Ag makes a comeback at CCHS

Newly returned Ag classes, FFA a hit with Culver Community students

By Jeff Kenney
Citizen editor

It's been several years since Culver Community High School has offered either an Agriculture class or an opportunity for students to be active in a local chapter of Future Farmers of America, but arguably there's never been a more opportune time to do so, and the school has seized that opportunity.

Ag classes are underway at Culver Comm. Middle and High Schools, under the tutelage of April Leeper, who comes to the school corporation after two and a half years teaching the subject at Triton (she's also a nearby resident, living just outside Argos, and a former employee of Culver Elementary, a while back).

Ag classes -- like FFA -- were part of CCHS during the 1980s and into the '90s, but more recently Culver students wishing to avail themselves of Ag classes had to trek to Argos, whose school shared the program with Culver.

CCHS and CCMS principal Brett Berndt says the push for Ag at the school came more from the superintendent and board side of things as at least a possibility last year. A survey was sent to the middle and high schools and a "very good response" came back.

The program also flows nicely with the end of the school's in-house offerings in the area of industrial technology last year. That specific set of needs is being met more and more in recent years by various vocational programs in which Culver Community Schools participate, says Berndt, such as welding, auto tech, and building trades (the former two are located at other schools but offered through the multi-school cooperative to which Culver belongs; the latter is also part of a cooperative offering but has been based in Culver for more than three decades now).

These classes, alongside the Ag program and other shifts in approach within the school corporation, reflect an increasing diversi-

Plan commission passes on fence removal request

By Jeff Kenney
Citizen editor

If the pun can be pardoned, the municipal entities two Culver property owners have appealed to seem to have little recourse but to be "on the fence," so far, regarding a solution to a dispute involving lake view, access, and a contested privacy fence erected by a neighbor.

Arnie and Cathy Kiran of Winfield Street had been previously directed by Culver's town council to appeal to the Culver plan commission at its regular monthly meeting Aug. 18, which they did, though members of the commission, in the end, said there was nothing they could do about the matter, even if they were sympathetic to the problem.

At issue is a privacy fence erected in the back yard of Matt Grant, a yard adjacent to the Kirans' property. Debated, however, is whether the fence actually blocks part of the front yard of the Kiran land, or otherwise. What is not disputed is that the fence blocks the Kirans' view of the lake.

That, in and of itself, appears to be no ordinance violation, though the Kirans argue it should be, since Marshall County based its most recent property value assessment of their property on the notion that the Kirans' is a "lakefront" property.

A 12-foot strip of land owned by the Kirans indeed faces Lake Maxinkuckee, though it was debated whether the rest of the configuration of the property actually faces Winfield Street (which means Grant's fence is not an obstruction of the Kirans' front yard area) or is lakefront proper (which would raise doubts as to the legality of the fence).

Arnie Kiran told the plan commission that Grant previously told mutual neighbor Cory Frank that he (Grant) would remove the privacy fence if Kiran removed a camper on the Kiran property, which he did (Kiran also noted Frank's view of the lake is obstructed by the fence as well).

Grant, however, did not remove the fence following removal of the camper, according to Kiran.

Kiran also suggested Culver building commissioner Russ Mason could have attempted to intervene in the situation.

Free entrance to Culver Comm. sports events part of effort to bring students together

By Jeff Kenney
Citizen editor

Culver Community Schools students wishing to attend high school athletic events this year need no longer pay an entrance fee, following a decision made this past summer which went into effect officially at the beginning of the school year.

Culver Community High and Middle School athletic director (and assistant principal) Luke Biernacki said the move came following last year's longstanding "Bell Game" between Argos and CCHS, always a draw for fans wishing to cheer on their team in the ongoing rivalry.

"When we looked at our student fan-base and saw the environment (at that game), we wanted to create that type of environment over-all," says Biernacki, speaking of dialog which took place between himself and the school's athletic secretary, Tammy Shedrow, as well as CCHS principal Brett Berndt. "We thought, 'How do we increase student excitement for our athletes?'"

The change, of course, also "helps students who may not have been able to get in before," due to financial constraints, adds Biernacki. "So one of our goals this year is getting more students into those gates to see what we have going on here."

The standard fee for athletic event entry in the past was $2 per person, notes Biernacki, who says the school will "crunch certain numbers after this season and keep records of how many students enter the gates. We took a look before the season at how much of a hit we would take. You balance that with, 'Are we getting more students in? Are we creating a buzz?' We'll take a look at the end of the year and make sure it's economically feasible."

Berndt points out that students may spend more money at the concession stand as a result of the savings at the gate, "So hopefully we will make (the money) up somewhere else."

"Eventually," he adds, "We're hoping it's not just the students but their parents who attend, and that this extends an invitation to the whole community."

"I think that's the neatest thing about athletics," says Berndt. "It's not just the athletes; its other students, too, so it's a family, 'all in' feeling that helps unify the school." "We're really excited about it," concurs Biernacki. "We haven't even made a big announcement yet, but hearing from community members -- and I think it was men-

Culver Community Schools athletic director Luke Biernacki, in discussing the school's athletic programs, also calls attention to the efforts of CCHS cheerleading coach Robin Harris, who started last year.

"She did a phenomenal job of promoting the school," he says. "That's one of our goals."

Harris, says Biernacki, is "always thinking of new ways to help the school. She spends a tremendous amount of her time doing in recent years at the state level in Indiana, which is increasingly more oriented to competition for student attendance.

With school choice allowing students to choose which school to attend -- and a voucher program which allows state dollars to send students to private schools -- it's all the more important for Culver to "offer something (like Ag) when, if you don't, it makes it easier for families to choose to go to another schools. We might have been one of the few (in the area) that did not offer Ag, so hopefully that will keep (students) coming to us," says Berndt.

The search for an instructor was such that Ag classes were just being promoted on the first day of school. "She came on board pretty much at the last minute," acknowledges Berndt. "We didn't know if we'd have an instructor for it," though once the word got out, there was a "great response" from students.

"We were very lucky to grab someone like April with experience teaching this," he adds. "We're very pleased that she was with us at some other time (at Culver Elementary), so we knew of her."

In addition, many students knew Leeper from the county's 4H program, so some were already familiar with her. "She came in gung ho and she's getting the program where she wanted it, so she is doing excellent," Berndt says.

Among offerings Leeper teachers are Intro to Ag, Plant and Soil Science, Ag Power -- which is oriented more towards welding and small engine construction -- and Ag Business Management, which centers on starting one's own business. Leeper says next year she hopes to add Animal Science to the mix.

It's all indicative of the way agriculture itself has changed, and is now far removed from simply tilling one's soil and planting/harvesting. In fact, a concentration in agriculture as a career may well mean earning a college degree nowadays.

"We're really science based," explains Leeper, "and then a good 80 percent of jobs deal with agriculture in some way, whether in grocery stores or dealing with food handling or plants. Then there's the tech side, such as knowing the GPS on tractors -- even planters have evolved into digital, mostly. You don't just fix a tractor with tools now; you do it with a computer. Veterinary science is another big one. There's mechanics in general. A lot of schools don't have hands-on classes, so even the welding concepts are there. Then there's just farming in general. If you want to go into farming you need college because of the technology. There's so much more to it now with fertilizers, pest control -- and you have the market side, too."

All CCMS 8th graders take Intro to Ag, and animal and plant science follows.

"Then you can build on that and go whichever pathway you want to go on."

Leeper is also hoping next year to add college credit courses.

"The response has gone very well," says Leeper. "I have a lot of kids and most classes we didn't offer until the first day of school."

The return of FFA to the school, also under Leeper's leadership, has been a hit as well. An extracurricular activity, FFA members can work their way up to state and national-level competitions and leadership contests.

"Hopefully we will raise some funds so everyone can get their blue jackets and go on trips and to camps," says Leeper, noting around 40 students have already turned in their paperwork, in addition to some 15 8th graders.

"I'm excited to be here and that the program is doing so well so early," Leeper says. "I just hope that it keeps growing."

"We're excited to have the program and I think it's doing very well," says Berndt. "We have the right instructor (and we) feel the community is getting behind the program. We had a donation from community members at our last board meeting."

In a somewhat similar vein, CCHS has launched its Project Lead the Way classes in Engineering this semester as well, with former Culver Middle School principal George Irvin as teacher.

PLtW is a multi-county endeavor to encourage schools to offer courses with the area of STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math) curricula, in order to ensure a ready workforce for economic development in line with national and statewide standards within those industries.

Substantial funding to help get those courses underway came by way of the Culver Redevelopment Commission, earlier this year.

Overall, Berndt and assistant principal Luke Biernacki say the 2015-16 school year is off to a great start, even if it's a week earlier one due to the school adopting a form of the new Balanced Calendar this year.

"The new teachers are doing well adapting and fitting into the Culver Community climate," Berndt says. "We're so pleased with the start of the school year. And I think the initial effect of the balanced calendar has worn off and the students are back in school mode."

Great putting beats long drives most of the time

Chris Tilbury
PGA
Plymouth Country Club

Have you ever heard of the saying, "Drive for show and putt for dough." It is truly amazing to me how many reports have come out after the PGA Championship about how short Jordan Speith hits his driver. This has not changed on his rise to world number 1, but if you have watched him play it is amazing how many "must make" putts that he makes.

We have all played in the group where there is this experienced golfer that hits the golf ball not very far, but always down the middle. It may take him a shot or two more than regulation to get the ball on the green, but once it is there you can almost guarantee that he is going to make it. If you want to drive your opponent's nuts then work on chipping and putting. Nothing makes a golfer more upset than believing that you have won the hole only to have your opponent hit a wonderful shot to tie the hole.

One thing that you realize very quickly is how accurate Jordan is with his speed control. The golf ball typically is traveling the same speed as it approaches the hole each time. For Jordan the ball typically rolls only a couple of feet past the hole. This allows him to have the ball roll in the cup from many different angles, but he must play more break then some of the other players on tour. Opposite of Jordan would be Tiger Woods. Tiger tends to hit most putts very straight but also very firm.

The first lesson that I go through on putting is creating constant contact every time you putt. You may think this is simple, but when we are talking about the small room for error on every putt, it is important that contact is the same. If the contact is not very consistent, then the speed in which the ball comes of the face is inconsistent, making it very difficult to hit the putt on the proper line with the correct speed.

After we discuss how to make consistent contact we find out how aggressive you can be when you putt. This is totally a personal preference, but one thing is you cannot change the way you putt depending on the putt. There are two questions you must ask yourself: Are you willing to three putt to make more putts? Are you okay with leaving a putt short to

Margaret E. ‘Meg’ Bracken

Jan. 13, 1925 - July 18, 2015

FRANKFORT — Margaret E. “Meg” Bracken, 90, of Frankfort, passed away peacefully Saturday, July 18, 2015, at her home watching the beautiful wildlife outside her window.

She was born Jan. 13, 1925, in Barre, Vt., to Thomas B. and Elizabeth McGregor Emslie. On Oct. 23, 1949, she married Robert Bracken in Montpelier, Vt.; he preceded her in death on Jan. 6, 2013.

Meg graduated from Spaulding High School, and attended both Vermont Junior College and Faulkner Hospital School of Nursing where she served as a cadet nurse until the end of World War II. She was a Registered Nurse and taught Nursing Arts in Boston and later at Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis. Meg was an avid knitter and taught at the Knit Wit Shop. She was a member of First Evangelical Presbyterian Church in Frankfort where she was a Sunday school teacher and a small group participant, Friend of the Library member, Tri Kappa member, member of Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra Women’s Committee Clinton County Chapter, Meals on Wheels volunteer, Red Hat Society member, and founder of the Pink Ladies where she still actively participated; she continued to help sew puppets that are given to hospitalized children. Meg and her cat, Foxy Longfellow, enjoyed many days together.

Surviving are two children, Robert E. Bracken (George Applegate) of Santa Monica, Calif., and Sarah (Brett) Porter of Frankfort; one granddaughter, Megan Porter of St. Louis, Mo.; one niece, two nephews, two great-nieces, and several cousins in Scotland and New Zealand.

In addition to her husband, Meg is preceded in death by her parents and one sister, Sheila Mandel.

Visitation for Meg was on Thursday, July 23, 2015, at Genda Funeral Home in Frankfort, from 4 – 7 p.m. Funeral service to honor Meg began at 11 a.m. on Friday, July 24, 2015, at the funeral home with Pastor Paul Copeland officiating. Burial followed in Green Lawn Cemetery. Online condolences may be directed to www.gendafuneralhome.com.

60th wedding anniversary

John and Sandra Middleton of Culver will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary this month. They were united in marriage on Sept. 10, 1955 at the Grace United Church of Christ, where they are still members. They graduated together from Culver High School in 1954, and are both graduates of Purdue University.

John is a civil engineer and worked in South Bend for 49 years. Sandy taught 3rd grade at the Culver Elementary School for 28 years.

They have two daughters, Dr. Susan (Rick) White of West Lafayette, and Dr. Kathy (Tim) Lynch of Fort Wayne. They have been blessed with five grandchildren. A family dinner is being planned to celebrate.

Letter to the editor

Thanks to Culver police

I jumped from bed to answer it before they hang up. The voice says, "Timmy, this is Chad Becker with the Police Department. Your boat is uncovered, compartments are all opened and it is making noise."

It is very unlike my father to leave the boat uncovered. I run down to the boat and meet Chad we walk to the boat and I jump in it nothing is missing or out of place. We close up all the compartments and deem that no wrong doing had been done. I think it is fantastic that we have a police force that is out there taking time to look over all 150 boats docked at the town piers. They can call a resident and know them by a first name basis.

Thanks Culver PD.

Plan commission president Barry McManaway noted Marshall County considers the Kiran property one property because both its lake access and street side portions have the same owner, though the town of Culver does not, since the property occupies two town lots .

"Looking at the ordinance," said McManaway, "the property owner who put the fence up was well within his rights, and Russ (Mason) was well within his job when he gave the permit. It's not required to notify your neighbors (of a privacy fence being erected). The sad part is, you have a very particular lot, the same as your neighbor, and it causes a problem. So I understand completely."

Much of the debate clearly circled back around to the question of what constituted Kiran's front and back yard, since town ordinance forbids erecting a fence which blocks a neighbor's front yard.

"Every zone has a front yard," said McManaway, in response to Frank's questioning how a given property can have "two front yards." "You consider the front as access to your house on the residential side. But if you're (zoned) L1, the lake side is your front yard.

"It's common sense you don't have two front yards," he added. "You want me to fix a problem with your property, but it's not a problem with (Grant's) property. He has lake-front property, and he has everything within zoning (laws) to get a fence."

McManaway also concurred with other plan commission members that it was unfortunate the neighbors could not "get along" towards a compromise on the matter, though he reiterated that Grant's fence, as of now, was handled properly within Culver zoning laws, thus preventing the commission from taking action on the matter.

Some sought to differentiate between the legality of lake access versus the right to a lake view, asserting one does not necessarily constitute the other.

"It's clear where (the Kiran and Frank) front yard is," said Plan commission member Wayne Bean. "You have property that has access to the lake -- not that you can build on the lake, even though its L1-based property. But you could not build a house on the lake because you have (only) a strip. It's access to the lake."

In the end, commission members were unanimous that the fence was erected legally according to town ordinance, and it was noted that a formal vote to that effect cleared the way for the Kirans to seek an alternate direction in forcing removal of part of the fence.

"I'm sorry we couldn't do anything for you," said McManaway of the commission's vote. "We really don't have any legal standings to do this (and) even if we changed the ordinance to help you out, the fence would be grandfathered in. There's not a legal leg to stand on."

New permit fees

A public hearing is hoped for in October regarding restructuring of Culver's building permit fees to line up with a request from Marshall County to do so, primarily to compensate for the costs associated with county inspectors' visits to Culver for inspections.

Russ Mason said a flat $50 fee is paid to Marshall County for each permit in Culver, which the county says it can no longer afford. The proposed fee changes for Culver would incorporate the same fees Marshall County levies throughout the rest of the county now. New Culver rates would add Culver's own inspection costs on top of new county fees, "so we don't go negative" (fiscally), said Mason.

One proposed model would see fees jump to $70,000 in the case of a recent dorm remodel project at Culver Academies, it was noted. Part of the fee increase, said Leist, would help fund a single person qualified to handle the more complex inspections now handled by the county, as well as the simpler permits handled now within the town by Mason alone.

Some plan commission members disagreed with the notion of moving towards that single employee model for inspections.

"I don't feel our level of business would ever justify one position to do it all," said commission member Ralph Winters, pushing instead to maintain the current combination of local inspector with a qualified inspector at the county level as needed.

McManaway said consideration of a single employee to handle both is related to hopes of future growth and more annexation for Culver.

A committee was formed to look into the matter, though it was agreed time is of the essence, since the new fee structure will go into effect at the county level at the new year. It was hoped a public hearing could take place regarding Culver's fee structure sometime in October.

In other discussion, Kathy Clark of the Culver Redevelopment Commission said the CRC had just made an offer to purchase a piece of South Main Street property currently zoned as residential, though the CRC hoped to tear down the house there and make the land into a parking lot to relieve multiple parking issues in downtown Culver.

Clark said it's hoped the land could yield 16 to 18 parking spots which will be "public parking for everyone," something McManaway acknowledged was "much needed."

The plan commission agreed the matter of rezoning the property should be revisited if the purchase is finalized.

Construction Management & Design, the company handling a Planned Unit Development project on State Road 10, will return to the commission with specifics on placement of an eight by two-foot, proposed sign for that development, dubbed Maple Ridge Estates.

Clark requested the sign be placed with the idea in mind that curbs and sidewalks may be added along State Road 10 in the coming few years, for added safety for pedestrians -- including students from Culver Academies -- walking to businesses along it, between Lake Shore Drive and School Street.

During his building commissioner's report, Mason also reported the PUD had applied for and received seven per-

Judson gives Cavs rude invitation to HNC

By Dee Grenert
Staff Writer

CULVER — Culver Community’s football team received a rather rude initiation into Hoosier North Conference play Friday.

First, the host Cavs lost senior quarterback Everett Krueger to injury during the game’s opening possession.

Then, new conference foe North Judson-San Pierre rolled up 287 rushing yards and surrendered just 89 yards of total offense en route to a 28-7 defeat of Culver at Cavalier Field in the opening game of the HNC’s inaugural season.

“It changes a lot of things,” Culver head coach Darren Rodriguez said of Krueger’s injury. “(Krueger) is the guy getting the reps in practice; the backups get reps, but not the quality reps. The two guys behind him are both sophomores, so they’re inexperienced. We were handcuffed.”

With the Cavs setting up shop in Bluejays turf, Krueger, who rushed for 20 yards in four tries and completed his only pass attempt, hurt his right shoulder on a carry with 5:57 left in the opening frame.

From there, Culver used three different quarterbacks — sophomore backups Tyler Hansel and Kia Riale, and senior Westin Bush.

“I put Westin Bush back there; he’s usually a wing,” Rodriguez, who also lost lineman Alecks McBee to a first-half shoulder injury, said. “He’s also a senior, and we knew he would control the game and give us some confidence. Emotionally, Everett is a senior and a leader, and you could see the deflation in our team when he went out. Hopefully, it’s just a bruise. It’s in the doctors’ hands now, and we just have to wait and see.”

Me a n - while, be- hind a big of- fensive line, senior full- back Jordan Schultz and senior quarterback Brice Wilde both crossed the goal line twice out of the Bluejays’ option offense.

Schultz, himself a 6-foot, 223-pound load, churned out 111 yards in 20 tries. He took an option hand-off and followed the left side of the line for a 5-yard scoring run — the game’s first tally — with 9:31 left in the opening half and tacked on a 10-yard touchdown blast to put the Jays up 21-7 at the third quarter’s 7:04 mark.

piled up 73 rushing yards in eight totes. With Cavs in the backfield, Wilde scrambled right and turned the corner for a 29-yard score and 14-0 North Judson edge with 7:34 left in the first half. He finished off the evening’s scoring with

Eagles start fast on way to win

Culver Military took advantage of some early mistakes to jump out to a 14-0 lead, then held on for a 27-19 victory over visiting Tippecanoe Valley at Oliver Field Friday night.

A bad snap on a punt led to a Ryan Hallenbeck 3-yard touchdown, and a blocked punt on the Vikings’ second possession set up another scoring drive as David Pumarejo punched one in from a yard out to put CMA up 14-0 at the first quarter break.

Hallenbeck scored again on a 21-yard pass from Michael Bocker in the second frame, and Bocker connected with Ethan Tinsley from 11 yards out for the Eagles’ final score in the third quarter.

Bocker finished 6-for-7 through the air for 94 yards and 2 TDs. He also had 36 yards rushing.

Culver police announce Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over campaign

Article provided

The Culver Police Department announced this week its participation in the national and statewide 2015 Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over enforcement mobilization occurring now through September 7, 2015.

Officers will join more than 250 state and local law enforcement agencies, and thousands more across the country, to conduct high-visibility patrols encouraging drivers against drinking and driving.

Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over is an annual enforcement effort supported by federal funding allocated to The Culver Police Department from the Traffic Safety division of the Indiana Criminal Justice Institute (ICJI). Officers will work overtime to conduct sobriety patrols around the clock.

According to ICJI, in 2014, there were 94 fatal alcohol-impaired collisions in Indiana. While this accounted for 13 percent of all fatal crashes, there was a 17 percent decrease in fatal alcohol collisions between 2013 and 2014.

Indiana law enforcement agencies have been actively involved in the Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over campaign for over 20 years.

For more information regarding the Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over enforcement mobilization campaign, please visit: www.nhtsa.gov/drivesober.

a 1-yard plunge with 5:42 left in the final stanza.

The previously-unaffiliated Bluejays, though, missed opportunities to secure an even larger cushion with 115 penalty yards, 85 in the first half alone.

Culver made its only dent in the scoring column as time expired in the first half. Hansel twice looked for junior tight end Josh Krsek down the middle, connecting the second time for a 22-yard touchdown toss. Derek Keller knocked in the extra point to pull the Cavs within seven, 14-7 at the intermission.

“We knew (the Bluejays) were playing man and the safeties were worried about our 1 and 2, so we thought we’d sneak our 3 down the middle if the safeties stayed outside,” Rodriguez said. “For Tyler it was just watching safeties; if they stayed outside look down the middle, if they pinched toward the middle look to the outside.

“We thought the first time had Josh jumped that he might have been able to make the catch, but he waited for it to come down to him,” he added. “The second time he made a really nice catch, over the shoulder, just a great play.”

The Cavs recovered an onside kick to open the second half, but North Judson stymied the ensuing drive. In fact, the Bluejays held Culver to negative 6 yards of total offense in the second half.

Culver heads to South Central (Union Mills) for its lone non-conference skirmish of the regular season Friday, while North Judson heads home for a league bout with Caston.

Do you have COPD ? Integrity Medical Center Can Help!

24 million people live with chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD for short) in the US. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), it was the 3rd leading cause of death in the United States in 2011. In the US, 1 person dies from COPD every 4 minutes.

COPD is an umbrella term describing progressive lung diseases that block airflow and make breathing difficult as if breathing through a straw in severe cases.

Two of the most common diseases under the COPD umbrella are emphysema and chronic bronchitis. Emphysema occurs when the air sacs at the end of the smallest passages in the lungs are gradually destroyed. Chronic bronchitis, is an inflammation of the lining of the bronchial tubes that carry air to and from your lungs.

Smoking is the leading cause of COPD but it is not the only cause. secondhand smoke, exposure to occupational dust and chemicals, air pollution, and genetic factors can cause COPD as well.

- If you have any of the following ,you may have COPD
- Hard to breath ,especially while walking .
 - Smokers cough, chronic cough with sputum production
 - Wheezing
 - Chest tightness
 - Lack of energy
 - Weight loss
 - Frequent upper respiratory infections such as bronchitis
 - Bluish lips an fingernail beds due to lack of oxygen supply

Symptoms of COPD often do not appear until significant damage has occurred, and they usually worsen over time. Damage to the lungs from COPD is not reversible, but with the right treatment can help control symptoms, minimize further damage, and improve quality of life, especially if diagnosed early.

Dr. Alhamwi and the staff at Integrity Medical Center understand the concerns and fears of living with COPD. If you are worried you are at risk for COPD or currently living with COPD, you are not alone.

At Integrity Medical Center, we are fully dedicated to early diagnosis and treatment of COPD, as well as long term COPD management in our community and beyond. The test for COPD is provided in the office of Integrity Medical Center at your convenience. Dr. Al-Hamwi will spend quality time with you to create a specific plan of care that includes the best treatments available based on your personal health goals.

One major endeavor was the decoration of the middle and high school buildings for the first day of school with “welcome back” banners and “at least 50 inspirational quotes,” says Biernacki.

It’s not the sort of project one necessarily associates with cheerleading, though it reflects a broader interpretation of the notion of “cheering on” one’s school.

“Cheerleading is inherently an altruistic sport, whereby our goals are based on supporting and encouraging others as they strive to obtain theirs,” explains Harris. “Our ‘Welcome Back’ project was an extension of that philosophy. We recognized the transition to the balance school year may be difficult for some students. Our goal was to provide inspiration and encouragement to all students as they started a successful school year. We wanted each student to feel supported, not only by the cheerleaders, but also by the teachers and administration.”

Last year, in an attempt to show their support to all of the school’s athletes, the squad cheered not only at a few volleyball games but also at a soccer game as well, says Harris.

“I had quite a few volleyball players approach me and state they’ve never received support like that. We will continue the tradition this year and hope others will attend these games as well. Having free admission to games for Culver students should increase the spirit at all athletic events.”

In addition to its fund-raising initiatives for the season, Harris’ cheerleading squad -- whose co-coach this year is 2014 Culver Community High School grad Grace Lorenz -- has a goal to complete a few community service projects as well, she says.

“We hope to help the community that does such a great job supporting our athletes and student body.”

“We’re working with her and her squad to increase the students’ section at athletic events,” Biernacki says. “Her and her cheerleaders are doing a great job.”

That sentiment is reciprocated by Harris, who adds, “All of our events are possible only because of the wonderful administration at the high school. Mr. Biernacki is truly the school’s greatest cheerleader.”

tioned by the board -- that’s a good feeling...I think it will be worth it when you see the results.”

Those results, it’s hoped, could be not only more student attendance in the stands, but more students signing up to play on the fields.

All-season passes for all 2015-2016 home games at CCHS are available for adults for $75. Senior citizen entrance fees are $1 per game, with regular admission at $2. Any student enrolled in the Culver Community School Corporation, grades kindergarten through 12, may enter for games free.

The start of school this month also marks the beginning of play in the newly-formed Hoosier North Athletic Conference, made up of nine schools from six adjoining counties including (besides Culver) Caston, Knox, LaVille, North Judson-San Pierre, Pioneer, Triton, West Central, & Winamac.

The season started off on the right foot for CCHS, notes Biernacki, in last week’s soccer victory against Caston.

Biernacki explains some of the schools in the new conference are longtime competitors against Culver, but some will make for some interesting new matchups. Among reasons for the change, he says, were competitive balance and distance.

“Traveling to New Prairie or Jimtown, you’re getting pretty far out,” he says.

“Traveling an hour and a half on a weekday is not optimal. So (the new conference) helped a lot with our athletes.

“We’ll have some different traveling trophies...we’re creating new traditions with this conference.”

Among new faces at the helm of CCHS athletic teams are Melissa Garno, a second-year teacher at the school who helped coach middle school basketball last year and will coach cross country this year, bringing high school and collegiate experience to the table.

Tammy Shedrow, an experienced member of the corporation’s staff, is not only CCHS’ athletic secretary, but also will coach the girls’ basketball team this year, having been an assistant coach for the past five years and assisting for many years at the middle school level.

Shedrow, formerly Peters, was an “elite player for the Lady Cavs” during her high school years at CCHS as well, Biernacki points out, adding, “We are very excited to have her lead our Lady Cavs.”

Greer benefit planned at Mystic Hills Sept. 26

A benefit and chili cook-off will be held Saturday, Sept. 26 with a 9 a.m. shotgun start at Mystic Hills Golf Course in Culver, to raise funds for Culver resident Melanie Greer.

The cost is $50 per person. For the front nine there will be big cups, and the back nine regular cups. Bring your favorite chili for the annual Mystic Hills Chili Cookoff. All proceeds go directly to Melanie Greer, who was shot Aug. 1 , allegedly by her estranged husband, in her rural Culver home.

Another benefit event to assist her family is scheduled for Sat., Sept. 19, from 4 to 11:30 p.m. at the Knox VFW Post on State Road 35 (Heaton Street), in Knox. Tickets to that event are $9, or $6 for children 12 and under (children 5 and under are free). Those with questions may call 219-508-8892 or 574-207-5139. In addition, an online fund-raising page has been set up for Melanie Greer at www.gofundme.com/8z3kxvcm5.

Culver schools moving towards sale of former Monterey school building

The Culver Community School Corporation is moving toward sale of the former Monterey School building, according to our reporting partners at WKVI.com.

At the most recent school board meeting, board members affirmed outside interest in purchasing the property, though first the school must deem it no longer useful for its purpose, and remove it from debt. Towards that end, the board voted to hire attorney Dennis Otten of Bose McKinney & Evans, LLP at a cost of $5,000. Otten will also serve as the school corporation’s bond refinance council.

Otten gave a presentation to the board, explaining the price of $20,000 for the firm’s services; after Culver Community Schools superintendent Dr. Vicki McGuire said a competing quote was for $18,000, Otten agreed to match it, which predicated his hiring.

Monterey town council members chosen

Democratic voters in Monterey chose between four candidates to occupy the three seats open on the town council, with winners set to serve starting in January. A town convention was held earlier tis month, during which candidates Jim Fleury, Emily Baily and Doug Denton won the election (Denton will replace Chris Fox).

Since no Republican candidates filed for seats, the election determined the town council's makeup.

Library board applicants sought

Union Twp. trustee Jerry Greeson is seeking letters of interest from those willing to serve as a member of the Culver-Union Twp. board of trustees. Applicants must be residents of Union Township in order to qualify to serve. Questions or letters of interest may be directed to Jerry Greeson, 15995 St. Rd. 10, Culver, IN 46511, or by phone to 574-842-4260.

Friends of JACK JORDAN LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN

MARSHALL COUNTY - Republican Jack Jordan continues to launch his campaign for the Indiana House of Representative Seat, serving Marshall and Fulton Counties, during this summer parade season. The Liberty Avenue picture does a great job of summarizing Jack’s beliefs. Liberty for teachers to teach and inspire students instead of focusing on test scores! Liberty from unnecessary regulations which stop employers from hiring more people! 1st Amendment Liberty! 2nd Amendment Liberty: Jack is a Lifetime NRA Member. Liberty for unborn babies! Liberty from an increasingly-intrusive government!

When asked why he is running for the Indiana House Seat representing Marshall and Fulton counties, Jack reveals two primary reasons:

#1 - I truly believe that every individual has unique and amazing God-given potential. Unfortunately, our ever-expanding government limits an individual’s freedom to pursue their dreams. I want to work with other conservatives to limit the government’s detrimental impact on our daily lives.

#2 - I have been extremely blessed to have extensive and significant “real-life” experiences. I have a proven track record of serving, leading and positively impacting organizations. I plan to be a good steward of these experiences and talents by truly making a positive impact on the lives of those residing in Marshall and Fulton Counties...as well as the State of Indiana.

Jack relates that he is the 7th generation of his family to call Marshall County his home. His wife, Hope Jordan is a health care professional who passionately invests 100% of her professional career to serving our Country’s Heroes, our Veteran’s health care needs. Jack has two children. His daughter recently graduated from college and is beginning her teaching career. His son is studying engineering at Purdue University.

Jack Jordan worked for Eli Lilly and Company for nearly 20 years in numerous and various leadership positions. He spent much of his career trying to improve treatments and disease management in 2 areas: Diabetes and Severe Mental Illnesses.

Jack is currently involved in numerous ventures. He works construction and rehabs houses with another area man. Jack is also involved in several businesses and serves several non-for profit organizations. In addition, he served on a local school board for 8 years, and was president for most of that time. For his entire adult life, Jack has had the privilege of being involved with missions. Most recently his travels have taken him to Romania and India working with orphans, leadership training, and education initiatives.

Finally, Jack is excited about an opportunity to serve Marshall and Fulton counties since ‘Enough is Enough’ of big government holding back family and friends from realizing their unique and amazing God-given potential!
