Pleasant View, R. F. D. 16-There is no danger to the fruit so far. Peaches and cherries and apples are all right. Some wheat is hurt and some rye, but this will be a good crop. The clover seed may possibly be hurt by sowing too early, and the freeze Saturday night may have injured it still more. J. W. HOOTON.

J. L. Schenerman, Route 14-I think the prospect for a crop of wheat in this neighborhood is favorable. Apples, pears and cherries are not far enough along yet to be injured, I think, but of the peaches I am not so sure as the buds are far advanced and I think they have been greatly injured if not killed.

"Fight Fire with Fire" and the Dollars Now Going Cityward Will Stay in the Home Community.

The merchant who would wage successful warfare against mail-order competition should study mall-order methods. The same tactics that takes the competition that is offered by lothe dollar out of the community will keep it at home.

And what are mail-order methods? The keynote of it all may be found in the one word-publicity. The mailorder house advertises. It does not advertise better goods at less money than the home merchant gives, but it advertises persistently. It puts its proposition before the public constantly. It recognizes no dull season in its campaign for publicity. It never lets

Does it pay to advertise?

The more than $200,000,000 that finds its way to the Chicago mail-order houses each year is garnered by a campaign of advertising. You, Mr. Local Merchant, claim, and rightly, that you can sell the same goods for the same, or less money, than the mail-order houses offer, but at the same time you complain because the mail-order man gets the business.

Why do they got it? Because they advertise. They not only advertise, but they

CARAVANS OF THE DESERT.

Gold Hunters and Consumptives Found Traveling Side by Side.

Ever journeying across the desert. sands and climbing the arid peaks and footbills of the far southwest are two earavans-one seemingly rugged and healthy, though afflicted with a disease called goldomania, the other emaclated by the great white plague.

One is scarcely more optimistic than the other; one procession seeks a glittering yellow dust that means riches, the other a more precious thing -health. Though the trail may be long and the water holes infrequent; though the desert sun may be blistering and the tongue swollen with thirst; though the mountains may be steep and the path strewn with cacti, there is the glittering substance in the sand a little farther on for the argonaut; a lease of life at the horizon, when the red desert sun announces the dawn of another day, for the white plague's

To many seeking their wonted vigor the hope that ever carries them onward is sometimes as futile as the race after the will-o'-the-wisp that lures the argonaut.

But the procession moves on and on; the pilgrims can not leave the sands until the mountain air and sunshine have healed the sears made by death's chief ally.

The main trail of the weak-hunged leads from Pecos to Yuma. For more than 1,000 miles prospector and plagueridden traverse its tortuous course. In the caravan seeking gold nearly all are poor. In the caravan exiled and fighting for health there are rich and poor, high and low, democratic and fraternal in their ills and expectancy.

To some this hope is as uncertain of realization as the prospector's pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. But many who have early joined the pilgrims, after years of travel by day under the scorehing sun and sleep by night in the pure air of the mountain top, end their alloted exile and return to the old home 1,000 or more miles distant.

But the ranks are soon recruited, And some there are who must travel along the great highway until the end. Oftentimes the bones of prospector and plague-ridden are found bleaching in the canyon. The skeleton hand of one is outstretched up the hillside, where others reach the goal-and gold; the bony fingers of the other point home.

Quick Thought Saved Ship.

The Russian war frigate Olaf, prior to the outbreak of the war with Japan, which had accompanied the yacht of the exarowitz to Copenhagen, was lying at anchor among hundreds of other ships in the harbor, when a fire was discovered in a coal cellar below, which was only a few feet from the powder magazine. There was no time to put out the fire before it could reach the magazine, and an explosion of the large stores of cartridges and gunpowder contained in it probably would have descroyed not only the Olaf and the surrounding ships, but part of Copenhagen itself. Capt. Rehbinder, the commander of the Olaf, saw at once that the only thing to be done to prevent a catastrophe was to sink the ship. After sending away the crew, with the ship's papers, cash boxes and most valuable instruments in boats, he ordered the earpenters and engineers to make a leak in the vessel, and half an hour afterward she sank in shallow water. Next day she was raised again and sent off for repailrs. The court-martial unanimously expressed the highest praise of the conduct of the captain and his subordinates. The emperor appointed him his aide-de-camp, which is one of the highest honors conferred on Russian naval officers, and the officers and men received gratuities from the emperor's privy purse. - Sunday Magazine.

Off to the south was the desert. There he could be alone; there face God and his own conscience and have his inmost soul declare the truth about himself. In his sadness he would have liked to lead the people with him, lead them away from some evil, some falsity that had crept in about them; he knew not what it was nor how it had come, but Zion had been defiled. Something was gone from the Church, something from Brigham, something from himself, something, it almost seemed, even from the God of Israel. When the summer waned, his plan was formed to go to one of the southern settlements to live. Brigham had approved. The Church needed new blood there.

He rode out of the city one early moraing in out of the carry to the south ... September, facing to the betwe over the rolling valley that lay between the hills now flaunting their first autumn colors. He was in baste to go, yet fearful of what he should meet there.

CHAPTER XIX.

The Blood on the Page.

Along the level lane between the mountain ranges he went, a lane that runs almost from Bear creek on the north to the Colorado on the south, with a width of 20 miles or so. But. for Joel Rae it became a ride down the valley of lost illusions. Some saving grace of faith was gone from the people. He passed through sturdy little settlements, bowered in gardens and erchards, and girded about by now fertile acres where once had been the bare, gray desert. Slowly, mile by mile, the Saintz had pushed down the valley, battling with the Indians and the elements for every acre of land they gained. Yet it seemed to him now that they had achieved but a mere Godless prosperity. They had worked a miracle of abundance in the desert-but of what avail? For the soul of their faith was gone. He felt

Through Battle Creek, Prove, and Springville he went; through Spanish Fork, Payson, Salt Creek, and Fillmore. He stopped to preach at each place, but be did it perfunctorily, and with shame for himself in his secret heart. Some impalpable essence of spirituality was gone from himself and from the people. He felt himself wickedly agreeing with a possimistic elder at Fillmore, who remarked: "I tell you what, Brother Rae, it seems like when the Book of Mormon goes again' the Constitution of the United States, there's sure to be hell to pay, and the Saints allus has to pay it." > He could no longer fight off the truth. It was facing him now in all its nakedness, monstrous to obscenity, demanding its due measure from his own soul's blood. He aroused himself, shivering, and looked out into the room where the shadows lay heavy, and from whence came the breathing sputtering candle, set in its hole bored in a block of wood, and held it up for a last look at the little woman-child. He was full of an agony of wonder as he gazed, of piteous questioning why this should be as it was. The child stirred and flung one arm over her eyes as if to hide the light. He put out the candle and set it down. Then stooping over, he kissed the pillow beside the child's head and stepped lightly to the door. He had come to the end of his subterfuge-he could no longer delay his punishment.

Outside the moon was shining, and his horse moved about restlessly. He put on the saddle and rode off to the south, galloping rapidly after he reached the highway. Off there was a kindly desert where a man could take in peace such punishment as his body could bear and his soul decree; and where that soul could then pass on in decent privacy to be judged by its Maker.

It was the book he had given The moon had gone, and over on his left a soft grayness began to show above the line of the hills. The light grew until it glowed with the fire of opals; through the treetops ran little stirs of wakefulness, and all about him were faint, furtive rustlings and whispers of the new day. Then in this giorified dusk of the dawn a squirrel loosed his bark of alarm, a crested jay screamed in answer, and he knew his hour of atonement was

> He pressed forward again toward the desert, eager to be on with it. The page with the wash of blood across it seemed to take on a new vividness in the stronger light. Under the stain, the letters of the words years ago, were magnified before his mind,-'And as ye would that men should do to you-" It seemed to him that the blood through which they came heated the words so that they burned

An hour after daybreak the trail led watercourse to the edge of the desert. Along the sides of this the chaparral grew thickly, and the spring by which he halted made a little spot of green at the edge of the gray. But out in front of him was the infinite stretch of death, far sweeps of wied-furrowed sand burning under a sun made sullen red by the clouds of fine dust in the freight rates on grain from this terriair. Sparsely over the dull surface grew the few shrubs that could survive the heat and dryness,-stunted, unlovely things of burr, spine, thorn, or saw-edged leaf,-all bent one ways by the sand blown against them .bristling eactus and crouching mes-quite bushes. In the vast open of the blue above, a vulture wheeled with sinister alertness; and far out among the dwarfed growing things a coyote skulked knowingly. The weird, phantom-like beauty of it stole upon him, torn as he was, while he looked over the dry, flat reaches. It was a good place to die in, this lifeless waste languishing under an angry sun.

At last he gave his horse water, tied the bridlerein to the horn of the sad dle, headed him back over the trail to the valley and turned him loose. Then, after a long look toward the maving green of the hills, he started off through the yielding sand, his face white and haggard but hard-set. He was already weakening by fasting and loss of sleep, and the heat and dryness soon told upon him as the chill was warmed from the morning air.

When he had walked an hour, he felt he must stop, at least to rest. He looked back to see how far he had come. He was disappointed by the nearness of the hills; they seemed but a stone's throw away. If delirium came now he would probably wander back to the water.

He walked another hour, then turned, and was again disappointedit was such a little distance; yet he knew now he must be too far out to feel the horror of it, remembering how find his way back when the madness was fairly on the ground in the midst he picked the book up from where came. He was quite broken. Not since the long-gone night on the river-flat across from Nauvoo had tears wet his eyes. But they fell now, and from sheer, helpless grief he wept. And then for the first time in two days he prayedthis time the prayer of the publican:-

"God be merciful to me, a sinner." Over and over he said the words, chokingly, watering the hot sands with his tears. When the paroxysm had passed, it left him, weak and prone, still faintly crying his prayer into the sand, "O God, be mereiful te me, a slaner."

MAIL AGENT FORTY YEARS.

Col. Smith, Aged 79, Sends His Realgnation to Washington.

Terre Haute.-Col. Charles Smith, who has sent in his resignation from the railway mail service, is perhaps the oldest in point of service and age in this branch of the post office department. He has been a mail agent 40 years and he is 79 years old. For 30 years he was on the route between Terre Haute and Evansville, beginning in the days before a whole car was used for the mall and before there were racks and cases in the car in which to throw the mail to save the time of doing it in the post office at the end of the run.

For the last ten years he has been transfer agent at the Union depot and is compelled to resign because of the loss of sight of one eye from grip. Besides his exceptional record in the mail service Col. Smith saw service in two wars and one filibustering expedition. He went to the Mexican war from Cincinnati.

In the latter '50's he raised a company of 100 young men at Cincinnati for the Lopez fillbustering expedition to Cuba which met with disaster when the ship with 700 men, sailing from New Orleans, landed on the wrong side of Cuba at Cardenas, and after a sharp engagement had to sail away, being chased by a Spanish man-of-war to Key West. Shortly before the civil war he moved to Terre Haute and at the breaking out of the war he went as captain of a company in the Thirtyfirst Indiana, became fleutenant colonel and commanded the regiment in several engagements.

He was in business in Terre Haute in 1867, when he lost all by fire without Insurance. He applied for the mail agent position, expecting to hold it temporarily, but, as he says, the work had a fuscination for him and he remained in the service.

Prisoners Must Go to Work.

Franklin.-Prisoners in the Johnson county jail will not in the future find it the quiet and restful retreat they have in the past. The loafers who have found it convenient to get a jail sentence during cold winter months will bereafter probably prefer to work a little on the outside. The county commissioners passed an ordinance prepared by Representative George White, the county attorney, which provides that all able-bodied men sentenced to a term in the jail or in prison for nonpayment of fines or costs shall hereafter be employed on the streets, roads or other public works. A guard will be furnished by the city or county, and the officials shall have the right to provide balls and chains or shackles and prison garbs to be worn by the prisoners while at work.

Plan City Tax on Breweries. Jeffersonville,-Following the example set by Indianapolis in placing a tax on brewerles, brewery agencies, distilleries, etc., the Jeffersonville city council will probably pass an ordinance providing for an annual license of $250 on such concerns in this city. The fact that an appeal was taken at Indianapolis and the supreme court decided such license legal influenced John Prancke of this city to introduce the ordinance.

Temperance Sign Wrecked.

Noblesville.-A large temperance sign along the Lake Erie & Western railroad was blown into atoms with dynamite. The force of the explosion tore an immense hole in mentioned in connection with this the ground and shook all the dwellings in the neighborhood, shattering panes of glass. The perpetrators of Bech are well-known attorneys in in the deed are unknown, but suspicion dianapolis, and Mr. Harvey has serve is directed against the anti-temperance element.

Trees imperiled by Scale.

Marion.-Men who have made scientific investigation of the spread city say that within two years every tree in a large district of the city will be killed and have recommended that the city take control of privately owned trees and shrubbery. The scale has been found over a third of the city and the shade trees in some parts have been attacked.

Fight Over Post Office.

Richmond.-Cambridge City threatens to have a small stred squabble. Postmaster Omer Guyton is contemplating the erection of a new building and intends to move the post office into it. The business men declare the building is not centrally located and they intend to appeal to the post office department at Washtime he has no men to assist in har- ington to prevent a change being Matrimonial.

A very pretty church wedding was that of Miss Lola Del Everly, daughter of William Everly, and Mr. Harry B. Lamson, son of Frank Lamson, which occurred Monday night at the Episcopal church at S o'clock. Rev. W. S. Howard performed the ceremony in the presence of a company which filled the church.

Mr. James McCrea of Chicago, a Purdue college friend of Mr. Lamson's, acted as best man and a former Plymouth girl, was maid of honor. Misses Ethel Yockey and Bessie Vinall were bridesmaids and Messrs. Charles Miller and Lloyd Bowell were ushers. The bride was given away by her father. She wore a dress of white satin, trimmed with hand-made lace, and a bridal veil in which were orange blossoms, and carried her prayer book. Miss Hazel Neff played the wedding march.

The charch was trimmed with large arches joined together with ribbon and smilax and the front of the building was banked with green plants.

SHORT TALKS BY L. T. COOPER.

INTERNAL PARASITES.

Cooper's New Discovery has taught me many things. Not least of which is that parasites. or tape worms as they are called are responsible for an immense amount of auffering. Thousands of these creatures have been brought to me by people who have taken the New Discovery and I now know that an immense amount of supposed stomach trouble is caused in reality by one of these parasites. A man or woman may be afflicted in this manner for years and not realize the true cause of their suffering. When I first sold Cooper's New Discovery I did not know that the medicine would remove this trouble. I have since found that it invariably does so. The following letter is a fair sample of the symptoms as experienced by an individual thus "I was always tired. My atomach bloated and the slightest exertion made me sick, weak and dizzy. My appetite was variable and a good nights sleep was unknown to me. When I awoke in the mornings I had a bad taste in my mouth and a coated tongue. I heard of the wonderful benefits that were being derived from Cooper's New Discovery, and decided "The horrible tape worm, sixty feet long that had been sapping my life away, passed from my system alive and squirming after I had taken three doses. Now I have a splendid appetite, every trace of stomach trouble has disappeared and my digestion is good. I sleep well and am gaining in strength every day." PERFECTION AT LAST ATTAINED

THIS CUT shows the IDEAL 1 Washer in operation. Note the perfectly easy and natural position of the operator. The handle is swung back and forth; not clear around but one-third the way. The operator stands in a perfectly upright position at all times and takes free, easy swings. It is not the rubbing alone that does the work, but streams of bot, soapy water are forced through every part and piece until all is thoroughly cleansed. Please bear in mind that the IDEAL is not solely a rub washer-far from it. Neither does it simply churn the clothes around in the water, but it embodies both principles and thus produces perfect results. Our Washer is absolutely the simplest machine on the market no obstructions of any kind on the inside, neither are there any cog wheels, springs or other complicated parts on the outside. The IDEAL is an absolute necessity in every family, as it saves our strength, health and patience. We absolutely guarantee it to last longer, to run lighter and to wash quicker and cleaner than any other machine made.

Ornamental and Useful, and Easily Made at Home.

Photo frames covered with embroidered silk or linen are very dainty, and they may be easily made at home, or re-covered where necessary. The frame we show is covered with grey satin worked with pink and green silk.

The size of the frame must be regulated by the size of the photo it is intended for. Stout cardboard is used for the foundation. In it an opening must be cut with a knife. Cut the silk a little larger than the foundation, then work with the design shown.

One or two strands of filoselle or filo-flosse may be used for the work, and two or three shades of each of soft tones of plak and green. Four tiny gold sequins are sewn in each square or knot-stitches in gold silk may be worked, if preferred.

When the embroidery is finished the silk should be stretched over the card. The edges must be snipped and fixed at the back with seccotine. A teen, and one end sewn to the center piece of glass must also be fixed by seccotine behind the opening.

A GATE WITHIN A GATE. Convenient Arrangement for the Poultry Yard Door.

The accompanying cut almost explains itself. It is an ordinary gate in the poultry fence. The little gate is put in where three slats have been cut off at the bottom. To make a gate take two narrow, thin pieces of board of length to nearly fill the space. Get several stiff pieces of large wire, heavy enough to stop hens. Crease the board for each wire or one of them, place the end of a wire in each crease, and nail the boards together ness women. Their hair was well and the little gate is made. Staples may be used if desired. To hang it, drive a large nail into each end, lengthwise between the boards, and fasten to the bottom of the large board in the large gate by means of long staples.

When you open the large gate the small one is carried with it. When mischlevous Biddy has somehow found her way into the garden and don't know the way back as she went in, she will always come to the gate, This device affords a way out which she will naturally use because there is more clear space than anywhere clae in the fence. As she pushes against it, it swings out, and up out of her way. but should she attempt to go the other way the stationary bottom board holds the lower end of the wire.

By the way, says Prairie Farmer, this board should be at the bottom of every gate of this kind anyway. Instead of nailing it to the post directly nail a block on each post and the board should be nafled to the blocks, thus allowing the nate to fit into place better and prevent crawling under.

Or another way to make a gate Is this: Take one board and fasten wires on with nails or staples, and if you do not wish to use hinges, use a piece of wire long enough to run by each end of gate and fasten loosely by staples to slat at each end. This will do anywhere in the fence.

WHY THEY FAIL.

The Danger of Capital in the Poultry Business.

When it comes to capital in the poultry business, my observation is that hundreds who undertake it on a big scale have too much money. If they had less money they would need to grow the business up, and in the end would come out of the big end of the horn instead of the little end, says a writer in Farmers' Review. Rightly so, the first year of the poultry business should be a sort of students' course; that is I mean if he has in view making the business his entire business. Of course, he would need some money, but not to the extent of calling it capital. An able-bodied man should be able to earn some money on the side for the first year. To me he would appear as on the right track if he did so. Sincerely so, I am sick and tired of the idea prevalent in some quarters that most any one can, with a bag of money, some machinery, a simple twist of the wrist and a wise look, revolutionize the whole poultry business in just a few weeks. I verily be-Heve that the money wasted in the poultry business would comfortably house every hen on the face of the earth. If I can do no other good than to encourage those who have no capital and discourage those who want to spend a lot of money, I have, after all. accomplished considerable. There is nothing that lives and walks that can beat a hen for paying her own way and ours as we go along, and great capital to start with would be an intimation that they are expensive to keep instead of money earners.

Need of Green Food.

As the hatching season approaches, the necessity for furnishing plenty of green food is increased. Cabbage. mangel wurzel, turnips and refuse vegetables and fruits of all kinds are suitable and satisfactory for the pureither chopped fine and placed in troughs at regular intervals, perhaps three times a week, or should be hung up in the pens where the fowls can reach them by jumping a little.

Care of Little Chicks.

We saved 30 or 40 chicks in each of vals, as the case required.

THE DEADLY MITE.

Sucks the Life Out of Poultry and Profit Out of Owner's Pocket.

The most deadly foe of the farm fowl is the little mite, whose smallness is made up for by the enormous numbers in which he appears in the hen house. Without doubt the numbers, in an infested hen house, will often run into the hundreds of thourands and perhaps into the millions. A dry, always warm and comfortable in single mite can do no harm, but thousands can. We have seen setting hens killed by these mites, and there is no day. doubt that often their presence in a flock causes a very great decrease in the production of eggs by the if there is wallpaper on the wall, to fowls.

These mites are grayish in color, before they have feasted on a fowl. Then they fill themselves with blood, and this shows through the transparent skin of the mite. This gives them health and unhappiness. It is frethe red color by which they are quently the cause of lung trouble, not known, "the little red mite." Of course the mites that housekeeping. had been sucking her blood in the night had all left her by daylight, and had taken refuge under the straw in the nest. Two or three days after that he found the hen dead, half way off the nest with her wings extended. The little vampires had sucked such quantities of blood from her that there was not enough left for heart action. Yet the owner did not even then suspect the cause of the death of this hen.

Another hen was placed on the eggs and in two or three days it was noticed that her comb was also becoming pale and that she was growing weak. She was taken off the nest and was almost too weak to move about. The eggs were taken out and the straw removed, when it was discovered that the bottom of the nest was one mass of red, fat mites, every one of which had nightly feasted off the setting hens. They were destroyed and new nest material put into the nests. It was a striking illustration of the deadly character of the attacks of these mites.

There is no doubt that, in addition to the damage these mites do in sucking blood, there is another damage they do that must not be lost sight of. They spread disease from one bird to another by sucking blood from one bird and then from another. The great.

At first I thought the queens were out of the ordinary; but I gave this theory up, as I had a number of queens just as well reared in other hives, and of the same blood; so I am satisfied that it was the warmer supers, caused by the better protection provided by the covers.

Now, the question comes up, "Would it not be better to have this dead-air space filled with chaff or sawdust, making the same one and one-half inches, or perhaps two inches deep?" I consider, however, that the projecting rim of five inches below the hive pose. They should be fed separately, is of prime importance. Mainly, of course, the most protection should be on the top of the hive.

CARE OF THE SICK ROOM.

Above All Things the Walls Should Be Kept Dry.

When the bedroom becomes a sick room there is an added reason why extreme precautions should be used to keep the room in a thoroughly sanitary condition.

Above all things, the bedroom should never be damp. It should be nice and winter, cool and alry in summer, and bright and sunny some parts of the

WOMEN IN NEW FIELDS.

British Smart Society Takes to "Hopping"-Woman Veterinary.

Work in the hop fields is the latest "rest cure" fad for London's smart set, and the luxurious society "hoppers" claim that a week's hopping is far better and more pleasant than a rest at any well-known health resort.

The tents of these well-to-do pickers are expensively furnished, and easy chairs, soft beds and up-to-date camping outfits are among their hopping appliances.

In Berlin there is a woman veterinary surgeon who is an official inspector of animals. She rides through the streets on the lookout for animals suffering from any disablement, and before reporting a horse as unfit for work, she examines its injuries and whenever possible applies remedies to alleviate its pain. She carries a leather case filled with bandages and other surgical appliances.

Dirliked the Word "Death."

"Decease" is now a regular form of word for death. But it began as a gentle euphemism, "decessus" (departure) seeming much less harsh to the Romans than "mors." All languages abound in euphemisms of the kind, which go back to a superstitious reluctance to mention death plainly, that gradually passed into a kindly desire to soften the idea. "Passed away," "departed," "gone," "expire" (breathe out), "no more," "demise," and even "the late" are expressions of this nature. Most striking of all is the Roman euphemism for "he is dead"-"vixit," he has lived.

Curious Maps.

Maps for military and general field use are produced by Dr. O. H. F. Vollbehr, of Halensee, Berlin, as microscopic transparencies, each about one and one-half inch by two inches in size. These form slides for the micro-photoscope, a special instrument having a hand-mirror-shaped frame, to which is attached a slide-holder, with a movable lens over it. The lens slides in two directions, about 70 square miles being shown in each position.

TRY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR STOMACH TROUBLE.

The Most Skeptical.

Guarantee That Must Convince

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a doctor's prescription, used by an eminent practitioner, and for nearly a generation known as a reliable household remedy throughout the United States. Needless to say, no advertised medicine could retain popular favor for so long a period without having great merit and it is the invaluable curative properties of the pills that have made them a standard remedy in every civilized country in the world. Added to this is the absolute guarantee that the pills contain no harmful drug, opiate, narcotic or stimulant. A recent evidence of their efficacy is found in the statement of Mrs. N. B. Whitley, of Boxley, Ark., who says:

"I had suffered for a good many years from stomach trouble. For a long time I was subject to bad spells of faintness and lack of breath accompanied by an indescribable feeling that seemed to start in my stomach. Whenever I was a little run-down or over-tired, these spells would come on. They occurred frequently but did not last very long.

"I was confined to my bed for ten weeks one time and the doctor pronounced my trouble chronic inflammation of the stomach and bowels, Since that time I have been subject to the fainting spells and at other times to fluttering of the heart and a feeling as though I was smothering. My general health was very bad and I was weak and trembling.

"I had seen Dr. Williams' Pink Pills mentioned in the newspapers and decided to try them. When I began taking the pills I was so run-down in strength that I could hardly do any basework. Now I could walk ten miles if necessary. Both my husband and myself think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the best medicine made and we always recommend the pills to our friends." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood and give strength and tone to every part of the body. They have cured serious disorders of the blood and nerves, such as rheumatism, sciatica, anemia, nervousness, headaches, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance and many forms of weakness in either sex. They are sold by all drug-gists or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine

IN CONSTANT FEAR

WIVES OF ENGINEERS HAVE UN-QUIET LIVES.

Know Full Well the Danger That Each Trip of the Loved One May Be His Last-One Woman's Story.

When railroad wrecks occur the fireman may jump, but the engineer, if he is faithful to his trust, must stay by the throttle. To do this means death in many cases. No one knows this better than the engineer's wife. The engine men say that they become indifferent to danger and lose all dread of accidents and death. Their wives, it seems, are the ones who live most Engineers' wives are not happy-if they love their husbands. Many of them will admit that a shadow rests on their lives, if you ask them in confidence. Their husbands, perhaps, do not know it.

"I do not care to make my husband miserable, what little time he is at home, complaining of his profession," said an engineer's wife. "I never knew of an engineer quitting the business for his wife or anyone else but once. I heard of a man who gave up the road at the solicitation of his sweetheart. But after they had been married a few years he went back and was killed in a wreck."

"My husband has been an engineer on a fast mail train for nearly 30 years," said a woman with an unhappy face. "I have found that being an engineer's wife is a kind of semi-widowhood. The only time that I am absolutely sure that I am not a widow is the two or three days out of each week that my husband is at home.

"When we were first married he ran a switch engine in the yards and was at home every day. There wasn't so much danger of accidents in that. I hoped that he would always run one of those busy little engines with a headlight on both ends.

"But my husband was ambitious like other engineers. He was not satisfied with work in the yards. I shall never forget the day that he came home and told me that he had been promoted to the road. He seemed very much pleased. I hid my feelings and made an effort to share his pleasure with him. He ran a freight engine for a few years. Then he was advanced to a fast passenger engine."

The woman stopped talking for a moment and looked at the clock.

"It's three o'clock; let's see. He is near the town of I , now. A few miles this side of the place is a bridge across a river. I am always afraid of that bridge during high water."

She said that she had learned her husband's schedule by heart. Every hour of the day she knows just where his train should be at that time. She has been over his run many times and knows the location of every bridge, every high embankment and every dangerous curve.

"Wrecks? Yes: he has been in several. Twice I have seen his name in the death column in the newspapers. They were awful experiences for me and the children until we knew the truth.

"The life of an engineer's wife is made up of many sad farewells. Each time that I see my husband leave it is with the thought that this may be his last trip. I believe that I owe my gray hairs to those hundreds of times that I have had to say good-by."-Kansas City Star.

WOMAN HAS FINE RECORD.

Keeper of Lighthouse, She Has Saved Eighteen Lives.

Ida Lewis recently celebrated her fiftieth year as keeper of the Lime island lighthouse in the harbor of Newport, R. L. As a girl and woman Ida Lewis has lived a remarkable life. Her bravery and skill in handling a boat are well known and her fame is secure as the great woman life saver in the world, for she has the credit of having saved no less than 18 lives, most of her rescues having been effected in the face of extreme danger and in winter. As keeper of the Lime island lighthouse, to which post she was appointed in recognition of her bravery and record as a life saver on the death of her father, Miss Lewis has shown herself as careful and efficlent as a man could be. She is one of the few women in such a position.

SARSAPARILLA TIME.

Make Your Own Sarsaparilla or Spring Blood Medicine.

Mix one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandellon, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake well in a bottle and take one teaspoonful after meals and again at bedtime. Any good druggist can supply these ingredients.

This is said to be a splendid Spring Blood Tonic and system renovator because of its gentle action in restoring the Kidneys to normal activity, forcing them to filter from the blood all impure matter and acids, destroying micro-organisms which produce ill health and sour blood.

Everyone should take something to cleanse the blood at this time of year, and the above simple prescription is the most highly indorsed of the hundreds of home remedies generally used. Mix this yourself, then you will know what you are taking.

Sheep Raising in Australia.

The greatest industry of Australia is sheep raising, mainly for the sake of the wool, but also in part, of course, for the meat. Australia now ranks second among the great sheep-raising countries. Argentina being first with 92,000,000 sheep, Australia second with 72,000,000, and Russia third with 70, 000,000. Only a few years ago Australia was first, possessing no less than 106,260,000 head of sheep. That was in 1891. Prolonged droughts were the cause of the destruction of many millions of Australian sheep, but since 1902 there has been an annual gain. Yet these sheep were not indigenous to Australia. They were first introduced in 1797, being of the Spanish merino species,

Great German Socialist.

Herr Bebel, the leader of the German socialists, who has been so much in evidence of late, is a wheelwright by trade. Although entirely self-educated, he is one of the finest orators and debaters in the fatherland and, distasteful as his views may be to the reichstag, whenever he addresses the assembly he is certain of having a large and attentive audience. In such esteem is he held by the socialists that millions will obey his will without thinking whether they are doing right or wrong. Herr Bebel neither drinks nor smokes, and besides being a celebrity in the political wold has gained some tame as a writer.

Animals at Church.

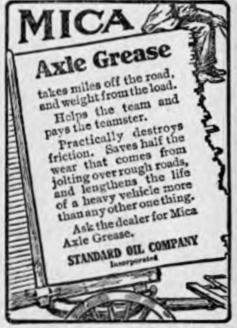

Animals attend a church service in Peru. Pigs, goats, cattle and poultry are brought by their owners to be blessed on All Souls' day, and the church is turned into a domestic menagerie. The seats are removed, and the animals can trot about or lie down where they will. After the ceremony the livestock is formally handed over to the monks, who receive little other payment for their services.

Queer Idea of Chinese. The following is a quite modern Chinese conception of the foreigners' treatment of infectious cases: "If an epidemic broke out two foreigners took the sick away and put them in a little room, washed them with lime water and then locked them up, so that no one could see them, on purpose that they might soon die and not propagate the disease. Wives and children might cry and weep, but the foreigner would but drive them away with sticks, for until dead no one must see those faces again. Better for all of us to jump into the sea than submit to this."-South China Post.

Women Avoid Operations

When a woman suffering from female trouble is told that an operation is necessary, it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the hospital, the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart.

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after an operation has been decided upon as the only cure, The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs, have escaped serious operations, as evidenced by Miss Rose Moore's case, of 307 W. 26th St., N. Y. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:-"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of the very worst form of female trouble and I wish to express to you my deepest gratitude. I suffered intensely for two years so that I was unable to attend to my duties and was a burden to my family. I doctored and doctored with only temporary relief and constantly objecting to an operation which I was advised to undergo. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it cured me of the terrible trouble and I am now in better health than I have been for many years."

This and other such cases should encourage every woman to try Ly-dia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before she submits to an operation. Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women Women saffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised.
