Etna Green Woman Expects To Raise 10 Million Worms This Year!

IT'S NOW TIME to write the annual installment in the life saga of Susie Melton.

Just you missed the five earlier installments in The Culver Citizen. She is the ingenious Etna Green housewife and mother who learned to raise brown bait crickets the hard way — and then ambitiously set out to amass a million.

Fate was unkind. More calamity and woe befell Susie than unfolds in a weepy soap opera.

One spring son Merle popped his appendix. In the ensuing fusion, Susie's hatchery overted and 75,000 momma crickets expired.

Another year the heater conked and the crickets froze.

Big worms and a slipped disc finally persuaded Susie to buy wholesaler and pursue a goal.

INGLERS (AND FISH!) pre-small wild black crickets — these cantankerous chirpers y domestication. In captivity y breed a brood or two, then t.

"Why," these critters seem to f, "should we raise kids just feed fish?"

Solving that entomological enigma became Susie's new goal last year. In a scrupulously sterilized breeding bin she installed 3,000 blackies, gave 'em special feeding, food, and climate.

At chapter's end last year, we saw Susie with fourth generation blackies laying fifth generation eggs — a small triumph that missed a big one.

THE MELTONS — Susie and her sons Merle, Loren, and Al, and Grandmother Haines — all along U.S. 30 on Etna Green's eastern edge. Susie greets me with a grin.

"Did we tame those blackies?" she asked.

"Yes — and no," replied Susie, blinking her nose. "I still have four experimental bin . . . and we coaxed 'em into the 10th and 11th generation. That's never been done, to my knowledge."

She even had inquiries from illegitimate entomologists who want to know how we did it. But darn — I'm not sure myself. It could be the bins, bedding, food, temperature control — or all combined. I'll keep experimenting till I know."

SUSIE SMILED wryly. "Besides," she went on, "it's not a victory. Some breed — but they don't. They're reproducing but not multiplying. My original 3,000 have dwindled to about 90. But I'm learning. Perhaps I'll have the answer before the boys fades away."

Those few blackies are now the occupants of Susie's ouce-ming hatchery. Currently she

Poisoning Of Seven Fine Dogs Stirs Community

Culver Military Academy is re-examining its pest control program as part of an investigation into the poisoning recently of seven dogs near the campus.

Col. William E. Covington, business manager, said a conference with the exterminating firm hired by the Academy will look into the methods used in the program. He added that in view of the tragic loss of the seven dogs on March 4, Dr. Milan D. Baker, Academy physician, would sit in on the meeting.

The purpose of this meeting, Colonel Covington said, will be to reach agreement with the exterminator on a type of poison that will check the rodent population and still be safe for use around domestic animals. As a further safeguard, the business office has offered to contact pet owners in advance of the arrival of the exterminator in the future.

In expressing regret over the loss of the dogs, several of which were household pets of faculty members, Colonel Covington said a thorough investigation is being made. He pointed out that no conclusive proof has been made on the exact cause of the poisonings, although the exterminator was on campus a day before the deaths occurred.

Explanation By Col. Covington

The Academy's pest control program has been carried out monthly over a period of many years. Col. Covington said it has been routine for the exterminator to discuss areas where pest control is needed with members of the business and service departments. The monthly program includes extermination of beetles, roaches, ants, birds, rodents, and any other pests endangering the health of the Academy.

Benefit Square Dance April 14 At Skate-Way

For one night only, the Skate-Way, Culver's skating rink, becomes the scene of good old barn dancing, and lots of it. That will be Friday, April 14, when, in lieu of its annual style show, the Maxinkuckee Junior Woman's Club will present a come-one, come-all square dance.

Dancing will be from 9 until 12 p.m. at the Skate-Way. Culver's talented Emil Krull has been engaged as caller, and brings with him his bandmen and his own special enthusiasm for square dancing. The general public is invited to come and celebrate the departure of Winter in an evening of dancing, or perhaps just watching.

The Junior Women report that, while not necessary, square dance garb adds to the gaiety, therefore, no extreme of costume will be considered out of place. In addition, refreshments will be sold throughout the dance.

Tickets for the evening may be purchased for 75 cents from any club woman, at THE CITIZEN office, or at the dance. As always, the venture is strictly non-profit, all proceeds going to a community benefit project.

So leave the rock-and-roll and the rocking chair, and plan to come barn dancing at the Skate-Way on April 14th. Swing your partners and help a worthwhile cause doing it.

Drill For Oil Or Gas In Starke County

Sink Test Well At North Judson

(From The Starke County Democrat of March 16)

The giant Continental Oil Company of Houston, Texas, producers of Conoco gasoline and petroleum products, has begun an exploratory drilling project on the Seghetti Farm two miles east of North Judson, to determine if there is evidence of oil or natural gas in this area.

Not Far From Culver

A three-man drill crew moved in with portable drilling equipment over the weekend and has already made good headway in sinking the experimental well.

The operation is being conducted on the south side of State Road 10 in plain view of the highway and is attracting a large amount of attention because of its unique nature.

One crew member explained, unofficially, that the well under construction at that point might produce oil, or gas, or nothing at all.

According to the geological experts, he said, the glacial structure of the earth's crust in this area was of such a nature that normal scientific instruments did not give intelligible or conclusive readings, hence a trial and error method was still necessary.

Geologists Say Area "Right"

According to the geologists, he said, the area was "right" and the task of drilling exploratory wells would be justified.

The current drilling project will result in a well in the depth range of 2,500 to 3,000 feet, the workmen said. Actual depth would depend on the nature of the rock formations through which the drill passes.

Gas deposits are usually found, if present, at substantially higher levels than those which bear crude oil, and an early indication of the well's possibilities should be available soon. The drill has already penetrated all soft upper-crust materials and is now proceeding through hard limestone.

A five-inch cutting head is being used and drilling progress is slow.

The crew is composed of regular Continental (Conoco) employees whose job it is to constantly drill new wells for the petroleum company. If the present project shows any signs of promise at all, the company plans call for the sinking of several more exploratory wells in this area, they said.

The men are equipped with the latest and best in drilling machinery. The derrick which is used to handle pipes is mounted permanently to the bed of a specially constructed truck-trailer, and is hinged so that it can be lowered into rest position on the truck and moved easily to a new location.

The power for the drill is supplied by one of two huge propane engines, the second providing the power for hoisting equipment, generators, and pumps.

A big auxiliary pump is used to provide the lubricating "mud" mixture which is constantly flowing down the well when drilling is in progress.

The complete drilling equipment is mounted on special trailers which can be driven to the well location, carefully spotted in position, then quickly put into use.

Alongside the platforms created by the trailer beds, the workmen have scooped away enough soil to create three small ponds, in which they have mixed the materials which form the "mud" for lubrication. From these ponds the mud is pumped down the well, flowing back up into the ponds again to be reused. The ponds also serve as settling basins in which the pulverized limestone can be separated from the treated water.

Seven Fine Dogs Are Poisoned

Recently the rodent situation has become serious, particularly in the area of the Academy dump. In an effort to correct this problem, the exterminator suggested a change in the type of poison used. As in the past, the poison was placed in walls, cracks, under floors, and foundations, and other locations thought inaccessible to humans and to domestic animals.

Rodents Are Serious Problem

Colonel Covington pointed out that in all cases the poison is taken up by the exterminator within a few days after it has been laid, and in most situations about 24 hours after it has been placed. Exterminators also clean up the grounds in the areas where poison is likely to be carried out of the building by rodents. It is speculated, and again there is no proof, that possibly a rodent may have carried some of the poison from a building where it was accessible to the stricken dogs.

Malicious People Also Suspected

"Our pest control program is routine. We are always trying to do the most effective job possible while keeping Academy grounds completely safe for humans and domestic animals. In our conference with the exterminator," Colonel Covington said, "we will explore the best and most effective way of carrying out this program. However, there is never a guarantee that a dog free to roam will not come in contact with contaminated food, poisons placed by exterminators, poisons placed by some malicious people as was the case in the town of Culver some weeks ago, or run some other calculated risk."

"The poisoning of these dogs was unusual, but our pest control operation was not. We are attempting to do everything pos-

Juniors Plan Ham Supper

By Sherrill Edgington and Janet Martin

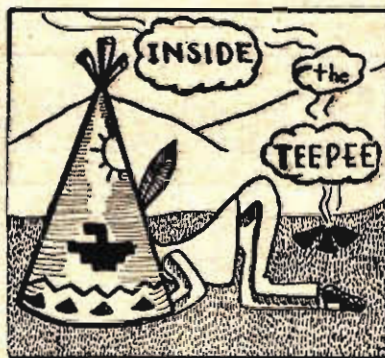

FRESHMEN: We're still having our fudge sales. If you want good fudge buy it from us!

SOPHOMORES: The members of the Sophomore class sure do miss Pat Kline. Hurry back from California, Pat!

JUNIORS: The Junior Record Hop was a great success and we would like to thank everyone who helped make it a big success. We are planning our Ham Supper, and looking for a theme for the Prom.

SENIORS: Plymouth's Business and Professional Women's Club invited the senior girls to a party to honor the girl graduates of Marshall County. All the girls are planning on having a wonderful time. They are figuring up their points for the senior trip.

Citizen want ads up to 25 words only 75 cents.

Well, we come again to one of the worst times of the year. Yes, you guessed it. Grade cards came out again. Such moaning and groaning as you've never heard. Well, I'm sure they all can't be that bad. Just look at all the names on the Honor Roll.

Congratulations to the Juniors for a very successful record hop last Friday. And congratulations to Judy Kimmel who got both disc-jocks to dance with her. Good going, Judy. There were a few new couples: Phil Gretter and Diane Hicks, Jerry Kimmel and Linda Banks, Sam Medbourn and Carmen Gretter, and Bernice Mevis and Mike Utter, from Plymouth.

Look out! The driver's training class is at it again. I guess they've been practicing driving in reverse. No, no, Judy, not quite so fast. That's right. Now just straight back a little slower. A little slower Judy, a little slower! Look out, we're going in the ditch! Oh, well, we better stick to going forward for awhile.

Say, everybody get your pennies out. Shari Yocom has been elected by the Senior class to represent Culver at the Heart Fund Dance Friday, at Plymouth, to compete for the Heart Queen. Everybody can vote by dropping pennies in a box that will be outside the office. The pennies from all the schools will go to the heart fund. So let's have the queen from Culver and don't forget the dance at Plymouth.

Friday is the long awaited night. The Sunshiners will reveal their Ideal Ladies that they have been honoring all year. We're all hoping we can surprise our "Ideal" but it's hard not to let a little bit slip out.

See you next week.

Easter Furnishes Motif For Art Students

The first grades are talking about Easter, and they are starting to make eggs and bunnies.

Grades 3, 4, and 5 are learning to mix colors in class.

Grades and Auto Driving Are Related

By Betty Zechiel and Pat Wesson

For this week's poll we decided to find out what students and teachers thought about driving. Our question was, "Do you think a teens' grades go down when he or she learn to drive and is permitted to have the car?"

Forty per cent of the 25 students talked to thought the grades do go down. One boy said he knew if he had a car he would never be home to study.

Thirty-two per cent of the students said their grades would not be affected. Most of these students felt that with the "help" of their parents they had worked out a plan that included both studying and driving.

Twenty per cent of the students said it depends upon the individual. If this is a person who would normally study he will continue to do so after he gets his driver's license.

Grade 6 is making stained glass windows to go with a story in the literature unit.

The high school students are now working on ceramics, and are completing their sketch folders.

cense.

Four per cent said it was up to the parents.

To add "class" (?) to our we decided to ask the teachers how they felt on the subject.

Fifty per cent of the teachers felt that grades were lowered cause of driving. They pointed out that through research it has been proved that driving a car tends to lower a persons study habits.

Twenty-five per cent said "I don't know." Half of the other 25 said it might affect the grades and the other half said it wouldn't if the parents controlled studying.

In summary we feel that driving a car could affect the average students grades if it isn't properly supervised.

Repairs have been made to the front doors of the church caused by recent vandalism in which beer bottles were thrown through the glass in the doors. The impact of the bottles was such that when they struck the inner doors and wall, shattered glass was embedded in the wood and beer splashed over the doors. All that was left of the bottles were the labels. A corner of one of the storm windows had also been prying breaking the glass. The Fulton County sheriff was called and came out to the scene.

Editor, CITIZEN:

I am no sycophant of Franklin D. Roosevelt, having voted against him four times, but the recent movie of his inspiring victory over polio, "Sunrise At Campobello," gave me a new appreciation of the late President.

It was one of the greatest pictures of the last decade and the casting of Ralph Bellamy as F.D.R., Greer Garson as Eleanor, and Hume Cronyn as Louis Howe was perfect.

Our thanks to the Hoeseis for bringing such splendid pictures to Culver. They are such a welcome relief from TV.

Industry Moves Ahead By TRUCK In Indiana

Indiana's steadily growing industries depend daily on truck transportation's superior service for the rapid and safe door-to-door delivery of goods to and from the state's factories, mills, farms, stores and homes. Because business, industry and you demand and deserve this superior service—and trucks alone can furnish it—the trucking industry now provides income for 233,220 Hoosiers, earning more than $1,125,752,000 annually. Indiana's flexible trucking industry must be considered a prime factor in the State's industrial expansion.

Scriptural selections to be read in the Lesson-Sermon entitled
"Reality" will include this passage from Isaiah (9:2): "The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy this correlative passage will be read (546:24-26):
"The great spiritual facts of being, like rays of light, shine in

Guest Minister To Address PTA Next Tuesday

The Rev. H. Richard Rasmussen, minister of the University Presbyterian Church, Purdue University, will be guest speaker at the monthly Culver-Union Township PTA meeting to be held Tuesday, March 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the High School Auditorium.

Mr. Rasmussen will choose as his topic a subject of interest to all parents today. His speech will deal with the emotional and psychological problems of the modern teenager.

In announcing Mr. Rasmussen
as guest speaker, James Miracle, PTA president, urged parents of the high school age youngsters to make a special effort to attend the meeting. "The speech may well answer many questions facing the modern parent," Miracle said.

The School Reorganization Bill, of utmost interest to all Culver parents, will be discussed. Miracle has just returned from attending special meetings on the bill. As other business, a nominating committee will be named from the floor to select a slate of next year's officers.

Refreshments following the meeting will be served by the hospitality committee.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, David Whitted, who died March 17, 1948.

The songbird's melody fills the air

Long after the bird has gone—

And when the rose has lost its bloom

Its fragrance lingers on—

And though we cannot see the ones

From whom we've had to part

Their memory, like a melody

Still lives within the heart!

"Hoosier At Large"

gets browns in wholesale lots from Louisiana to sell to anglers.

FOR ONE REASON, cranky discs in Susie's back make stairs tormenting — and her hatchery is in the basement.

But there's another reason which Susie revealed, eyes twinkling.

"I've started a worm farm," she chuckled, "and by golly this time I've got a million — already!"

Wherein lies a story...

LAST YEAR Susie bought worms to sell from one Augie S., an elderly, self-taught genius who lived alone on a nearby lake and mastered worm farming by years of patient study and experiment.

Augie, who despises indolence, admired Susie's ambition and industry. One day he pointed to a low, watery bit of Melton land and said:

"That's an ideal spot for worm beds. If you'll work hard, I'll help you install one."

Susie agreed. For three months last fall Augie lived with the Meltons, built and lavishly stocked a big, 40 by 50-foot bed and taught Mrs. Melton and sons his hard-won secrets.

WHEN AUGIE TOOK OFF for warmer climes, Susie savvied worm culture and was in business.

"Ours are true compost red-worms — not smelly manure worms," she said. "They're big, tough, active, and prolific."

To prove it, she led me to the big bed and spaded one small hole. It teemed with wriggling worms.

"We're way past a million," she grinned. "And worms multiply much faster than crickets. The beds require more work and care — but the profits are larger."

Needless to say, there are perils and pitfalls in worm farming. Otherwise we'd all be up to our necks in the slimy things. A deadly white virus has already invaded part of Susie's big bed. Unopposed, it would wipe out the whole worm population.

"We'll get rid of it," smiled Susie. "That's one of the things that Augie taught me."

MRS. MELTON is already wholesaling worms to other bait dealers and will expand as fast as trade warrants.

"This summer," she said, "we plan to rebuild this big, rough bed into tiers to rotate production. When you come back next year we should really be in business. With luck, we'll have 10 million worms."
