuccessful warfare against this personal enemy. At last Per-na came to the rescue, and he dictated the following letter to Dr. Hartman as the result:

"I have used several bottles of Per-na
and feel greatly benefited thereby from my catarrh of the head. I feel encouraged to believe that if I use it a short time longer I will be able to fully eradicate the disease of thirty years'
standing. Yours truly,

"DAVID MEEKISON."

Many people can tolerate slight cartarrhal affections. A little hoarseness,
a slight cough, a cold in the head, or a trifling derangement of the digestive organs, do not much disturb the average person in his business. But this is not true of the public speaker or stage artist. His voice must always be clear,

lungs perfect, digestion undisturbed.
Hence the popularity of Per-na
among the leading actors and actresses
of this country.

They have come to regard Per-na as indispensable to their success. Their profession is so exacting that it requires perfect
health in every particular. They regard Per-na as
their friend and safeguard. Many

letters are received
from this class of people. Miss Carrie Thomas, in speaking of Per-na, says: "I have used Perna with splendid results. Would not be without it. No money would hire me to have a settled cold or chronic cough, or hoarseness. Catarrh is the most dreadful thing that could happen to one of my profession. Per-na is my shield and protector against this most undesirable disease."—Carrie Thomas.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Perna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Rather a Late Payment.

Richard Brinsley Sheridan was continually in debt—continually being dun-ned for sums loaned him. From a person of recent acquaintance he had borrowed quite a sum. Meeting a short time afterward, Sheridan remarked:
"Well, as I live, I owe you money.
When shall I pay you back?"

"Oh, any time you set," answered the acquaintance.

"Well! well! any time? Let's say judgment day," answered Sheridan.
Then after a pause, he added: "Judgment day will be such a busy day! let's make it the day after."

It is needless to remark the money
has not been paid.

His Description.

"Papa," said Sammy Snaggs, "a man came to see you while you were away."

"Did he leave his name?"

"No, papa."

"What sort of a man was he? Did he wear a beard?"

"No, he was a bald-faced man."—

What Do the Children Drink?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like
the choice grades of coffee, but costs about 1/4 as much. All grocers sell it.

FARMING IN WESTERN CANADA.

The Great Natural Fertility of the Soil in Manitoba, Assiniboia, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

What Has Been Done by Premier Greenway, Himself a Leading Farmer.

Hon. Thomas Greenway, Premier of the Province of Manitoba, one of the foremost farmers of Western Canada, writes an excellent article to the press, from which the following extracts are made:

The writer came to Manitoba from Ontario in the autumn of 1878, and has ever since been engaged in agricultural pursuits. From the day, nearly twenty-two years ago, when he selected his homestead, he has had unbounded faith in the country as a place where farming can be successfully carried on, if pursued upon proper lines. There is a large number in this province who should rather be called "wheat growers" than farmers. On account of the facilities, natural advantages, and therefore cheapness with which wheat can be grown, no doubt many have done exceedingly well by raising wheat only; still, it is far from ideal farming. Not only will such a course, if persisted in, have the effect of causing the land to run out, as has been the experience of those who pursued the same plan in the wheat-producing prairie States to the south of us, but it is far from being the most profitable course to adopt.

This fact is already being demonstrated in Manitoba. Let the farms in this Western country be managed upon the lines which were successful in the Eastern provinces, and much more can be done here in a given time than was ever done in the East. The probabilities of failure are practically nil. Upon the farm there should be found horses, cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry, according to the ability of the farmer—with respect to his means and the extent of his holding. The wanton waste which has hitherto been practiced by many farmers, that of burning vast quantities of excellent fodder after threshing is done, should cease; it should all be used upon the farm and converted into the old, sensible kind of fertilizer manure, and afterwards be returned to the soil, so that what has been taken from it by the crop may be restored. Although admitting that the great natural fertility of the soil in Manitoba and the success that has attended the growing of wheat after wheat for years upon the same land have a tendency to make such a course as the one mentioned tempting, yet, if continued, wheat growing upon the same land year after year is undoubtedly a mistake.

The writer knows of no country that offers advantages so great to the agriculturist as does Manitoba. The various branches of farming can be carried on successfully, as twenty-two years of practical operations and observations of what others are doing have proven. To those desiring to make new homes for themselves, the low price of some of the best lands in the world (although rapidly advancing in price this year) offer still great opportunities. To all such the invitation is cordially given to "come and see." There need be no poor people here. There is land for all who choose to come, land upon which happy homes can be established, and from which ample resources can be gathered against old age. All that a man needs to achieve competence in this domain is common sense and industry. With these qualifications he is bound to succeed.

Particulars of these lands, and how to obtain them, may be had on application to any agent of the Dominion Government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere.

ALARMING MORTALITY

Noticeable Among the Weak and Ailing.

Spring the Time Death Reaps Its Largest Harvest.

There Is a Way of Eluding the Grim Destroyer.

Every Spring it is noticeable how many people are taken away that we have been accustomed to see in our daily life.

Statistics show that at no other season of the year does so many deaths occur.

Especially large is the mortality among weak and sickly people.

The reason for this is apparent. The body that is weakened by age or disease has much to contend with during the Winter months. Insufficient exercise frequently has been taken. Too much starchy and fatty foods have been eaten. The system has been allowed to become run down, and when Spring comes with its bright, sunny days, older people will begin to realize that their vitality has become very low. The same thing is true of people who are naturally sickly and weak.

This is the season of the year when even a strong person feels at his worst. That tired, restless feeling is experienced by too many.

There need not be as many deaths this year as usually take place. A little care will ward off many Spring funerals. If one is weak or ailing they should take time by the forelock and take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. This great medicine has been in many cases, and will continue to be, the means by which the black angel of Death has been driven from the threshold. It dispels the grim destroyer in a scientific way, for it purifies the blood and gives strength and vitality to the nerves. It tones up and restores to a healthy condition all of the great life-giving organs of the body.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy will enable those who take it to throw off little ills that prove dangerous only when they attack a system already wasted and weakened.

From many people, who have experienced benefit from this greatest of all life-lengtheners, comes the following from the famous General Longstreet, of 1217 New Hampshire Ave., Washington, D. C. He says: "It gives me great pleasure to add my testimony with many others for Dr. Greene's Remedy, which I have used with highly beneficial results, and I am able to recommend its virtues from experience. I have used it for catarrh and have derived help."

Mr. Wellington Hayes, Elizabethtown, N. Y., writes:

"I feel it my duty to tell how much good Dr. Greene's Nervura has done me. I was so run down that I could not sleep at night and everything worried me. I had no appetite and could not work, my head ached all the time and there was an all-gone feeling in my stomach, and I was always looking on the dark side of everything. I began to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and in less than three weeks I felt like a new man. I can now do as much work as is expected of a man my age. I advise anyone who is troubled to take Dr. Greene's Nervura. Do not go to a doctor, but get a bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura. It is cheaper than a doctor's bill."

The latter part of Mr. Hynes' advice might be profitably disregarded, however, if you should feel you would like the advice of a physician. You can have such advice and have it free if you will write or call on the greatest known blood and nerve specialist, Dr. Greene, 35 W. 14th St., New York City.

Much Too Difficult.

The smart, clean, well-dressed boy gazed longingly at the gutter urchins with their damp bundles of newspapers and matches. Their activity and independence had an unspeakable charm for him, and, after a severe inward struggle, he left his doorway and sought one of the muddy little news-agents.

"Do you think," he asked, "that I should be able to earn money as you do if I bought some papers and came to this corner to sell them?"

"What does the likes o' you want sell in' papers?"

"I'm tired of being idle at home."

"Well," said the newsboy, seriously, "d'yer think you can 'old a quire o' papers in one 'and, race like Persimmon, lick three or four boys bigger'n yourself with one hand, while yer keeps two more orf with yer feet, while yer takes a toff's hapenny, an' yells 'Football!' all the time?"

"No-o, I don't," replied the well-dressed little boy.

So the cards were dealt.

"Why, I pass, of course," answered the second Ass, throwing down his cards and pushing the Other to the Rocks below.

MADAME BAVEAS TESTIFIES.

A Distinguished Lady, After Traveling for Six Years in Search of Health, at Last Finds It in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 18.—(Special.)—This popular resort numbers among its patrons many of the world's most distinguished men and women, but none more so than Madam Isabelle Ellen Baveas, Life Governor of the Free Masons Grand Lodge of England.

Madam Baveas, like most of the other visitors, came here in search of health. She was not disappointed, but her cure was not found in the virtue of the baths, but in a few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, a remedy which she found on sale here, and which is being used and with wonderful success by a number of the visitors to Hot Springs. She says:—

"I traveled almost constantly for the past six years in the interests of my society, and my health gradually became broken down, through the change of food, water, climate, etc. The doctors told me I had diabetes, and advised me to go to the Springs, as they could do nothing for me. While there my attention was called to Dodd's Kidney Pills by a fellow sufferer, who had been greatly benefited by using them."

"I profited by her experience and bought a box, and then another, and so on until I had used seven boxes. It is with gratitude that I state that they cured me completely, and I am now able to take up the duties of life once more. I am very thankful for what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for me and as a grateful woman shall never hesitate to recommend them to anyone suffering with Diabetes."

The very satisfactory experience of this distinguished woman, should be an encouragement to all similar sufferers. Dodd's Kidney Pills are 50c a box, six boxes for $2.50. Buy them from your local druggist if you can. If he cannot supply you, send to the Dodd's Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

HELP FOR WOMEN

WHO ARE ALWAYS TIRED.

"I do not feel very well, I am so tired all the time. I do not know what is the matter with me."

You hear these words every day; as often as you meet your friends just as often are these words repeated. More than likely you speak the same significant words yourself, and no doubt you do feel far from well most of the time.

Mrs. Ella Rice, of Chelsea, Wis., whose portrait we publish, writes that she suffered for two years with bearing-down pains, headache, backache, and had all kinds of miserable feelings, all of which was caused by falling and inflammation of the womb, and after doctoring with physicians and numerous medicines she was entirely cured by

MRS. ELLA RICE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you are troubled with pains, fainting spells, depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere, headache, backache, and always tired, please remember that there is an absolute remedy which will relieve you of your suffering as it did Mrs. Rice. Proof is monumental that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the greatest medicine for suffering women. No other medicine has made the cures that it has, and no other woman has helped so many women by direct advice as has Mrs. Pinkham; her experience is greater than that of any living person. If you are sick, write and get her advice; her address is Lynn, Mass.

CONSTIPATED OLD AGE

Means misery on the eve of life. Nine out of ten old people are constipated because the muscles of their intestines have become weak, worn out and flabby. Constipation is the curse of old age, causes bile and acid poisons to remain in the blood, making the skin yellow and wrinkled, the eyes bleary and causing the "bones to ache." Keep the bowels strong, healthy and regular and old age loses all its terrors and weaknesses. No reason why grandpa and grandma shouldn't have bright eyes, and clear, ruddy skin and feel lively and active, if they will only keep their bowels open and vigorous with CASCARETS CANDY CATHARTIC, the greatest bowel tonic ever heard of. Try them to-day—a 50c box—a whole month's treatment—and find that the tortures of constipated old age are

SAVES MANY LIVES.

A QUICK-WITTED CONDUCTOR PREVENTS A DISASTER.

Engineer Not Responding to Signals, Harry Purple Sets Air Brakes and Stops His Train—Two Men Narrowly Escape Death in Fire at Cleveland.

By his presence of mind Conductor Harry Purple saved from death or severe injury the 300 passengers on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad train which was wrecked at Portland, Pa. The engineer, Lyman Chase, had died in his cab with the throttle wide open and the train rushing on at seventy-five miles an hour. As the train approached Portland Conductor Purple knew that speed should be slackened to make the siding. As it did not he signalled the engineer. Receiving no response, he again signalled the engine. Again no blast of the whistle. Fearing something was wrong he rushed to the rear car to the valve of the safety brake. Just then he heard the flying locomotive jump the track at the Portland switch. Instantly Conductor Purple opened the valve, setting the air brakes along the entire train. Even with this powerful check the momentum was so great that the train ran more than 500 yards when the engine was overturned and the train stopped short. Conductor Purple ran to the locomotive to see what had happened and found Engineer Chase in his cab dead from heart disease.

$300,000 FIRE IN ST. LOUIS.

Sparks from Locomotive Start Blaze in Manufacturing District.

Flames fanned by a gale swept along the river front in the heart of a brewery and manufacturing district in St. Louis from the Anheuser-Busch icehouses, and at one time an area of about six blocks was a sea of flame and smoke. The loss will reach about $300,000. Eight residences, the Anheuser-Busch icehouses, the American Car and Foundry Company's repair plant, the Studebaker and vinegar plant, 175 cars of coal, 100 cars and miscellaneous property were destroyed. Men, boys and horses at work in the flame-swept district stampeded. Many of the horses were burned to death, but only four persons are known to have been injured. The fire at the American Car and Foundry Company's plant cut off the retreat of workmen from the upper stories of the building, forcing some to jump for their lives. The fire is supposed to have originated from a spark from a passing locomotive.

HEMMED IN BY FIRE.

Victor Ernst and R. C. Nickey Narrowly Escape Death.

Victor Ernst and R. C. Nickey, employees at the National carbon works, Cleveland, narrowly escaped being roasted alive in a fire at the company's plant. A terrific explosion of chemicals on the second floor practically ruined the large building and penned the men in the engine room. They were soon missed by their companions, who had escaped, and while some of them were fighting the flames others dug the prisoners out. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Completes Sale of 21,000,000 Acres.

The sale of 21,000,000 acres of land by the Northern Pacific Railroad lying west of the Missouri river for $40,000,000 is reported to have been consummated. The purchasers of this land are said to be Eastern capitalists who have perfected a syndicate and who will encourage its settlement and cultivation by Eastern farmers.

Lynching Is Frustrated.

Three hundred coal miners of West Pineville formed to lynch Deputy Sheriff Frank McCoy of Middlesboro, Ky., who killed Vance Howard, cousin of Berry Howard, the Goebel suspect, who is under indictment. The miners learned that a strong guard was around the jail and disbanded.

Snell Case May Be Solved.

Frank McPherson, a Cuyahoga County convict, caused a sensation when he told the board of prison managers at Columbus, Ohio, that if he was given his freedom he would solve the mystery surrounding the celebrated Snell murder case of Chicago.

Death on Big Liner.

The American liner New York had its port shaft broken and reported the explosion of an ammonia tank at sea, as a result of which a steward and a steerage passenger died and a score or more of steerage passengers were overcome.

Diphtheria Among Indians.

Agent Sneed of the Flathead reservation says that the Kootenai Indians at Dayton Creek, Mont., are in a fair way to die off rapidly with diphtheria. Seven have died in one week and many are sick with the disease.

Ex-President Harrison's Funeral.

Fifteen thousand persons attended the funeral and burial services of Gen. Benjamin Harrison at Indianapolis. Deeply impressive scenes at the church and cemetery showed the esteem in which he was held.

Congressman Brosius Dead.

Congressman Marriott Brosius died at his home in Lancaster, Pa. He had suffered a stroke of apoplexy.

DIAZ INSANE AND DYING.

Mexican Chief Executive a Mental Wreck from Overwork.

A dispatch from Cuernavaca, Mexico, says that President Diaz is fast nearing his death. He lies prostrate, hopelessly insane, wildly delirious, a wreck, awaiting the final summons. His decay is wholly mental. He has worked too hard, with but few vacations. He is simply paying the penalty of an overtaxed brain and body.

Coupled with this is the attempt made upon his life four years ago in the capitol by a drunken tailor named Arroyo, who was the tool of a prominent official who coveted the presidency. This incident, with the dramatic sequence of events that followed it, has preyed upon the president's mind ever since, and lately he has desired to get away from the country. It took all the influence of his friends to get him to stand for re-election last year. The greatest ruler Mexico has ever known is dying, hopelessly insane.

The family of President Diaz and his most intimate friends have been almost constantly with him for the last month, and a well-known specialist from the United States was brought about a week ago. He stayed but two days, when he returned, saying he could do nothing for the patient, as he was, in his opinion, beyond human help.

According to law Ignacio Mariscal, vice-president, would succeed in the case of the sudden death or incapacity of the president. With Diaz's death, it is feared, the peace of Mexico will be in jeopardy.

Few-Line Interviews.

William A. Pinkerton, Head of the Pinkerton Detective Agency—Crime runs in a groove. One crime, if it be a great one, will be followed by another one similar to it. You can bet your last cent on this theory. It will work out every time. Small crimes do not have that effect, but large ones invariably do. The human mind seems to be constructed on that plan. Crime, although horrible in the extreme, seems to possess a peculiar, unexplainable fascination about it. It is contagious, and is catching. The Cuddey kidnapping was a pronounced success. It was so bold, daring and successful that I knew a series of others were bound to follow. They have. We have had an epidemic of them.

John Barrett, former United States Minister to Siam—Japan to-day threatens to dominate the Pacific as England does the Atlantic. She is building a fleet which in proportion to her size is equal to England's. She has the best organized army on earth to-day. She has an extensive consular service—for instance, over 119 consuls in Australia alone, against our six. She is fostering her merchant marine in a way no other nation is doing. To-day she is suffering from a temporary depression, but it is due to temporary conditions. She is planning to dominate the Pacific, and with all our tremendous strength we may some day be rudely surprised to find ourselves overmatched in the Pacific.

Gustav Frellson, Agent of the Milwaukee, Wis., Associated Charities—I not only believe in the public whipping post, but I'll volunteer to do the whipping myself without pay. A man who beats his wife ought to be whipped, but the whipping should be done systematically. I've got a good stout right arm, and I'll promise the judge that the full extent of the stripes he orders shall be administered. I'd like nothing better than a chance to whip some of the men whose wives come to me day after day telling the same pitiful story of hard work on their part, cruelty on their husbands' sides and in the end abandonment.

George Pearce of Cripple Creek, Colo.—There's an old story about far off cattle having long horns and another about distant fields looking green. That's the way I felt about Honolulu before I went there, four months ago. Colorado is good enough for me now. Of course, Honolulu is a great place, for those who like it, but a man must be cut out, I think, for life in that kind of a country before he can be satisfied to live there. Business and social conditions are so entirely different from what we find them at home that a man has to readjust his whole mode of living and thinking to get in touch with the people.

James L. Jackson of Palatka, Fla.—Strawberries will be plentiful this year. Berry conditions have advanced sufficiently to indicate that the coming crop will be much heavier than last season. You may remember that the crop of 1899 was enormous all through the South, and that last year's was poor. This year the plants are maturing earlier, and if the present indications are upheld by results the prices will be low.

BURIAL OF HARRISON

BODY OF FORMER PRESIDENT LAID IN THE TOMB.

Interment Takes Place at Crown Hill, Indianapolis—Simplicity Marks the Ceremonies at the House and the Church—Services Are Brief.

In the center of a hollow square composed of fully 15,000 of his fellow-citizens the remains of Benjamin Harrison were Sunday afternoon interred in the family lot in Crown Hill cemetery, Indianapolis. Close by the grave were the members of his family, President McKinley and other visitors of distinction, and the more intimate friends of Gen. Harrison. Back a distance of fifty yards, behind ropes guarded zealously by a large force of police, stood, with uncovered head, the great multitude who knew the former President not so well as did they who stood beside the freshly upturned earth, but who honored him and admired him fully as much.

It is doubtful if any public man, at least in this generation, was borne to his last resting place among so many manifestations of respect. The tribute of respect was universal. It came from all alike, from those of his own political faith and from those who differed with him concerning what is best for the nation's good, from men who had been his lifelong friends, and from those who knew him merely by sight and to whom he never spoke. It came from women and children, from white and black, from all conditions and kinds of people. There was no exception anywhere to the expression that the nation had lost one of its ablest men and the greatest man of his generation in his own State.

President Beside the Grave.

By the grave stood the chief magistrate of the nation, and behind the ropes were all the street Arabs of Gen. Harrison's city. Every grade of human life in America between the two was represented in the crowd, and in them all there was only the one feeling—that a man had died who was honest at all times with himself and with others, and whose ability and character were such as the nation could ill afford to lose.

At the Harrison home before the remains were taken to the First Presbyterian Church, where the full service was held, there were brief exercises for the members of the family and more immediate friends of Gen. Harrison. Possibly 150 persons were present. Mrs. Harrison remained in her room until time to leave for the church.

Services for the Dead.

Shortly after 2 o'clock the funeral party appeared at the church, and the honorary and actual pall-bearers came slowly up the north center aisle, filing into the seats at the side. The ushers, forming in column near the door, came up the south aisle, acting as an escort to the President, who was accompanied by Mrs. Durbin, Gov. Durbin and Secretary Cortelyou filled up the pew with the President and Mrs. Durbin.

Immediately in front of the casket and behind the pall-bearers came the Rev. M. L. Haines and the Rev. Samuel J. Nicolls of St. Louis. Immediately following the casket were Lieutenant Commander Parker and Mrs. Harrison. They occupied the second seat from the front, to the left of the north center aisle, corresponding to that of the President on the south side. With them were Frank Tibbett, Gen. Harrison's private secretary, and Mrs. Parker. Following these were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McKee and Mrs. Eaton, John Scott Harrison and Carter B. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Newcomer, Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Morris and other relatives and close friends of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. McKee and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harrison occupied the pew directly in rear of that in which Mrs. Harrison sat. Behind the pew occupied by the President were Senator and Mrs. Fairbank, Senator Beveridge, Gov. Nash and party of Ohio, Gov. Yates and party of Illinois, Congressmen Watson, Cromer, Overstreet, Steele, Crumpacker and many other distinguished men.

When all had taken their seats Mr. Haines advanced to the center of the pulpit platform and, resting his left hand upon the large church Bible, opened the service by saying:

"I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live, and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die."

After the address Dr. Nicolls offered prayer. The services were closed with a baritone solo, "Hark, Hark, My Soul," by Edward Nell, in which the entire choir joined in the chorus. The party left the church in the same order in which it entered. For the most part those who attended the church services left immediately for Crown Hill cemetery.

The burial service was simple and brief. The Rev. Mr. Nicolls read the short committal and burial service, and the Rev. Mr. Haines followed with prayer. When the last word had been said and the service was over, the attendants lowered the coffin to its place. To the last it bore the wreath from Mrs. Harrison and the bouquet of lilies of the valley from little Elizabeth. On the coffin was placed a heavy walnut protecting cover, and then the granite roof of the tomb was lowered and closed.

The Harrison Tomb.

The last resting place of former President Harrison is a tomb five feet deep, incased in granite four inches thick, and covered with a granite top of the same thickness. On the reverse side of the cover is the simple inscription, "Benjamin Harrison, 1833-1901." The interior of the tomb was decorated with ferns so profusely that no sign of earth or stone was visible. Dozens of exquisitely beautiful floral tributes were placed on the tomb and on the ground close by.

ITCHING Burning Scaly HUMORS Complete External and Internal Treatment CUTICURA THE SET $1.25

Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle, CUTICURA OINTMENT to instantly allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT to cool and cleanse the blood, and expel humor germs. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring skin, scalp, and blood humors, rashes, itchings, and irritations, with loss of hair, when the best physicians, and all other remedies fail.

WONDERFUL CURE OF PSORIASIS.

As a sufferer for thirty years from the worst form of Psoriasis, finally cured by Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, I wish to tell you my experience, that others may benefit by it. I was so grievously afflicted that the matter that exuded from my pores after the scales had peeled off, would cause my underclothing to actually gum to my body. After remaining in one position, sitting or lying down, for an hour or two, the flesh on my elbows and knees would split, so thick and hard would the crusty scales become. The humiliation I experienced, to say nothing of physical agony, was something frightful. The detached scales would fairly rain from my coat sleeves. I have read none of your testimonials that appear to represent a case so bad as mine. But as to the cure. I commenced bathing in hot Cuticura Soap suds night and morning, applied the Cuticura Ointment, and then wrapped myself in a sheet. In two weeks my skin was almost blood red in color, but smooth and without scales. Patches of natural colored skin began to appear, and in less than a month I was cured. I am now passed forty years of age and have skin as soft and smooth as a baby's. Hoping that others may benefit by my experience, and regretting that sensitiveness forbids me from disclosing my name, I am yours gratefully,
J. H. M., Boston, Mass., Sept. 30, 1900.

Millions of People Use Cuticura Soap

Assisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and healing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Millions of Women use CUTICURA SOAP in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and excoriations, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, and especially mothers. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients, and the most refreshing of flower odors. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others, especially for preserving and purifying the skin, scalp, and hair of infants and children. No other medicated soap is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, the BEST skin and complexion soap, and the BEST toilet and baby soap in the world. Sold by all druggists.

Like Oliver Twist, children ask for more when given One Minute Cough Cure. Mothers endorse it highly for croup. It quickly cures all coughs and colds and every throat and lung trouble. Counterfeits of DeWitt's Hazel Salve are liable to cause blood poisoning. Leave them alone. The original has the name DeWitt's upon the box and wrapper. It is a harmless and healing salve for skin diseases. Unequalled for piles. T. E. Slattery.

Dr. Wiseman and ye editor visited Monterey Monday. They also visited Samuel Allen's farm west of the village and found Mr. Allan comfortably situated upon a fine farm, with splendid buildings, lots of stock, consisting of hogs and cattle. In fact he is counted a model farmer of Pulaski county.

We had no idea that our little criticism of "Mr. Col. Wm. Jennings Bryan's" "Commoner" would raise the ire of the sage of the Plymouth Democrat to such an extent, or perhaps we would have stated that "Mr. Bryan" is an angel and all that he lacked was wings. But great minds will differ, hence after carefully reading the Commoner, we came to the conclusion that in some instances the colonel was off his base, and made some queer assertions for a man who poses as the leader of seven million voters. For instance: a man that will declare that this country is fast approaching an empire, and many other like assertions, must not be acquainted with the principles that actuates the American people, or he wilfully misrepresents. We candidly admit that "Mr. Bryan" is far above the average in point of intelligence, but it must be conceded that there are others in the democratic ranks that are his equals as statesmen, and others that stand head and shoulders above him as eminent scholars. We have no kick to register against "Mr. Bryan," but a right to say that we were not particularly enraptured over the appearance of the Commoner or its contents. We fully understand that Uncle Daniel would like to pre-empt our democratic friends against us but he cannot do it, as there is a general acknowledgement that the HERALD editor has been fair in his treatment of our local democracy, hence it has no kick coming. We realize that Uncle Daniel is a "red-hot" expounder of Bryanism, but that does not signify that we are compelled to fall down and worship his "earthly god."

The Cheapest Fence Made.

One of the cheapest and most durable fences ever constructed for farm purposes, is being built on Mr. Wm. Overman's farm, two miles northeast of Culver. Mr. John Berry, who is well known here, is doing the work, and is a No. 1 at the business. He has built hundreds of rods of this class of fence in all parts of the country, and it has given perfect satisfaction in every case. He can make a five or six rail fence out of old rails, which will turn any kind of stock, at a nominal cost of 15 cents per rod. Here is a chance to get a cheap and durable fence. For information call on Wm. Overman, opposite Vandalia depot, Culver, Ind.

Farmers' Institute.

A large number of farmers of Union township met at Culver and organized a farmers' institute Saturday. Jacob Myers was elected president, and C. W. Newman secretary. Moved and carried that L. C. Zechiel, C. Dillon, J. L. Mosher and M. Lowery act as a committee on program.

Moved and carried that one day's meeting be held, and have two sessions.

A more extended report of the proceedings of the institute will appear in the HERALD later.

A Good Cough Medicine for Children.

"I have no hesitancy in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says F. P. Moran, a well-known and popular baker, of Petersburg, Va. We have given it to our children when troubled with bad coughs, also whooping cough, and it has always given perfect satisfaction. It was recommended to me by a druggist as the best cough medicine for children as it contained no opium or other harmful drug." Sold by T. E. Slattery.

A Narrow Escape.

A young lady living in this city had a narrow escape from being burned to death Tuesday. She attempted to lift a kettle from the stove when in some manner her apron came in contact with the flames, in an instant was in a blaze. The young lady was fairly paralyzed with fear, but with rare presence of mind seized the burning garment and rolling it tightly in her skirts, smothered out the fire. Had she ran out doors she would have undoubtedly burned to death as the wind would have fanned the flames which would in a short time enveloped her whole person. Truly it was a lucky escape.

Twice Proven

From the Vindicator, Rutherfordton, N. C. The editor of the Vindicator has had occasion to test Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice with the most remarkable results in each case. First, with rheumatism in the shoulder from which he suffered excruciating pain for ten days which was relieved by two applications of Pain Balm, rubbing the parts afflicted and realizing instant benefit and entire relief in a very short time. Second, in rheumatism in thigh joint, almost prostrating him with severe pain, which was relieved by two applications, rubbing with the liniment on retiring at night, and getting up free from pain. For sale by T. E. Slattery.

Card of Thanks.

The undersigned hereby wishes to tender their sincere thanks to those kind friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted during the illness, death and burial of our darling baby, and hoping that they may also find the same sympathetic friends in times of great affliction.

Pale Women!

A bloodless face indicates trouble.
Watery blood a menace to health.
We know how pale people can get rich blood.
Come let us tell you about VINOL.

When blood is watery and thin, or, as doctors would say, lacks red blood corpuscles, it is a sign that much is radically wrong. We would advise everyone who has such symptoms to start at once to take a proper remedy to overcome this trouble. That remedy is VINOL, the greatest and most modern tonic and re-builder. VINOL owes its virtues to the fact that it contains in a highly concentrated state the active principles extracted from Cod's Livers, the same elements that have made Cod Liver Oil famous for wasting diseases. Because we know so well and because we know so surely what it will do, and how it will accomplish the good it does in a scientific way, we unreservedly endorse and recommend it, and in every instance guarantee to refund to anyone what they pay us for VINOL if they do not find it entirely satisfactory.

AT SEA.

O, we go down to sea in ships—
But Love remains behind,
And Love, with laughter on his lips,
And Peace of passive mind;
While out across the deeps of night,
With lifted sails of prayer,
We voyage off in quest of light,
Nor find it anywhere.
O, Thou, who wroughtest earth and sea,
Yet keepest from our eyes
The shores of an eternity
In calms of Paradise,
Blow back upon our foolish quest
With all the driving rain,
Of blinding tears and wild unrest,
And wait us home again.
—James Whitcomb Riley.

Sandvig and St. Xavier.

BY FRANKLIN WELLES CALKINS.

When Hercules Dousman was chief factor for the Astor Company at Prairie du Chien, he used frequently to tell the story of Sandvig and St. Xavier, who were perhaps as oddly assorted a pair of friends and partners as ever got together.

They were trappers. Ole Sandvig was a flaxen-haired Norse giant, who stood six feet four in his moccasins, weighed over two hundred pounds, and had not an ounce of flesh to spare. Denis St. Xavier was a dwarf in size, black as an Indian, and bow-legged as a voyager boatman. Ole was the soul of good humor, and Denis was choleric and at times rashly abusive.

Both, however, were of undoubted courage, and more than once the hot-headed little French-Canadian was rescued from the perils of a dangerous quarrel by the prowess and vast strength of his big partner.

There had been a protracted and severe drought in the upper Mississippi country, and the smaller streams and lakes had all gone dry. Fur-bearing creatures were driven in upon the large streams, and the Mississippi itself became prime trapping-ground for gathering beaver, muskrat, mink and other pelts. As there was little snow for several winters, many of the trappers made their daily rounds upon skates, and covered a wide extent of territory.

During the last of these dry years Sandvig and St. Xavier chose trapping-grounds some fifty miles below Prairie du Chien and above the mouth of an Iowa river. There were, as these trappers believed, no Indians wintering nearer than the villages of the Sacs and Foxes some distance away, and they put out long lines of traps without attempt at concealment.

One night in November there came a "dry freeze" which scaled the Mississippi over with glare ice, and when, on the following day, the trappers went their rounds on skates, both were much astonished and mystified to find that every trap had been stoken on each bank of the river.

When they compared experiences at night, they came to the conclusion that Indians must be lurking in the neighborhood. On the next morning they skated down the Mississippi to the mouth of the little river some miles below their shack, and there discovered traces of two canoes which had evidently broken through a thin scum of ice in making their way upstream.

Instantly the mystery of the stolen traps was solved. Indians had, early on the night of the first freeze, gathered the whole "line." In returning in their canoes, they had found the mouth of the small stream thinly covered with ice.

St. Xavier broke out in a frightful temper, and to Ole's advice that they secure aid from the trappers up the river he would not listen. What were five, six, ten pilfering Indians, he asked, that two good men should fear them? Had not Baptiste Le Bon gone alone to Wabasha's Sioux village after his stolen gun, and didn't he make them give it up? Well, then!

And so the two skated on up the little river in search of the thieves.

And they ran quite suddenly upon an Indian village of newly built lodges—a dozen or fifteen of them—upon a marsh island formed by an arm, or broad bayou, of the river. The lodges were of woven willow built in a marsh of tall corn-stalk grass, with closely tied bundles of which they were heavily thatched. They were protected from fires by the watercourses, and from the winds of winter by the thick fringes of willows.

The trappers boldly approached this Iowa town, walking up a narrow path where the swaying corn-stalk tops brushed Ole Sandvig's shoulders.

But when, on arriving at the lodge of the chief, they found that Conkey John, a notorious Musquakie scallawag, was "head man," they abandoned all hope of immediately recovering their traps. Only the summer before, at "the prairie," St. Xavier had offended this redoubtable scoundrel by telling him some emphatic truths about his dishonorable career.

Nevertheless the trappers boldly entered Conkey John's teepee, and demanded their traps and peltries. Conkey John's answer was characteristic of that wily thief. The fellow had picked up, somehow, a fair smattering of English.

"Ho! You tlap?" he inquired. "Heap Sac up libber (river). He go by las' night. Him have many tlap; heap muslat; heap skin."

The trappers knew Conkey John lied, and his shrewdly twinkling eyes betrayed his enjoyment of the situation.

St. Xavier poured forth a torrent of angry threats, until Sandvig, dragging him from the lodge, compelled him to be quiet. There was nothing for it but to return to Prairie du Chien empty-handed, and the sensible Norwegian wished to make a prudent retreat from so dangerous a nest of freebooters.

A wind, which had risen that morning, had increased to a gale, and was blowing directly in their faces as the trappers put on their skates at the lower extremity of the island. Ole Sandvig cast several furtive glances behind him, and cocked his gun. When he had securely fastened his skates, the Norseman rose to peer over the top of the waving grass.

At the same moment St. Xavier's rifle cracked, and Sandvig turned to see that the angry Frenchman had fired into a thick tuft of grass. Instantly Ole darted forward to smother the first tiny shoot of flame, but the wily Denis tripped him, and both men sprawled on the ice.

Before Sandvig could regain his feet, flames, blown upon by the high wind, leaped higher than his head.

"Now come!" he shouted angrily at his mate. "Ve sall boto be killed, over ve skato mighty fast already!"

But St. Xavier could not skate at all. In the collision with Sandvig he had broken both runners. He was already unbuckling the useless skates. He looked up, grinning ruefully.

"De las' of St. Xavier," he said. "Ole, you geet out of dis."

The big Norwegian glared at his audacious partner for an instant while the flames crackled and roared inland. "De onliest time," St. Xavier used to say afterward, "dat ever I see Ole Sandvig mad."

Ole wasted no words in his wrath. He flung off his greasy leather coat, cut off the sleeves and ripped them into string. Then he seized the little Frenchman, bundled him into the armless garment, and made the live package fast to his belt behind. Then, leaving both their guns upon the ice, he skated away into the teeth of the wind.

Thus helplessly dragged, St. Xavier looked back to see the Indian town already ablaze, and the helpless Musquakies, men, women and children, running out upon the ice. Now that he had time to reflect, he doubted if, with his short legs and heavy body, he could even have skated away from those Indians. Some of them would of course cross the V-shaped peninsula between the rivers to throw themselves across Ole's path, and others would follow directly upon his trail.

Ole was a magnificent skater, but St. Xavier knew that he was a heavy drag. He wished he had clung to his gun, and made Ole save himself.

The big Norseman bent against the fierce wind, and plied his skates with might and main. If only he might make the turn, some three or four miles distant, and get started with the wind before those Indians should cross the neck! That was Ole's sole hope of escape.

Not once did the swift skater look behind. Bent almost double, he turned curve after curve of the river, and the helpless St. Xavier slipped and slewed, and sometimes rolled over and over at his heels. A half-hour's struggle against the fierce gale left Ole pretty well blown when the turn came; and even then he dared not abate his tremendous exertion. He skated almost at the speed of the gale for two miles or more.

Then, in emerging from an island channel, the skater saw that his long and exhausting burst of speed had been without avail.

The fleet-footed Musquakie runners were ahead of him. Ranged across the ice-channel, a score of Indians stood ready to converge their line upon any point at which he might aim. And owing to the great drought, the channel was less than a quarter of a mile in width.

At first Ole was inclined to turn back and race against the wind again. Then his shrewd eyes, running along the row of clearly outlined figures, noted that the Indians were armed, if armed at all, with their knives only. Seeing that he and St. Xavier had discarded their guns, they had themselves raced across the neck in lightest running gear; and so Sandvig, gathering his energies for a mighty burst of speed, bore down upon the left wing of the enemy. Their center and right swung about in a sliding, scrambling semicircle to close in upon him.

Instead of attempting to dodge the gathering knot in his front, Sandvig dove straight at the group. He knocked two Indians out of his path, and tore through the crowd of savages like a cannon-ball. Nevertheless, he felt an extra tug at his rope, and glancing behind, saw that an Indian was clinging to one of St. Xavier's feet.

Ole then gave himself up for lost. His speed was greatly retarded by this fresh clog, and a horde of yelling Indians were at his heels. But St. Xavier drew the sliding Indian toward him by simply doubling his legs, and then delivered a kick with his free foot, which, being well directed, rid him of his incubus.

Nevertheless, Ole, tired and breathless, was now no more than a match for the Indian runners. These were clad only in shirts and leggings, and, almost as sure-footed as the skater, leaped and slid on their moccasins now almost as fast as the tired trapper on his steel runners.

At the end of another quarter-hour the pursuers were running like a persistent wolf-pack close upon Ole's heels. Ten or twelve of them were so close that a single mishap would pile them, in a vengeful heap, on Ole and St. Xavier.

As for the Frenchman, he found some satisfaction in shouting defiance at the Musquakies. Having one free arm, he also flourished at them a knife which he held ready, at the last extremity, to cut the thong above his head, and thus leave Ole free to fight or save himself if he should choose.

The Indians made no answer to St. Xavier's revilings. Like the skater, they bent every energy upon winning the hotly contested race, and they were pricked on by the keenest of savage incentives—the lust for revenge. Even when one fell forward upon all fours, as now and then happened, the fierce wind and his own impetus bore him forward until, catlike, he had regained his feet without perceptible loss of speed.

Thus the race continued; then, in turning an island, the skater caught the glimmer of an almost imperceptible line of white blisters, or ice-bubbles, a hundred yards in front of him. There, he knew, was a streak of thin ice where a swift cross-current ran round the island bars. He had already avoided several such air-holes, but now he continued straight on.

He slackened his speed until a dozen or more of the Indians were almost upon him. These were gripping their knives for a final and desperate rush when the cunning skater darted aside at a sharp angle, avoiding the ice-bubbles by a dangerous margin.

The ice cracked under him, and St. Xavier's heels actually broke through as Sandvig, quattering the wind in a mighty swoop, shot past the thin strip in a flight like that of a wheeling hawk.

The Indians saw their danger, but too late. In vain they flung themselves upon their faces or their backs in the hope to slide over the cracking ice. The foremost broke through in a twinkling, and one after another a dozen plumped into the widening breach, and floundered up to their armpits and necks in a freezing current.

St. Xavier shouted. Ole Sandvig, too, stopped at a safe distance to get his breath, and then to indulge in a great Norse roar of laughter.

The pursuit was effectively checked. The stalled Musquakies had, in fact, hard enough work to save their lives. Sandvig and St. Xavier were a mile away when the last one was fished out over the bending, breaking ice.

The trappers reached Prairie du Chien that evening, and there Sandvig cut loose from his partnership with St. Xavier. He declared he would have nothing further to do with such a venturesome fool.

"Nevertheless," Dousman was wont to add, "after Denis had moped about the fort for several months, like a love-sick and disappointed squaw, the two went off together again."—Youth's Companion.

Mounted Men in Africa.

Here are the horses tethered by their head-riems in double rows to ropes stretched taut between two posts. Shaggy, under-sized, under-conditioned, coarse-jointed, and with heavy pendent heads though they be, they can carry eighteen stone over thirty miles of rough country, and be fit for work the following day. Near them, his rifle between his crossed legs, his arms resting limply on his knees, sits on a tussock of grass the sentry of the stable guard, and sleepily watches the wreaths of blue smoke as they curl upward from the pipe between his lips. He has not shaved for a month, and his ablutions have been, to say the least of it, perfunctory. On the back of his head rests a tattered and shapeless apology for the colonial flap-hat we have learned to know so well. He has no coat, and his gray army shirt—the sleeves rolled up above the elbows and the neck turned in to the breast bone—exposes his hairy and sun-tanned skin. From his belt hangs, besides his bayonet, the inevitable bag of Transvaal tobacco. A leather bandolier crosses his shoulder; while boots, innocent of brush or blacking, and breeches and putties that may once have been khaki, complete his apparel. The switch dangling from the listless right hand is for purposes of discipline, for the unpicketed heels of his charges are only too prone to take each and every opportunity of beating a tottoo on the ribs of their nearest neighbor.—Blackwood's Magazine.

INDIANA LAWMAKERS

The telephone bill failed to pass on Friday. The bill to separate the woman's prison and girls' industrial school passed the Senate. The report of the committee investigating the woman's prison practically whitewashed the management with very little qualification. The "no gas no pay" bill was ruled out of order. The Joss primary election bill was concurred in for the Minturn bill. It leaves primaries optional with each county. The bill providing for the publication of legal advertisements both in daily and weekly papers failed to pass.

The House and Senate held brief sessions, Saturday morning, adjourning soon after receiving the Governor's message concerning the signing of bills. Short sessions were also held Saturday afternoon. Nothing was done.

The Sixty-second General Assembly came to an end at midnight Monday. Two hundred and thirty-five bills were passed by both houses and of these 200 have become laws. Of the bills acted on just before the close of the Legislature the one of probably the widest interest is Senator Wood's medical bill, which makes it unlawful for Christian scientists and Dowiettes to engage in healing or treating patients without having undergone examination at the hands of the State medical board. The bill will become a law without the Governor's signature. Of all the measures which passed both houses there was but one joint resolution. This authorizes the erection of a monument in University Park in Indianapolis to the memory of Abraham Lincoln. The most conspicuous among the bills vetoed is the Joss bill, providing for the consolidation of railroads in Indiana, clearly a corporate measure. The anti-trust bill passed is a harmless measure and the primary election law is not generally effective.

RECORD OF THE WEEK

INDIANA INCIDENTS TERSELY TOLD.

Woman with Babe in Her Arms Is Fatally Shot—Young Women in Class Fight at Newcastle—Governor Durbin Vetoes Game Bill.

In Terre Haute Charles Rogers shot and probably mortally wounded his wife and stepfather, Milburn Batey. The wife had left her husband on account of lack of support, and was at her stepfather's home. Rogers went to the house and fired without warning. The wife had a baby in her arms at the time. Rogers later gave himself up at police headquarters. Rogers says he went to the house with the intention of committing suicide; that he had his revolver in his hand when his wife tried to take it from him, and in the struggle for its possession it was discharged. He also says that Batey came toward him and he fired two shots at Batey. He denies having tried to take one of his two children.

Girl Pupils Fight on a Roof.

A fierce battle for supremacy between the seniors and sophomores and the juniors and freshmen of the high school at Newcastle took place late on a recent night on the roof of the high-school building. The trouble arose over the hoisting of the class colors on the flagpole. Fifty or more students took part in the scrimmage, among them being many of the young ladies, who pulled hair and fought as fiercely as the boys. Many of the combatants narrowly escaped being pushed over the edge of the roof. The police finally forced the scuffle and drove the students from the roof, but not until the juniors and freshmen had hoisted their colors. Many of the students were badly injured.

Game Bill Vetoes.

Governor Durbin has vetoed the bill which was designed to give game wardens extraordinary privileges in cases where persons were suspected of having fish and game out of season in their possession. The bill provided that justices of the peace might issue the search warrants, and under the terms of the bill extraordinary rights were given the peace officers. The governor regarded the bill as radical and unnecessary to the enforcement of the game law and prejudicial to the rights of the citizens.

Shot to Death.

Charles Connolly, 15, son of Michael Connolly, was almost instantly killed at Lafayette by the accidental discharge of a revolver. He and a companion, Arthur Griffith, were inspecting the weapon.
