Spivey's Role As Peace Emissary During World War II Is Retold War Prisoner On Mission

EDITOR'S NOTE: Gen. Delmar T. Spivey (ret.), superintendent of Culver Military Academy, retired from active service on Aug. 1, 1956, after an outstanding military career of 32 years. As a prisoner of war in World War II, he was one of two high ranking American officers assigned to deliver a peace overture from a rebel German faction to the allies that would have eliminated Adolph Hitler, brought peace to the Western front, and enabled the Germans to continue the war against Russia.

The bizarre story, which took place in the final months of World War II, was presented to the public for the first time in a series of seven articles in The Chicago Tribune which concluded on Feb. 13. These copyrighted articles are being reprinted by The Citizen by special arrangement, and are reprinted courtesy of The Chicago Tribune. The first three installments follow.

Installment I

Twenty years ago, amid the confusion of a Germany about to capitulate, two high-ranking American military prisoners of the Germans left Berlin on a highly classified mission.

One carried a coded message in the hollowed-out heel of his shoe.

Their assignment: To communicate to the American high command a peace offering from a rebel German faction. This group proposed to assassinate Adolf Hitler, cease hostilities against the Americans and the British, and continue the war against Russia.

Maj. Gen. Delmar T. Spivey (ret.), 59, now superintendent of Culver (Ind.) Military Academy, was one of the two who made the secret journey south on the Autobahn to Switzerland. The other was Maj. Gen. Arthur W. Vanaman (ret.), 64, Sacramento, Cal. He is presently on a globe-circling vacation. Both were air officers who were shot down in bombing missions.

Gen. Spivey was a colonel in 1945. Gen. Vanaman was a brigadier general and the highest ranking American officer captured by the Germans in World War II.

This is Spivey's account of the fast-moving events in the winter and spring of 1945 and the role he and Gen. Vanaman played as emissaries of a German truce offer.

Aid To POWs Seen

Furthermore, in Spivey's judgment, it is the story of how 13,500 American air prisoners of war lived to return to the United States.

Spivey emphasized the confusion that abounded in Germany in the twilight of the European war. Cities were burning under the rain of steady allied bombings. Civilians were starving and homeless.

Parents sobbed in despair while watching their 14-year old sons march off to defend the shambles of the Third Reich and the honor of a fanatical leader.

Germany Hard Pressed

The Russians were pressing on the eastern front. American, British, and French armies surged into the Ruhr and the low countries.

Hitler exhorted his people to fight on. Propaganda Minister Josef Goebbels told the crumbling nation that all Germans would die before bowing to unconditional surrender. Marshal Hermann Goering was sent to Bavaria to prepare for a final stand.

It was at this time the two American prisoners found themselves extraordinarily important men.

Uncertain of Future

They were bewildered, uncertain whether history would consider them as heroes or collaborators.

This was the situation as they sped south on the Autobahn in the rear seat of a Volkswagen military staff car. They lay buried under their duffel bags and the belongings of their German escort.

The coded message was concealed in Vanaman's shoe.

It was signed by Lieut. Gen. Gottlob Berger, the officer in charge of all prisoners of war in Germany. His was a ministry post that gave him direct access to Hitler.

German's Plan Told

Berger had outlined his plans to the two Americans in two all-night sessions on April 2 and 3, 1945, in his headquarters in the outskirts of Berlin.

"He gave us dinner with champagne and schnapps," Spivey recalled. "It was the most delicious meal I had eaten since leaving the United States. But both of us were so nervous it was difficult to swallow."

Berger talked at length, saying that the Germans could defeat the Russians and that Russia was the true enemy of the United States and Germany.

On the second night the German general made his proposal.

Would the two Americans accept repatriation and carry to their commanders a coded message asking for negotiations on a peace treaty?

The message included a short wave frequency on which the Americans could contact his headquarters.

"He mentioned Gen. Eisenhower by name and said he was sure a peace treaty could be worked out with the western allies, but not with Russia," Spivey said. Eisenhower then was supreme allied commander.

Hitler Called Insane

Berger said Hitler was insane and had to be eliminated. The German general was sure this could be done, but he offered no details, Spivey related.

"We agreed to the mission, but emphasized that we could only carry the messages," the American said. "There was no guarantee that our commanders would listen."

At the same time, Berger promised that he would do everything possible to get Red Cross food and medical supplies to American prisoners of war and provide for their safekeeping.

His Agreement Kept

"To his credit, no matter what his personal motives may have been, he abided by this agreement, and undoubtedly thousands of lives were saved," Spivey said.

Miss Plymouth Pageant Set For June 16-17

Martha McAllister To Be Contestant

MARTHA LOU McALLISTER

Martha Lou McAllister of Culver will be a contestant in the Miss Plymouth Pageant which features the talents of 11 young ladies from Marshall County and will be held June 16 and 17 in the Centennial Auditorium in Plymouth.

"Good things come in small packages" and Martha is a five-foot three-inch package bursting with beauty, talent and vivaciousness.

Martha plays the piano and guitar. She sings, dances, twirls the baton, tumbles and has had training in dramatic arts. She was a cheer leader at Culver High School when she graduated in 1964. She is presently a sophomore at the University of Texas in Austin.

"I chose the University," she said, "because Texas is like my second home. My Daddy's family and most of my relatives are Texans."

For her talent selection in the Pageant, Martha will sing a folksong, "The House of the Rising Sun" and accompany herself on the guitar. "I taught myself how to play the guitar," she said, "and I have enjoyed it very much." She has played in school events and "get-together" Hootenannys. She will wear a casual smocked shift for her talent performance. "I am just not the beatnik type with black leotards and bare feet," Martha added.

Martha is 18 years old and the daughter of James W. McAllister of Culver and the late Mrs. McAllister. She has dark brown hair worn in the new "smooth and chic" style with soft bangs across the forehead. Her eyes are green and her measurements are 36-23-36.

"I decided to enter the Pageant," she said, "because my friends who were a part of it in previous years had such fun and felt it was a profiting experience."

"The Pageant will be a wonderful way to make new friends of people around Marshall County and I feel that every opportunity of this kind gives a person poise and additional confidence for the experiences ahead."

Martha has shopping to do for her pageant finery. She expects to purchase a black swimsuit and is in the market for a pastel pink or blue full length formal dress. She hopes to find a gown with a tapered skirt and spaghetti straps.

Martha's pixie-like features are distinguished with a sculptured nose and cleft chin. She reminds one of a glass of sparkling water, bubbling, effervescent and gay. Her future plans include a college degree from the U. of Texas and a career in music, possibly as a teacher.

Miss Plymouth of 1964, Margo Fox, daughter of Mrs. Jesse Fox of Argos, will crown the new

Lightning Strikes Truck Operated By Don Clifton

Don Clifton, West Madison St., Culver, was treated at Marshall County Parkview Hospital about noon Wednesday, May 26, for burns received when lightning hit a truck he was operating.

Clifton was operating a Marshall County Concrete Company truck at the construction site of a ditch on Iris road three miles east of Plymouth. A bridge is being built there by the McMahan Construction Company, for U.S. 30 dual highway near Inwood.

Co-workers said the bolt hit the truck while Clifton was holding a gear in the process of unloading cement into a bucket. The electrical charge apparently grounded through him they said.

Clifton was knocked to the ground and minutes later rushed to the hospital. He was released after being treated for burns on the arms and returned to work.

Overeating adds to the heart's work. Overeating followed by exertion is asking for trouble, the Indiana Heart Association warns. Remember, professional athletes eat lightly before they go into action, have their heavy meal afterward.

Two CMA Alumni To Be Honored At Commencement

Two distinguished graduates of Culver Military Academy will be honored for high academic achievement at an 11 a.m. commencement convocation Monday, June 7, in Eugene C. Eppley Auditorium.

Major General Delmar T. Spivey, USAF (ret.), superintendent, will present honorary memberships in the Culver Chapter of the Cum Laude Society to James T. Babb, recently retired librarian of Yale University, and Dr. M. Neil Macintyre, associate professor of anatomy at Western Reserve University School of Medicine, Cleveland.

Since Culver, the nation's largest independent secondary school, is unable to give honorary doctorate degrees similar to those presented at the university level, it has for many years recognized outstanding alumni by making them honorary members of Cum Laude. Both Babb and Dr. Macintyre will be at Culver to receive their awards.

Babb was thrown into the national limelight during the presidential years of John F. Kennedy. When the Kennedys undertook to improve the cultural facilities of the White House, Babb was named by Mrs. Kennedy as chairman of a distinguished committee to assemble a new library. After a year of what Babb called an "agonizing search to compile a tight list of books," a list of 1,780 titles was announced of American authors from George Washington to James Thurber.

The list was the object of criticism, but has, nevertheless set a pattern for other libraries focusing attention on America and its library.

Babb, a graduate of the Culver Summer Schools, has raised more than $5,000,000 in books for Yale.

He has been librarian since 1945 and was assistant librarian for seven years before that. But he has been giving books to the university since his undergraduate days of 1920-24.

He is held personally responsible for several of the largest and most important donations to the Yale library of the last several years, including the Beinecke Rare Book and Manuscript Library opened last year. The Yale Library Associates, a group of 800 active members, owes its growth to Babb and has, during the last two years, contributed $200,000 annually over and above the value of book and manuscript donations.

Dr. Macintyre, a graduate of Culver Military Academy in 1939, did his undergraduate work at the University of Michigan, which later awarded him the degree of doctor of philosophy in zoology in 1955. He taught at Michigan from 1949 to 1954, when he joined the staff of Western Reserve's School of Medicine.

Dr. Macintyre is well known for his research into normal and abnormal human development. He has done research on the embryonic development of the reproductive tract, and, for the past four years, Dr. Macintyre and his associates have worked in the field of cytogenetics, the study of human chromosome abnormalities and associated with congenital malformations.

He has written or co-authored 25 books and research articles in his field and is currently a consultant for four governmental agencies in public health, general medicine, and the anatomical sciences.

RECEIVES DEGREE FROM McNEESE STATE COLLEGE
David Edward Washburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Washburn of Culver, received his B.S. degree in health and physical education from McNeese State College, Lake Charles, La., at the commencement exercises held last Tuesday in Cowboy Stadium.

Mr. and Mrs. Washburn, William Jr., and Mrs. Nettie Washburn attended the graduation ceremonies returning home Thursday evening accompanied by David.

Enroute home they visited relatives in Memphis.

TO RECEIVE DIPLOMAS FROM BALL STATE SUNDAY
More than 1,250 seniors and graduate students will receive Ball State University diplomas at commencement at 5 p.m., Sunday, June 6. Frederick L. Hovde, president of Purdue University, will give the commencement address.

Ball State will grant over 960 bachelor's degrees, 275 master's, three education specialists and five doctor's degrees at the June commencement.

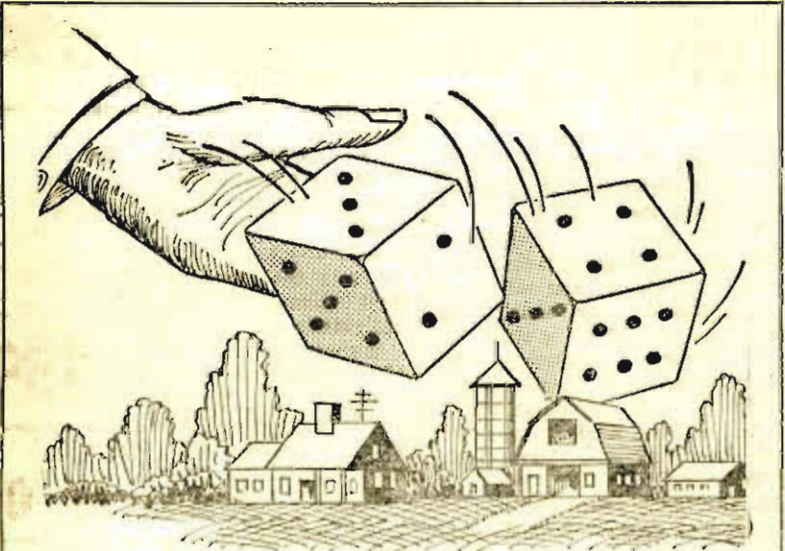

The following students from Culver are included in those graduating from Ball State: Bachelor of Science in Education — Emily Anne Allen (elementary education), Daniel R. Little (social studies and psychology) and Joyce Ann Morrison (art).

War Prisoner

chief of the gestapo, was making a similar proposal to the allies through Count Folke Bernadotte of Sweden. This apparently was unknown to Berger.

The Bernadotte mission was rejected by the allies. The count's activity, unlike that of Spivey, was disclosed at the time it took place. Bernadotte, being a neutral, could talk to anyone he pleased.

Two Report To Spaatz

Spivey and Vanaman were uniformed officers of the United States army air force. When they successfully crossed the Swiss border on April 23, 1945, they reported to their American commanders including Gen. Carl Spaatz, and no one else.

American intelligence officers talked with them. Their superiors told them to forget the affair and take a "long rest." Vanaman was returned to the United States. Spivey remained to aid in the repatriation of American air prisoners of war.

"No one would listen to us," Spivey said. "They thought we were nuts and told us to mind our own business."

Testify for Berger

After the war, Spivey and Vanaman testified in behalf of Berger in the Nurnberg war trials. Nonetheless, he was sentenced to 25 years for his role in the conspiracy against the Jews.

Six years later, in 1951, Berger was given a pardon. Affidavits by Spivey, Vanaman and others attesting to his role in the plot and how he helped the American POWs were important weapons in obtaining the pardon, Spivey said.

Reflecting today on the American attitude in 1945, Spivey concludes that the United States did not want to get involved in anything that would jeopardize agreements with Josef Stalin, the Russian premier.

"The fact that two American officers served as emissaries for a proposal to defeat the Russians must have been very upsetting to the diplomats," Spivey observed.

Berger and his fellow conspirators listened on short wave radios in those final days — waiting for a coded message that never came.

Installment 2

Maj. Gen. Delmar T. Spivey tilted back in the deep red leather swivel chair that has been his since he became headmaster at the Culver Military Academy nine years ago.

He ran his right hand over his bald head, nearly jarring the frame of a George Washington portrait hanging on the paneled wall behind him.

Models of United States air force and navy jet fighters and bombers were poised in flight on a round table to his left and on two end tables alongside a sofa that faced his desk.

He retraced the years of military life very rapidly like someone flipping thru the pages of a magazine. Then he halted at Aug.

12, 1943, the day the Germans shot his B-17 bomber out of the sky.

This was the opening page of his 20 months as a prisoner of the Germans. Hours later, after the interview had transferred to the living room of his red brick home on the academy campus, he continued his story.

"I was a gunnery training officer at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., during 1942 and the first part of 1943," he recalled. "The 8th air force at the time was catching unmerciful hell from the German Luftwaffe."

"Something was wrong. The men we were turning out to man the flexible guns on our bombers were good when they left the school, but they could not hit the German fighter planes."

At his own request and with considerable reluctance on the part of the army air force, which had few trained senior officers, Spivey and several other gunnery officers were given orders to fly five combat missions over German-occupied Europe to find out what was wrong. He was a colonel at the time.

Flew Thru Flak

He made one mission over Schweinfurt, Germany without incident. He observed that the gunners were ignoring their gun-sights, which they had been trained to use, and tried shooting down the Germans by following the trajectory of their tracer bullets.

"The bullets would curve off like water shooting out of a garden hose," he asserted. "No wonder they were not hitting the Germans."

The second flight was a B-17 mission over the industrial Ruhr. The bombers flew over the target, dropping bombs, and attempting to dodge the dancing explosions of German flak.

"A burst of flak rocked the whole plane and the armor plate on which I was kneeling came up so fast that it knocked off my steel helmet," Gen. Spivey recounted. "The cowling flew off the two inboard engines and each stopped. The right inboard engine began burning."

The pilot crash-landed in a wheat field and the "eleven of us scattered like a covey of quail." The plane went down near the German-Dutch border. Soon Spivey was a prisoner of the Germans after being captured by a Dutch farmer.

Following nearly two weeks of interrogation and shifting from one place to another, he arrived in Sagan in eastern Germany. This territory now is part of Poland.

50 Escapees Executed

There were mostly British air officers in the prisoner of war camp. The Americans had not yet started to arrive in any numbers.

Spivey, being a colonel, was appointed senior American officer by the Germans to administrate the American air officers in center camp of Stalag Luft III.

There also were north, east, south, and west camps in the complex for other Americans, and for British, Australian, Canadian, and New Zealand air officers.

It was out of north camp that 80 men made the "great escape" in March, 1944, by boring out a tunnel to a nearby woods. All but three were recaptured. The escape, the largest mass attempt of the war, so angered Adolf Hitler that he ordered 50 of the escapees executed.

Spivey reached an agreement with the German commandant, Col. Friedrich von Lindeiner, then 68, on how the camp would be run. Von Lindeiner died in 1963. He was a former member of the Prussian guard and in Spivey's mind a man of honor.

Demanded Rights

"More than once I stood eyeball to eyeball with the commandant and demanded our rights under the convention," he asserted, "and sometimes it had to be done in very undiplomatic expressions."

There was talk among the prisoners that Spivey had sold out to the Germans by imposing rigid discipline on his own men.

Such rumors soon died out when Spivey approved an escape plan for a 287-foot tunnel under the double barbed wire fence of the center camp and into the nearby pines.

"Work began in late summer of 1943. It was to be a rush job in the hopes of fooling the Germans," he said.

Garden Grew Higher

At first the sand from the excavation was kept in an underground storage room, but later it was disposed of in outdoor latrines, drainage pits, spread out on a volleyball court and in a garden.

"For some reason the Germans never seemed to notice, the garden soil was getting higher and higher from the tunnel dirt that was deposited there," the general recounted.

OVER 4,000 PEOPLE IN COUNTY RECEIVE SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS
Every 20 seconds another American becomes a senior citizen, joining the nearly 19 million men and women now over 65. Each year this total increases by 1½ million people. May has been designated as Senior Citizens Month by President Johnson to recognize the accomplishments and needs of this rapidly growing segment of the population. Charles E. Burke, social security district manager in South Bend, Indiana, reported today.

Social security has been instrumental in helping to meet the needs of this group. Mr. Burke continued. More than 9 of every 10 persons now reaching 65 can expect to receive social security monthly benefits, Mr. Burke added.

For the past 25 years, since January 1940 when monthly benefits were first paid, social security has been providing a base upon which senior citizens could build to insure financial security for themselves after retirement. Mr. Burke commented.

Social security monthly benefits play a considerable part in maintaining the economic stability of the community. The latest statistics show that 4346 people in Marshall County receive $299,-239 each month, Mr. Burke said. Studies show that senior citizens spend the greatest part of their social security check in the community for food, clothing, and housing, Mr. Burke emphasized.

Marshall County residents over 65 who have never filed application for social security benefits were invited by Mr. Burke to come into the social security office for a complete explanation of the law. The manager suggested that it may be advantageous for senior citizens to file an application even though they are still working.

Possibly, some benefits may be payable in spite of a person's earnings. Then, too, the application could be processed in advance of a person's retirement so that payments could start promptly when he does stop working, Mr. Burke noted.

Anyone wishing more information about social security should get in touch with the South Bend social security district office, located at 335 N. Lafayette Blvd. The telephone number is 252-7147.

Enroll Now In Reading Club At Culver Library

Enrollment is underway at the Culver Public Library for the popular Summer Reading Club, sponsored annually by the local Tri Kappas. This year's program carries the theme, "Under the Big Top for 1965," and enrollments will be received during the first two weeks of June.

At the time of enrollment, each child will be given a booklet in which to write the books read. Each book entered in the booklet must be initialed by one of the parents or guardian as proof the child has read that particular book. This must be presented to the librarian at the time books are returned.

The librarian will then stamp the booklet signifying the child as having reported the books read.

For each book read, there will be one point given for the grade the child will be entering in the fall of 1965.

In the fall, after the opening of school, Tri Kappa will present a first, second and third prize to the rooms having the highest number of points.

Any one book read may count as one point, providing it is on the child's reading level and signed by the parent.

Parents may also help their children with the reading club by reading too. They may ask for and receive a booklet to enter all books read. They need not register as their child or children will be the registrars.

All booklets must be returned to the library the last week in July (the 26th to 31st) and absolutely no later than July 31. This is the only way points will be counted.

One booklet will be given to each joiner and there will be no seconds. The highest number of points each person may contribute to their class is 12, not including the extra points from books read by their parents.

No count will be made of books put in the book-return unless they are reported in person.

Miss Marizetta Robinson will be helping at the library during the summer months as she has done for the past five summers.

Women's Democratic Club To Hold State Meeting At C.M.A.

The Indiana Women's Democratic Club will hold their state-wide summer meeting at the Culver Military Academy, on Saturday, June 19. The business meeting, for members only, will be held in the Little Theater of Epley Auditorium at 10:45 a.m.

The luncheon, open to any interested person, will be at The Culver Inn at 12:15 p.m. The speaker at the luncheon will be the Honorable Richard C. Bodine, Speaker of the House in the 1965 General Assembly.

Ticket reservations may be made with the general chairman of the meeting, Mrs. Deane E. Plymouth, 920 South Miner St.,

Plymouth, by June 14. Mrs. Walker is being assisted in planning for the meeting by members of the Marshall County Democratic Women's Club. Mrs. Francis Rankert is president of this group.

Tickets may be purchased by the June 14 dead-line at the Auto License Branch or Don's Parlor in Plymouth.

The Spring Camporee will be held on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, June 4, 5 and 6. A highlight of this event will be a fishing derby on Saturday afternoon. Each Scout is to bring only the necessary items of personal equipment needed for a two-night campout. We will pack-in all equipment, so keep your gear light. Don't forget insect repellent — you could spend a very uncomfortable week-end without it! All Scouts planning to attend are to meet at the Methodist Church at 5:30 p.m. on Friday. Eat supper before you leave home or bring a sack lunch.

Our regular Troop meetings will resume next Monday, June 7, at 7 p.m. See you all there!

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hoffman were Mr. and Mrs. Lester Houghton, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Houghton, Lee and Lori, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Houghton and John, and Mrs. Lawrence Houghton.

... You'll get fast and satisfactory service through the Want Ad section of The Culver Citizen.

The healing of the "man which was taken with a palsy" told by Luke (ch. 5) will be featured in the Bible Lesson to be read at Christian Science services Sunday.
 The Golden Text is from Psalms (145:9,17): "The Lord is good to all; and his tender mercies are over all his works. . . . The Lord is righteous in all his ways, and holy in all his works."

Selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include the following: "Immortal Mind is the only cause; therefore disease is neither a cause nor an effect. Mind in every case is the eternal God, good, Sin, disease, and death have no foundations in Truth" (p. 415).

The subject will be "God the Only Cause and Creator."

BE WISE — ADVERTISE

Do you ever feel trapped? Do the walls of a meaningless life seem to close in on you sometimes? Here's good news! Every life has a gate, and it is never locked. But it only opens from one side . . . your side.

Seek for the gate with all your heart, and you will find it. Open it, and you will enter a world full of meaning and beauty. You'll step from darkness to light . . . and never look back.

The key? It's waiting for you in Christ's teachings. His Church will help you to find it, and in His service you will discover life's real purpose. Go to church this Sunday, and hear God's words of promise and comfort. They are meant for all who yearn to widen the cramped horizon of their lives. They are meant for you.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4)
 For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

War Prisoner On Mission

"As time went on the excitement was terrific — many of the boys were so confident they were going to get home."

When the tunnel reached the fence line, it was decided that 80 persons would go. The tailor shop improvised civilian clothing and caps and compasses were made.

The escape day was set and everyone had received final instructions on what to do and how to do it. We were to crawl thru the tunnel, up into the pine thicket, then crawl for a couple of hundred yards between the rows of pines to a clearing where we were to make our ways in silence and hopeful prayer.

Escape Thwarted

"On the morning preceding the escape night, the Germans searched the barracks and found loads of escape paraphernalia. About 200 Germans came in with long iron pikes and began pushing them into the ground just outside of the barracks.

"We tried not to observe them and to act nonchalant about the whole business, but our hearts sank to a new low," he continued.

"They not only discovered our huge new tunnel, but they discovered several old and abandoned ones. The Germans were happy about finding the tunnel and considered it a game at which they proved themselves more clever than we."

Installment 3

By the summer of 1944, Stalag Luft III near Sagan, Germany, was well organized and functioning as an American colony of men behind barbed wire and German guards.

A radio had been stolen from a German medical officer and reconstructed in a sausage shape to fit in the hollowed-out leg of a barracks table.

Col. Delmar T. Spivey, the senior American officer in center camp, was still waging a daily battle with the German commandant, Col. Friedrich von Lindeiner, to obtain more rights for the 1,000 American air officers in his camp.

Variety of Activities

A theater was fashioned out of barracks. Costumes were rented from a shop in Berlin and paid for with marks the prisoners received in pay from the Germans. "Sagan university" was holding classes and recreation programs were in full swing. The Germans were leashed.

But cigars and chocolate were being secretly buried for the future.

General Stirrs Rumors

Rumors were rampant, but never more so than the day Brig. Gen. Arthur W. Vanaman appeared in camp. The young prisoners were convinced he was a mystery man on some secret mission.

Some thought him to be a Rudolf Hess in reverse because he had once been American air attache in Berlin from 1937 to 1939 and had occasion to dine and talk with Hitler and other top Germans.

"There really is no mystery surrounding Gen. Vanaman's story," Gen. Spivey recalled in discussing the story.

"Gen. Vanaman was on a bombing mission over France when flak knocked out two of the four engines of his plane. The pilot ordered everyone to bail out, which Vanaman did," Spivey recounted.

"With the pilot, co-pilot, and engineer still aboard, the pilot decided he had a chance to get back to England and he made it. This frequently happened.

"Vanaman descended to the French countryside where he was captured. It wasn't long before the Germans realized who they had and seemed awed by the arrival of a one-star general."

Gen. Vanaman was on the command staff of 8th air force because of his knowledge of Germany. He was informed of many of the allied invasion plans.

He was captured June 27, 1944, three weeks after D-Day. The war department did not announce he was missing in action until Oct. 14, 1944. He was the highest ranking American officer captured by the Germans.

"Apparently because of his high rank and air attache background, the Germans treated him with extraordinary courtesy," Spivey said. "Surely, they know he had valuable information, but they never exposed him to the severe interrogation that others went thru."

"He told them only what he had to under the Geneva convention. The Germans offered him limited freedom in Berlin. He refused and asked that he be sent to a prisoner of war camp."

Gen. Vanaman arrived at center camp in early August, 1944. On Aug. 7, an order signed by the commandant appointed him the senior officer for all the allied prisoners in the compound.

"So fearful was he about disclosing military secrets," Spivey asserted, "he taped his mouth every night before going to bed.

"I can understand why the young officers thought something was in the air when we got a general, but this was not any mysterious plot."

By Christmas, 1944, the allied armies were moving closer to victory. Spivey called his staff together to plan for all contingencies.

In his memoirs, he noted that there were three general situations that could have developed. First, the Germans could pull out and leave the prisoners to their own devices; second, the Germans would move the prisoners by truck or train, and third, the prisoners could be marched out ahead of the Russians.

"There was always in the back of our minds the possibility of what they would do in case it became necessary to abandon us — they would bump all of us off," Spivey said.

Each man was given a list of the food and clothing he would need for each of the possible situations. Daily inspections were made to be certain all the men were getting prepared.

Russians Approach

The Russians were only 25 kilometers away.

"The Germans were aware of the preparations," Spivey said. "In a way they were sympathetic and shut their eyes to what was going on. Yet the ever present possibility of having the S. S. discover they were neglecting their duties caused them to take much of our excess food and threaten to confiscate everything.

"There was a great air of ex-

pectancy thruout the camp and morale was extremely high. Most of the boys did not consider that there was any possibility that our plans could go wrong."

OLDER PEOPLE

Overweight, inadequate diets, and inappropriate use of vitamin preparations are some of the major dietary problems of older people, reports Miriam Eads, Purdue University food specialist.

Commenting on a survey by the U. S. Department of Agriculture based on diets of people 65 or older, Miss Eads says many older people need to improve their diets.

Although some older people eat foods sufficient in nutrients and calories, many need to think about their food intake — increase the number of nutrients and decrease the calories.

Calorie requirements decrease with advancing age even though the requirements for other nutrients remain the same, Miss Eads points out.

About a fourth of the people surveyed had diets that could be called poor because they furnished less than two-thirds of the recommendations for one or more nutrients. When diets failed in any nutrient, they were most likely to be short in calcium and ascorbic acid. This indicates that older people may not be consuming enough milk and fruit juice high in vitamin C, says the specialist.
