SHEEP AND WILD BEASTS

By Gordon Roberts

Ever since the Watergate bomb exploded we have had countless commentaries by media pundits—editorials, news and feature articles, learned analyses by assorted experts from the ivory tower, the pulpit, the shrink fraternity and the congress—about the possibility that this pervasive corruption signals the imminent collapse of our democratic institutions. The specter of Orwell's Big Brother hovers about us and assumes week by week dimensions never credited during his lifetime to that brooding seer. And 1984 is but a brief decade away.

But as usual with such punditry, it fails to penetrate beyond the first chamber of that endless thicket of words, cliches and slogans with which we have deceived ourselves since the beginning of our republic and continue to do so now in menacingly shrill tones. Naturally—since our pundits are by nature and calling weavers of thickets and not penetrators of mysteries. Instead of telling it as it is, spokesmen for all sides leap to their machines and spin out such knotty webs of evasion and distortion as will bethicken the thicket and further obscure the real issues.

One need not be a de Tocqueville nor even a Nikita Krushchev to perceive that not only do we get the leaders we deserve but that Richard Nixon may more exactly reflect the American character as it is than any president we have ever had. Who can't salute the All-American courage exhibited by the president on November 17, 1973 before an audience of knowledgeable editors and millions of television viewers as he earnestly proclaimed that "I have earned everything I have" and "I'm not a crook!" without so much as a crack appearing in the cosmeticized face or a wrinkle in the expression or a shift in the eye? Clearly the president believed what he said to the skeptical millions. And why not? Has not this man's performance since 1948 been consistently in the highest tradition of all that we cherish and strive for as through the week we trample with remarkable self-ignorance upon the beliefs and principles we proclaim with solemn if overdressed piety on Sunday?

The fault is not in such fading stars as Richard Nixon but in ourselves. It is not only possible but likely that Orwell's bleak vision will yet be a complete reality, and perhaps by 1984. It has happened elsewhere—most recently in Chile and the preliminary spadework is all but completed here. It remains not for the fumbling Nixon but for another, suaver White Knight to appear and to capture our cheap votes of trust and confidence with even more blandishments than we have always got from every last one of our politicians in the presidency, in the congress and in all state and local offices since the ink was still wet on the Constitution, but particularly in the 20th century.

In 1932 the carrot dangled before the multitudes was "a chicken in every pot." World War II provided not only the chickens but autos for both garages and the miracle of the ages, television, for most Americans. No longer was it necessary or even productive for office seekers to aim their appeals and carrots at the majority in the middle classes.

Correctly measuring the political pulse, they shifted en masse to more promising targets—the minorities, the disadvantaged, the oppressed, the insulted and injured. Something for nothing was the catchword that roused those who had nothing but wanted everything and were for the most part functionally illiterate. Our office seekers have been promising something for nothing for so long and with such accelerating intensity and cliché that we are now all extended to the point of no return. So near is the approaching internal disaster that the only alternative seems to be a premeditated and constant creation of new crises in the vain hope this will stay the physical as well as the merely vocal clamor of the increasingly disillusioned mobs milling around the front gate bearing insulting signs and bawling obscenities.

But lying politicians and bungling bureaucrats are not to blame for this state of affairs. Their business—now as always—is merely to exploit the flaw within us and themselves for venal and power purposes. But so do our richly-rewarded and prestigious advertising con experts and all the other fakirs whose tasks are to keep the presses and steel mills and assembly lines humming. Man has always conned himself with words, cliches, gimcrack institutions and most of all with phony dreams of his own perfectibility. Is it any wonder that our institutions are being eaten away from within by invisible but very real organisms? After all, isn't it now revealed truth that "God is dead?" And isn't this New Good News being spread even from the pulpit by activist ministers and priests and mod theologians sporting trendy beards and beads to match the uncooked socio-psychology mix which has long since displaced the primitive articles of belief of their fathers and grandfathers? Instead of patient soldiers in God's legions we now have lettuce-fighters running with the surly hordes of a Cesar Chavez.

So it is, too, with our educational mills, with literature and its perverted offshoot, the massive 'entertainment' industry—with all of our slipping institutions the purpose of which is, at least theoretically, to help us order our lives and enable us to keep pace with our rampaging technology and science. All are being steadily eroded from within, including our by now mostly imaginary democratic processes. The cancer has spread from ourselves to our institutions and functionaries. We are more like animals today than we were forty or even twenty years

OBITUARIES

ERNEST B. BENSON

Dean Ernest B. Benson, 62, of 15 Fleet Parkway, Culver, died at 12:30 p.m. Friday, February 22, 1974 at the Culver Military Academy Dining Hall of a sudden heart seizure.

Dean Benson was born July 10, 1911 in Dorchester, Massachusetts to Birger and Hulda Benson. He came to Culver in 1936.

A graduate of Dorchester High School, he earned his A.B. and M.A. degrees from Boston University, the Master of Education degree from Harvard, and did post-graduate work at UCLA and Penn State University. An Augustus Howe Buck scholar and fellow at Boston University, he graduated with distinction and honor with a major in Biology.

He came to the Culver Military Academy as an assistant instructor of science, and rose to serve Culver as acting Superintendent in 1956 and 1969-70. Other duties in his ago, and this process too is accelerating. Pubescent children mutilate and even murder one another in junior high school corridors; hordes of pink-cheeked youngsters are 'wised up' overnight with acid, junk and pot; epidemics of vicious rape and murderous muggings break out anew in cities and towns; families disintegrate; thousands of half-grown but unattended children roam around the country, prey to the ever-increasing packs of prehistoric predators lurking everywhere. What we once called liberty has become license for deteriorating man to act out every imaginable, unspeakable impulse or television suggestion—providing only that it will gratify even for a moment any one of our thickening senses. "The center cannot hold," and the flimsy edifice of culture caves in upon us all.

Into such chaos and through its inevitable debris will surely gallop that White Knight who will instantly perceive that man is already herding himself into two distinct camps—one consisting of wild beasts, the other of bewildered but docile sheep. At that point the solution is obvious. The Orwellian hero will have only to rally the sheep with the rod and with a column of bulldozers push the cornered beasts into quarries or pits of fire and cover them up. Then, at last, we shall have that peace and blessed security our self-serving politicians and other con artists have taught us to yearn for above all else and to expect in our time. And those tantalizing dreams we conjure up around such electric words as 'liberty' and 'democracy' will not appear again to trouble our slumber for another twenty-four-hundred years.

Set in a European medical institution during the 1950's, the play involves three mentally deranged physicists who believe themselves in two cases to be Einstein and Newton and in the third to be being constantly visited by King Solomon. All three are involved in promiscuous murder and international conspiracy.

Other parts are played by Pete Bromley, Art Gathart, Tom Swisher, Dan McClure, Dave Hummer, Joe Peck, Jeff Tomkins, Arnie Reilly, Bob Chalmers, Egan Matthews, Julie Hill, Brock Buckstanz, LaDarnell Murray, Mike Quisic and faculty member Robert P. Pils.

"The Physicists" is produced by James Fegan, director of Theatre, with artistic effects and make-up by Gordon Uetshrowsky of the local longshore department. Scenery was designed and built by cadet Mark Swisher with the assistance of Lance Nee, Tom Swisher and John Bromley.

Conversation With A Citizen

Monterey was honored last week by the visit of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Left Hand Bull, full blooded Sioux Indians, who presented a program to the community about their work and lives.

The visitors were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Stuntz of Walkerton, operators of the Stuntz Pine Forests in Walkerton and Monterey.

The meeting, sponsored by the Monterey Lions Club, was open to the public, and attracted over 70 persons of all ages.

This program came about as a result of a growing friendship between Mr. and Mrs. Stuntz and Mr. and Mrs. Left Hand Bull. Their first meeting came about last summer, when the Stuntzes visited the Rose Bud Reservation near St. Francis, South Dakota.

That visit and the enjoyable time prompted Mr. and Mrs. Stuntz to invite their new friends to Indiana. As a result, Mr. and Mrs. Left Hand Bull have left the reservation for the first time in their lives, and have come to Northern Indiana for a visit.

Robert Left Hand Bull is the chief of his Sioux tribe, and both he and his wife, Rouvena, are full-blooded Sioux.

The program included color slides taken by Mr. Stuntz during his visit to the reservation and the displaying of Indian handcraft items, including exquisite bead work by Mrs. Left Hand Bull.

Some Indian artifacts found on the Stuntz plantation were also shown and explained by Mr. Stuntz.

Chief Left Hand Bull, making his first-ever public speech, consented to talk with the group. Even the youngest children paid strict attention as he talked briefly about many aspects of his life.

It was noted that the Rose Bud Reservation is only about 50 miles from the village of Wounded Knee, where armed members of the American Indian Movement (A.I.M.) took over a town some months ago. The Chief commented that none of these persons was a full-blooded Indian, and he did not believe any of them were natives of South Dakota. The result, he said, hurt the Indian cause in South Dakota.

The pictures showed many beautiful things. Yet there was also ample proof that the American Indian generally lives in deplorable conditions and in economic squalor, through no fault of these people.

Those who attended this interesting program are better for having met and talked with Chief Robert and Rouvena Left Hand Bull, and were given much food for thought.

relative term, and must be measured in each case by the service to be furnished. It connotes a lack of resources which, in the light of everyday practicalities, prevents the employment of competent counsel."

However, cash on hand is not the only test of poverty. In another case, a man charged with drunk driving had just $50 in his bank account. But he also had a steady job, two cars, and an equity in a house.

Rejecting his demand for free counsel, the court said "it stretches the imagination" to think he could not find a private attorney ready, willing, and able to take his case.

"The Constitution does not require," added a federal court, "that gratuitous services should be extended to persons who can afford to pay."

Suppose the accused himself is broke but has friends or relatives with money. In most cases, that won't matter. Thus:

A college student, arrested on a charge of theft, had no financial resources. He did have a married sister who could afford to hire a lawyer for him, but she refused to do so.

The court thereupon decided that the student was entitled to have a government-paid attorney. The court reasoned that money in someone else's pocket did not make him any richer.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Proving Poverty

How poor does an accused person have to be in order to qualify for free legal counsel? This question is arising more frequently, now that the courts have broadened the rights of the indigent to have a lawyer provided at government expense.

To begin with, he need not be absolutely penniless. Take the case of a man arrested on a felony charge. He had $100 in cash, but no other assets or income of any kind. A court ruled that he was entitled to have a lawyer appointed for him.

"It is not necessary that an accused person be utterly destitute," said one judge. "Indigence is a

TOLL-FREE PHONE SERVICE FOR HOOSIER CONSUMERS

The Consumer Protection Division of the state's Attorney General's office has established a toll-free telephone service to accept incoming calls from Indiana citizens anywhere in the state. While the agency can only act on the basis of written complaints under the law, this telephone service is a means for any citizen to get immediate consumer information from the official state agency.

This toll-free number is 800-382-5516 and should be used by anyone in Indiana beyond the Indianapolis metropolitan area. An operator will answer calls at this number each day that the State House is open Monday through Friday from 8:15 a.m. to 4:45 p.m., Indianapolis time.

FORMER JUNIOR HIGH TEACHER IS PUBLISHED

Mrs. Leah Gunderson, former Junior High English and P.E. Instructor, has written an article that has been published in the January edition of "The Instructor" magazine. "The Instructor" is an educational magazine with national circulation. The article is entitled, "Don't Help Me - I'm Falling!" Mrs. Gunderson tells in the article about teaching children at Culver Junior High about the correct way to fall in P.E. classes.

Following is a reprint of the article:

DON'T HELP ME-I'M FALLING
 How many times have you warned a child, "Be careful, Don't fall! You'll hurt yourself"? And how many times have you introduced an activity and heard a child say, "I can't!" before even trying?

According to Leah Gunderson, adult fears can have an inhibiting effect when transferred to children, limiting their learning abilities and helping them to develop negative self-concepts. While teaching physical education at Culver Junior High School, Culver, Indiana, Ms. Gunderson discovered that for many children, falling is synonymous with failure, when in fact it can be a learning experience.

She recommends teaching children to fall "correctly" - relaxing and rolling with the momentum, as professional athletes do. Children are encouraged to explore, take a chance, and try the limits of their physical beings. Let falling be a challenge!

Reprinted from INSTRUCTOR, copyright January 1974, The Instructor Publications, Inc., used by permission.

The Junior High School has a copy of "The Instructor" in its library and Teacher's Enrichment Center. Mrs. Gunderson returned to Culver for a visit January 19th. She is now teaching at Lowell.

FIDDLING AROUND IN LAPORTE

We were taken by friends this past weekend to LaPorte to view the current production of the LaPorte Little Theatre Club, "Fiddler on the Roof."

The community group produces three shows a season in their own facility, a converted church over a hundred years old.

Despite limitations in the stage size and illness that forced a volunteer substitute in the role of Tzeitel literally hours before curtain, the performance contained all of the zest and warmth that the story demands.

The sell-out house greatly enjoyed performances by Rich Wagner as Tevye and Carmen Arnold as Golde, his wife.

The whole cast was well-balanced, although most are probably amateurs, and helped sustain the lengthy performance. The director, Ed Casio, combined the efforts of the large cast and technical crew with skill and understanding.

One note of interest is that Carl Casio, the last-minute substitute for ailing Lynn Grove as Tzeitel, did remarkably well even though she had not prepared as an understudy.

The LaPorte Little Theatre Club deserves the interest of area residents. The theatre is only a short drive away, and prices are moderate. "Fiddler" will play March 1st, 2nd and 3rd.

The third and final production for the season will be "Butterflies Are Free" on April 27th and 28th and May 4th and 5th.

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN'S "PATIENCE" IN VALPARAISO THIS WEEKEND

Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera, "Patience," will be presented by the Valparaiso University Opera Workshop tonight, February 28th, March 2nd and 3rd, at the Valparaiso High School on North Campbell Street. The February 28th and March 2nd performances will begin at 8:15 p.m., with a matinee scheduled for March 3rd at 3:00 p.m.

One of the lesser known operas by Gilbert and Sullivan, "Patience" is a score of top calibre with a very humorous play. The opera was meant to be a satire on Oscar Wilde and other English poets of his day, who treated poetry as if it were something sacred instead of one of the arts.

The story is about the poet, Bunthorne, who has entranced all of the eligible ladies of the village, which is not at all appreciated by the soldiers who are stationed nearby. Bunthorne is in love with Patience, the village milkmaid who does not share his affection. The whole story is changed when another poet, named Grosvenor, appears on the scene.

Lead parts in the cast of the comic opera are Lynn Slifer and Barbara Maly as Patience; Bryan Borg portrays Bunthorne; Joanne McAlpine as Ella; Lisa Genuit as Saphir; and Kathleen Keske as Angela.

John Cleveland portrays the Colonel; Pantelis Peronis, the Major; Mark Vail as the Duke; Paul Krafzig and Daniel Rengstorf as Grosvenor; and Suzanne Brimacombe as Jane. There will be a chorus of 16 singing the parts of Maidens and the Dragons.

The production will be accompanied by the VU Chamber Orchestra, directed by Prof. John Sumrall. Stage director is Dr. Claire Hardgrove, and Richard Pick is co-ordinator of the scenic design, both from the Speech and Drama Department. The entire production is under the supervision of Prof. Joseph McCall, director of the Opera Workshop.

Tickets are available at $2.50 for adults, $1.00 for VU faculty and students, and 50¢ each for student groups of twenty or more. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Irma Hoeltj-Nickel of the VU Music Department, 462-5111, extension 460.

HARD AT WORK—Shown rehearsing for the Gilbert and Sullivan opera "Patience," to be performed by the Valparaiso University Opera Workshop at Valparaiso High School, 2727 North Campbell Street, on February 28th, March 2nd and 3rd, are from left to right, baritone Bryan Borg, a senior from Valparaiso, who portrays the poet Bunthorne, and Greg Denson as a solicitor, a junior from Rockville, Connecticut. Performances will be held at 8:15 p.m. on February 28th and March 2nd, and at 3:00 p.m. on March 3rd.

YES, VIRGINIA...

Culver Postmaster E. Wayne Mattos recently reported an incident that can only be classified as a "minor miracle" in this impersonal age of computers and automation.

A local post patron reported that a bank withdrawal of $115, held together with a paper clip, had gotten mixed up in some letters and dropped in a mailbox by mistake.

Under the new postal service system, the boxes in Culver are emptied and sent to South Bend before their contents are sorted. The money made the trek to South Bend, took a trip through the new processing system there...and returned! Seems somebody up there figured that a pile of money in the mail was a little unusual.

Do you suppose it came back postage due? In all seriousness, this story had a very happy ending for the owner of that money, and it's nice to know that many honest people still walk the earth.

WILL COMPETE FOR SCHOLARSHIP

Miss Debbie Bernhardt, of 2548 East Shore Lane, Culver, was recently invited to participate in the Michigan State University Alumni Distinguished Scholarship competition. Some twelve hundred of the top high school seniors from throughout the United States were present at Michigan State University in February for the event.

Miss Bernhardt, a senior at Culver Community High School, was extended the invitation as a result of her outstanding performance on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test in which she has now been declared a finalist, and for her performance at Culver Community High School. Finalist standing in the NMSQT competition is attained by only 1/2 of one per cent of the college-bound high school seniors nationwide.

Michigan State University of Lansing, the first land grant college, has an outstanding Honors program for the academically talented. If she elects to attend MSU, as a freshman she will have many unique options, including enrollment in classes and seminars at any grade level. She may design her own program of studies from among the many undergraduate and graduate offerings.

LETTERS

To The Culver Citizen:

I would like to suggest a project for COPAD to work toward. It is to make the alley between East Jefferson and East Madison and between South Main Street and South Ohio a one-way street going north only. Then a "collecting mail box" could be placed on the east side of the P.O. lot (they might need to take from 3 to 6 ft. off the east side of the Post Office lot) and people could drive up and put mail in from the driver's side. The situation or location of collecting boxes now are not convenient; you usually have to get out of your car to put in mail. As I looked at the alley one or two people might need moving.

Several towns have this sort of alley arrangement; the nearest one I remember is Warsaw.

Thank you,
J. Dick Newman

Puppet Project Planned For Library

LIBRARY PUPPET SHOW

At a recent meeting, the Culver Library Board approved a request to reactivate the stage in the lower floor of the library to use in producing a puppet play for community children.

The play will be experimental, designed to measure interest of volunteer help to continue the project on a seasonal basis with a regular schedule of plays.

Volunteers are now needed to prepare a show for premiere some time in late April. The production may be for hand puppets, although it is desired to stage a full marionette show, if enough help can be obtained.

Supervising the project will be Tom and Bernie Zoss, who are former members of the Puck Players of Bloomington. This group has produced a full season of puppet plays for several years at the Monroe County Library. Zoss headed that group's Marionette Opera Project, a touring troupe of puppeteers who present opera in English. That project was underwritten by the Indiana Arts Commission, utilizing funds of the National Endowment for the Arts.

Persons interested in participating—as speakers, costumers (sewing), puppeteers or in any other role are urged to call the library or Tom or Bernie Zoss at 842-2598.

A full size stage for either type of production is already available, and following the authorization of the Library Board, the library stage will soon be cleared and the red velvet curtains re-hung in that facility.

Call now and join the fun!

THESE CULVER PUPPETS are waiting in line for tryouts for a free show at the Public Library this Spring! The line for big-person volunteers is not nearly as long, and you are invited to join the group. See story to left.

TRITON TO PRESENT "ONCE UPON A MATTRESS"

Triton's Choral Department, under the direction of Mr. Donald Dowdy, is hard at work preparing the story of "The Princess and the Pea." The story takes place in the Triton auditorium March 22nd and 23rd. But can she pass the Queen's "Sensitivity" test?

Tickets may be purchased in advance from all cast members or at the school office. Seats in the lower area of the auditorium are reserved—get your choice of seats by advance purchase. Balcony seats are not reserved and may be purchased at the door.

The Tahiti Nui dance group presents beautiful girls with their island partners performing traditional island dances as well as more sophisticated, dynamic rituals. The Raro-Tongan group exhibits an enthusiasm and coordinated teamwork that stuns audiences with their cheerful precision and breath-taking pace.

The presentation, part of Culver's Concert Theater series, is open to the public, and tickets may be ordered through Harvey Firari, director of theater. Tickets also may be purchased at the door before curtain time.

UNDERWATER RECOVERY UNIT PLANS UNDERWAY

An informational and organizational meeting has been called for Saturday, March 2nd, at 2:00 p.m. at the Eagles Lodge for the purpose of planning a Marshall County Underwater Recovery Unit.

The organizers are looking for 20 people, preferably from Marshall County law enforcement and fire groups, to receive training through the cooperation of the Culver Academies in the use of their new pool, and with the teaching aid of Red Cross licensed instructors Bill and Nancy Smith of Elkhart. The volunteers will pay their own costs for instructions.

JUNIOR WOMEN CONTINUE WORK ON PROJECTS

The Maxinkuckee Junior Women's Club met Monday evening in the home of Mrs. Richard Balkema and completed plans for the replacement of equipment at the town park. It was announced by Mrs. William Epley III that 3 kiddie swings, a bicycle rack, and the repair of the merry-go-round and seesaws have been planned for the park and members then voted to paint the other recreational items and to continue the club flower beds at the park this year.

Mrs. Roy Shepard, glass recycling chairman, announced that the National Guard had picked up 20 barrels of glass for shipment to the glass factory in Marion and that Leon Bennett had donated his time and equipment in loading the barrels onto the trucks.

Mrs. Dennis Westfater, home life chairman, noted the new federal regulations on baby cribs and discussed the safety measures that should be taken if an old crib is used.

The club will be looking for an entry in the county Music Contest to be held March 10th. High school juniors and seniors are eligible and the winners will compete in the District contest. Winners of this contest receive an expense paid one-week summer workshop at a university.

The meeting was closed and refreshments were served by Mrs. Norman Dumaine and Mrs. Lance Overmyer.
