GEN. SPIVEY'S STORY —

Long Awaited Day Finally Comes; 2,000 P.O.W.s Begin Long March

Installment 4

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of reprinted articles from The Chicago Tribune which relate the experiences of Gen. Delmar T. Spivey (ret.) as a prisoner-of-war peace emissary of the Germans during World War II. The copyrighted articles are presented by special arrangements, and are reprinted courtesy of The Chicago Tribune.

It had snowed for several days and then turned bitterly cold. The American prisoners of war in Stalag Luft III, Sagan, Germany, huddled near the coal stoves in their wooden barracks.

"There was a great air of expectancy throughout the camp, and morale was extremely high," Gen. Spivey said.

It was Jan. 27, 1945. Spivey was an army air force colonel and the senior American officer of 2,000 American air prisoners of war in center camp of the huge compound.

March Is Ordered

"Four of us were playing a game of bridge," he recalled. "It was about 9 p.m."

"The camp officer came tearing into the room and ordered us to get ready to leave in 30 minutes."

"This was the time we had been awaiting for nearly two years. I could hardly believe what he was telling us."

"We were to march out on foot, carrying nothing except clothing. Anyone attempting to escape or fall out along the route was to be shot."

"The first person I looked for was Popeye (Wilhelm Stranghoner) my trusted, sensible, elderly German sergeant. Popeye was not excited, and in my broken German and in his broken English we agreed to leave in an hour."

150 Guards Wait

A company of 150 German guards waited outside the fence. Gen. Spivey remembered they were sullen, like the Germans usually depicted in American cartoons during the war.

A mass assault was made on the prison grounds to dig up three million cigarettes, and chocolate bars, maps, money, and compasses that had all been hidden for his day. The Red Cross store was opened, and each man was given a food package.

"Within an hour we were armed on the parade ground with our packs, and we were ready to go," Spivey related. "There was a delay. The men trembled in the snow, which was about a foot deep."

2,000 Begin March

Those not able to make the march went to the infirmary to wait the arrival of the Russians. Lt. Thomas Mulligan Jr., one of the three camp historians, remained behind with this group.

At about 3 a.m. on Jan. 28, six hours after the first alert, the 2,000 American air officers marched through open gates of center camp.

It was the beginning of a grueling 100-mile march to a rail station in Spremburg.

"I want to set the record straight on this march," Gen. Spivey said. "It has been called a death march, and I have heard accounts of how hundreds supposedly died on the way."

Only One Drops Out

"This is all fiction. It was a few crop of TRI KAPPA PEAS on sale at The Citizen's front counter. Please help the oratory raise money for charitable purposes. Only $1.50, plus a pound for shelled broken nuts. 43tnc great hardship, but these men were prepared. They had walked an average of four miles a day around the camp to keep in shape. They had sufficient provisions.

"The only man we lost was one who wandered off with a buxom Polish girl of about 15. Everyone else completed the march, and he probably got back, too."

The prisoners marched the rest of the night. Spivey walked up and down the line, keeping the men together and urging them on. The commanders had difficulty in preventing the men from lying down in the snow.

It snowed most of the day. By nightfall of Jan. 28, the prisoners had reached a town called Halbau.

Popeye and a German major fought out the mayor. He said the Americans could not stay in the town. But the mayor was overruled by Popeye, who then went in search of lodging.

They Rest in Church

The sergeant returned in 30 minutes. He had found a Lutheran church that was heated.

"We marched up to the gates of the church, so beautiful, peaceful, and quiet in the fresh snow," Spivey related. "German churches are all beautiful. It seemed a sacrilege for the tired, unhappy, cursing Americans to enter, but we did."

"We crammed every nook with cold, unhappy kriegies (prisoners). No one was allowed to lie down, since he would occupy too much space."

"The pews were crowded . . . the balconies, the steps, every place was full of humanity."

Some Occupy Morgue

"The altar was reserved for Gen. Arthur Vanaman and the senior colonels. There were still 1,200 who could not get in. They occupied the morgue and all the crypts that could be forced open. Some built shelters on the leeward side of the church."

"Others got into the parochial school through the assistance of the Lutheran minister, who was kind and considerate of the Americans."

"I finally got into the main church and wiggled my way through a side door and up to the pulpit. Such a sight I have never beheld to this day."

"There were people in every conceivable position from half-sitting to upright positions. Among all of them lay the general stretched out on the lectern like a living sacrifice."

Some Men Get Sleds

They moved out early the next morning. Popeye confiscated a bicycle and sent a soldier ahead to find lodging for the next night.

Along the way, the prisoners traded cigarettes and chocolate to civilians for souvenirs and sleds on which to cart their knapsacks. All the prisoners were able to march. Some of the German guards could not and rode at the rear in two horse-drawn carts.

That night the POW's slept in three huge barns on the farm of a German count. The German civilians were helpful. Popeye agreed to spend the next day resting in the barns.

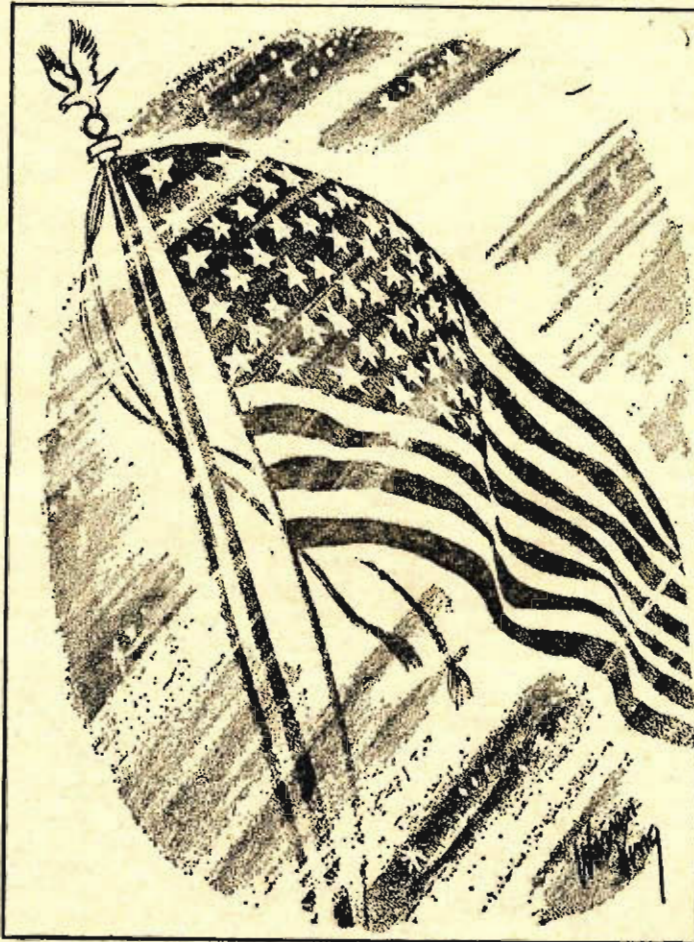

The march resumed on the fourth day. Many of the men became irritable. Spivey made three trips up and down the column to keep them moving. He estimated he walked six extra miles that day.

Courage — and a Kick

Jaycees Plan Street Dance As Free Fair Event

A free street dance is being planned by Culver Jaycees in connection with their second annual Free Fair scheduled in Culver June 22 to 26. Ed Amond, Jaycees spokesman, said the tentative date for the dance is Thursday, June 24 and it is hoped that a dance combo can be engaged to provide live music for the affair.

In other fair activities, Jaycees announced that two local organizations — Maxinkuckee Junior Woman's Club and Culver Firemen — have engaged booths at the fair, but the theme of their displays is not yet known.

The fair will be held at the same location as last year at the west end of College Avenue adjoining the school grounds. Drago Amusements of Maey will again provide the rides.

Jaycees also announced that a motorcycle is being planned as a special prize to be given away at the fair. Roger Wise and Lance Overmyer are co-chairmen of the fair, and proceeds will be used by the club to finance its year-around program of community projects.

MRS. RUTH G. CLEVELAND NAMED MEMBER OF COUNTY BOARD OF PUBLIC WELFARE

Mrs. Ruth G. Cleveland of Culver has been appointed to succeed Mrs. Genevieve A. Lowry of Argos as a member of the Marshall County Board of Public Welfare.

The appointment for a four-year term, ending May 31, 1969, was made by Marshall Circuit Judge Roy Sheneman.

The court also appointed Mrs. Jennie E. Jones of Plymouth to succeed herself for a four-year term. The board regularly meets once a month with County Welfare Department Director Don Patton.

Board Hears Objections To Swimming Pool

On Monday evening the Board of School Trustees of Culver Community Schools devoted a major part of its business meeting to a discussion of the proposed inclusion of a swimming pool in the new high school building. A delegation of citizens of Aubbeenaubee Township attended the School Board meeting to express objections to such a facility being included in the plans.

Mr. Vernie Bowen, former township trustee of Aubbeenaubee Township and a member of the School Board when it was organized in 1963, reviewed the reasons for the objections to the pool. He pointed out that both the initial cost for construction of the pool and the continuing operational cost of such a facility would create an added burden for the owners of taxable property. He estimated that it might take four or five additional employees of the school corporation to service the swimming pool facility and provide the necessary supervision. In addition, Mr. Bowen emphasized that the insurance costs for operation of the pool would be quite high.

In the course of the discussion some of the school officials explained that they looked upon the pool as a potentially valuable educational facility and that the use of the pool for school purposes would be an integral part of the physical education program. Concluding the discussion, the School Board directed Superintendent Frank McLane to secure data on the cost of operation of similar facilities in other new high schools. The School Board also explained that the entire plan for the new building would be reviewed for the public before the final plans would be submitted to the State agencies which must approve the plans before bids can be secured. If there then is evidence of widespread disapproval of the pool, such a facility would be omitted.

In other business, School Board member Walter Johnson reported that steps were being taken to

Gen. D. T. Spivey Receives Wayland Academy Citation

The superintendent of Culver Military Academy was honored for distinguished service to education through an unprecedented action taken by the board of trustees of Wayland Academy, Beaver Dam, Wis.

Major General Delmar T. Spivey, USAF (ret.), superintendent of Culver since 1956, received Wayland's Distinguished Service Citation during commencement ceremonies June 5 at Beaver Dam. It is the first time Wayland has made the award to someone outside its own community.

The Wayland citation is presented to an individual who has accomplished outstanding service in the field of education, distinctive achievement in the individual's own field of endeavor, and meritorious service to his fellowman. Said Raymond Patterson, headmaster of Wayland:

"In making this presentation, Wayland brings justifiable recognition to General Spivey for his fine work in behalf of all of independent secondary education. His leadership, inspiration, and willingness to promote all independent education, especially in the Midwest, has benefited each individual school."

General Spivey last month completed what was generally regarded as a significant year as president of the Independent Schools Association of the Central States, an organization of 75 elementary and secondary schools in 13 states. The fifty-seventh annual meeting of ISACS held here in April was regarded by other school administrators as one of the most meaningful in the association's history, and General Spivey was also honored for his work three years ago in conceiving and developing a new magazine to represent ISACS.

When General Spivey stepped down as president of ISACS, his successor, Ronald Beasley, headmaster of Mary Institute, St. Louis, called him one of the "great presidents" of ISACS.

General Spivey came to Culver in 1956 after a distinguished career of 30 years with the air force. In addition to his combat commands during World War II, General Spivey was involved in the academic affairs of the Air University at Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama.

At Culver, he has been instrumental in developing a scholarship program that now involves $202,311 and is available to more than 20 percent of the student body, he has been responsible for significant raises in teachers' salaries, and he has directed expansion of the Culver campus to its present size of 1,500 acres with five major buildings constructed during his administration.

Since the Wayland awards ceremony will occur during Culver's own commencement week program, General Spivey flew to Wayland by private plane on the morning of June 5 for a 10 a.m. presentation, and then returned to Culver that afternoon.

General Spivey's citation will hang alongside his picture at Wayland Academy. The award was conceived in 1961 and presented for the first time in 1962 to Glen Dye, chairman of Pake Corporation, Minneapolis. Marion Mitchell, long-time Wayland alumni secretary, won the award in 1963, and it was given to S. N. Pickard, past chairman of Wayland's board of trustees, last year.

School Board

 make tests of the sub-soil at the new high school site to determine the problems which might arise in getting firm footings and foundations. If preliminary borings to be started on Tuesday revealed unfavorable conditions below the surface, more elaborate and quite expensive tests would be required before the exact location of the building could be determined.

The School Board also heard objections of three bus drivers — Laurel Singleton, Joe Scott, and George Hodges — to the daily pay which had been offered for their services for the 1965-66 term. These men own part of the bus equipment which they use, and they would be paid on a mileage basis. After a detailed discussion of the situation, a compromise was agreed upon by the drivers and School Board.

A notice from the State Board of Tax Commissioners was read, indicating approval by that Commission of the proposed cumulative building fund levy of 80 cents. Thus this levy will become a part of the budget for 1966. The School Board also approved a resolution requesting an appropriation of cumulative building funds for the purchase of the site for the new high school. The 33-acre tract lies along the west side of School Street between Houghton Street and State Road 10.

Joseph D. Hughes Speaks At C.M.A. Commencement

The graduating class at Culver Military Academy was told Monday that it — and the rest of its generation — is beholden for its freedom at a price it can never repay.

In a commencement address, "The Inheritance of Young Americans," Joseph D. Hughes, administrative trustee of the Richard King Mellon Foundation, Pittsburgh, described the great technological strides made by the United States, and he added:

"Like our physical plant, political liberties did not always exist and they did not just happen. They had to be won and they have to be maintained. . . . We are engaged in the struggle today and we will be engaged in it tomorrow and always. The poet Carl Sandburg has written: 'who paid for my freedom, and what is the price, and am I somehow beholden?'"

"We are beholden," Hughes said. "We are beholden to those who have fought to win, hold, and enlarge our liberties. Some of them paid a price that can never be repaid. I am thinking of many good men I have known; of 312 Culver men who died in World War II and Korea. I am thinking of your Major 'Cully' (Carl B.) Mitchell who died fighting an evil, aggressive tyranny in South Vietnam."

Hughes told 209 members of the Culver senior class that their nation will demand no repayment for their inheritance. He called them "free agents," but he added that their background, training, and accepted responsibilities must result in "your maximum contribution to society and your country."

Hughes, who has held several high posts with the State Department and other governmental agencies, quoted Thomas Henry Huxley's statement of nearly 100 years ago when he said: "Perhaps the most valuable result of all education is the ability to make yourself do the thing you have to do, when it ought to be done, whether you like it or not. It is the first lesson that ought to be learned; and however early a man's training begins, it is probably the last lesson that he learns thoroughly."

Today's young generation generally lacks historical perspective, Hughes added. There is a tendency for today's high school generation to look upon its surroundings and to assume these surroundings have always been as they are now. "These things had to be created, and it does not happen easily. . . . These things are all part of our natural wealth," said Hughes. "As such, they belong to you. If they did not exist, you would have to build them yourselves, and if you think this is a mildly entertaining but abstract idea, I would invite you to visit those countries not yet able to harness their resources. The people of those underdeveloped countries do not take the great attainments of civilization for granted."

"They long to have what you have."

"In speaking of America's wealth," Hughes concluded, "I have not mentioned the greatest of our national assets. This is the generation of splendid young men and women who are coming from the schools into American life. As part of this generation, I wish each of you a good and happy future in the exciting years that lie ahead."

Donna Jean Rogers and John E. Large
Speak Wedding Vows In Plymouth Ceremony

MR. AND MRS. JOHN E. LARGE

The sanctuary of the Church of the Brethren, Michigan and Baker Streets, Plymouth, was graced with arrangements of white gladioli and blue carnations and candelabra for the Saturday afternoon, May 29, wedding of Miss Donna Jean Rogers and John E. Large of Monterey.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Rogers of Route 1, Culver, and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Large of Monterey are the parents of the bridegroom.

Rev. Hubert Miller of Fort Wayne, uncle of the bride, read the four o'clock double-ring ceremony. Paul White accompanied Miss Carol Overmyer who sang, "I Love You Truly," "Because," and "With This Ring I Thee Wed."

Between pews marked with white bows, the bride was escorted down the white-carpeted aisle on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. Re-embroidered Alencon lace was applied on the scalloped sabrina neckline and sheath skirt of her gown which was fashioned of peau taffeta with long pointed sleeves. A self bow at the back waistline held the detachable train. Her bouffant illusion veil fell gracefully from a pillbox headpiece of tiny pearls and iridescent sequins. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses with a detachable white orchid.

Miss Bonnie Parker of Culver was maid of honor and wore a gown of pervenchi blue silk chiffon over taffeta. It was fashioned with scoop neckline, detachable long sleeves and empire bodice, with a sheath skirt with a full wateau panel and a bow at the back waistline. Her headpiece was a matching bow with jet French veiling and she carried a colonial bouquet of white and blue carnations.

Misses Pat Ogden, Andrea Lefert, and Joan Dillon were bridesmaids and wore gowns identical to that of the maid of honor. Their colonial bouquets were of white carnations.

Miss Debbie Large, niece of the bridegroom, as flower girl, wore a blue nylon dress. Her headpiece was a matching bow with veiling. Her wrist corsage was of white carnations edged in blue and she carried a basket of white rose petals edged in blue.

Jerry Eskridge, uncle of the bridegroom, was best man and ushers were Jim Large, Jim Fleury, and Tom Bauer, all of Monterey.

A reception was held for 200 guests in the church Fellowship Hall. A five-tier cake, topped with a miniature bridal couple, centered the serving table. Behind the table was an arch and bells. The table was decorated with garlands of smilax. White daisies and blue carnations were around the cake, which was flanked by candles.

Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Glen Beauchamp of Des Moines, Iowa, Mrs. Hubert Miller of Fort Wayne, and Mrs. Orlin Lewis, Plymouth, aunts of the bride. Miss Francine Bartee of Goshen registered the guests and Mrs. Lyle Kaufman of LaPaz and Mrs. Rowena Markley of Plymouth seated the guests. Assisting with the gifts were Misses Valerie Gunder, Peggy Herr, Pam Crozier and Lonnie Darocsi.

As the couple left for a trip to Northern Michigan, the bride wore a turquoise linen dress with navy accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet. After June 11, they will be at home at 2500 S. 12th Street, Lincoln, Neb.

The bride graduated in 1965 from Culver High School. Mr. Large is a 1962 graduate of Monterey High School and is serving in the Air Force, stationed at Lincoln AFB, Lincoln, Neb.

Maxinkuckee Shamrocks' 4-H Club Meets

By Phyllis Jewell

The Maxinkuckee Shamrocks met Tuesday, June 1, at Molly Norris's house at 7:30 p.m. Linda Hudson and Linda Miller led us in the pledges to the American and 4-H flags.

The old business was then taken care of which consisted of making arrangements for our Bake Sale which is to be held Saturday, June 5, beginning at 8:30 a.m.

The minutes were then presented and the roll call was read. The new business was then called for. Mrs. Kline reminded us of the requirements of participating in a judging and demonstration program which we must meet in order to become an Honor Club. She also gave us the schedule of work meetings for the summer, which, by the way, had to be revised as you all know things never work out the way you plan.

The Health and Safety report was then given by Janet Zechel and the demonstration by Phyllis Jewell. We then adjourned our formal meeting.

The boy's club, which had been meeting in an adjoining room, then joined us and we sat down to enjoy a very entertaining and informative talk by Serapil Ger-giner (Sarah), a Turkish Foreign Exchange student from Plymouth. After this enjoyable talk, we adjourned to the kitchen for refreshments of coke and cookies.

Weeds On Property, New Fire Phone Get Attention At Board Meeting

Owners of vacant lots who fail to mow their weeds drew the special attention of the Town Board at its regular meeting on Monday night.

The Board instructed Clerk-Treasurer Ruth Lennen to prepare letters to the property owners advising them of their obligations to keep the weeds mowed. If this is not done, the Town is empowered to mow the weeds for the owner, and to charge the expense to the property.

Board members noted that several complaints of unkept property had already been received, and instructed Police Chief Don Mikesell to investigate and report any additional instances of violations.

Fire Chief Dave Burns recommended to the Board that a fire-answering telephone be installed in the Tom Walker residence to provide 24-hour-a-day answering service, for which Walker would be compensated in the sum of $150 to the end of 1965, and at the new rate of $50 a month starting next January.

Under this new arrangement fire phones now answered by Mrs. Dave Burns and James Bonine would be retained but as stand-by equipment only. The new rate scale will be double that currently paid but will assure prompt 24-hour coverage with less equipment than neighboring towns require, according to Burns.

The Board asked Don Mikesell to secure price quotations for the purchase of a riding lawn mower which will be used in the Town Park, pump house, and sewer plant, and heard a report that "No Alcoholic Beverages Permitted" signs have been installed in the Town Park.

The Board announced that Danny Haenes, a high school senior, has been named assistant life guard at the public beach and will work Saturdays, Sundays, Mondays and intervening holidays.

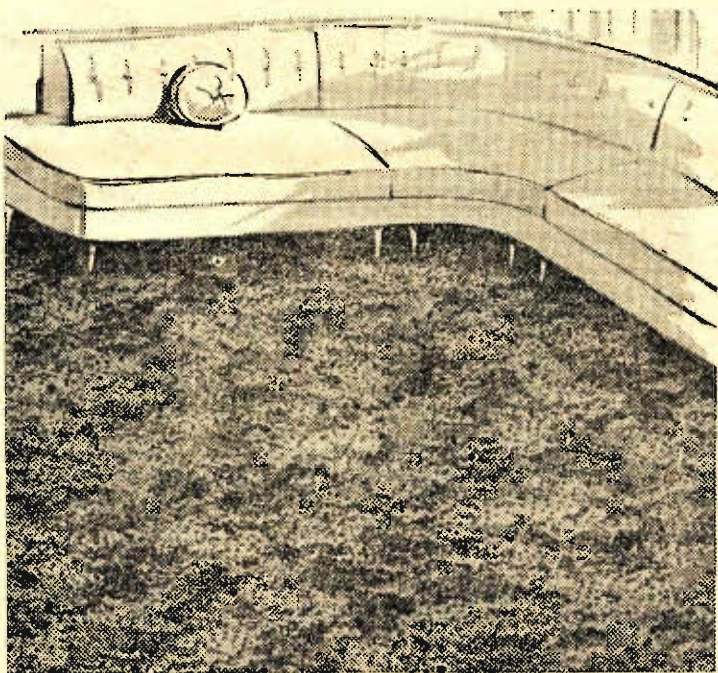

The Board waived a third reading and passed Ordinance No. 188 enabling the Town of Culver to accept and use the proceeds of the increased state cigarette tax, to be forthcoming later this year.

War Prisoner

"couragement could do," Spivey said.

"He marched at the rear of the column and, when one of the men would fall out or straggle, Doc Robinson would get him standing up and give him a good swift kick and a few words of encouragement.

"He would take the pack of the prisoner to help him along. I saw him carrying as many as three knapsacks at one time."

The procession straggled into Muskau on the fourth night. The men were able to stay in a huge pottery plant, where they found warmth around large heated boilers.

Rest for 3 Days

The prisoners remained in the plant for three days. They got hot food and were able to refresh themselves.

The snow melted, so the make-shift sleds had to be abandoned. Baby carriages and hand carts appeared.

On the third day in Muskau, Gen. Vanaman received a long distance call from Maj. G. Simoliet, who was in Berlin. Simoliet was the assistant commandant of the prison camp.

Vanaman was told to select 10 of his most deserving men. No reasons were given for the order, Spivey recalled.

Nothing more developed on this until two days later, when the prisoners reached Spremburg, he said.

"A German officer came blustering up to me with a tremendous toothish grin on his face, stating that I was to prepare myself for immediate repatriation.

"It seemed we had been selected by the Germans for some kind of a mission that would take us to Berlin and then to Switzerland.

Installment 5

Delmar Spivey was an angry man the day he was separated from his fellow prisoners of war. It was early in February, 1945, in the rail station in Spremburg, Germany.

"As I stood there on the sidewalk and watched my 2,000 men march toward the station, I wanted to curse and kill every German I could find and to take my men and head for home," he related.

The POWs were heading for a huge prison encampment at Moosburg. Spivey and Brig. Gen. Arthur A. Vanaman, highest ranking American prisoner of the Germans, were going in the opposite direction to Berlin.

Go on Uncertain Mission

Their mission was uncertain. The Germans told them only that they had to go. This was in the chaotic last days of the European fighting of World War II.

Spivey and Vanaman traveled to Berlin on crowded trains under guard. They arrived at about 1:30 a.m., Feb. 4, 1945.

"Berlin was a shambles," Spivey recalled. "Instead of there being moving traffic, there were scurrying feet. Our German sunders (guards) decided we could not obtain any kind of transportation to get us to another station across Berlin."

See Burning Buildings

"So we walked. Our route took us along one of the main streets. Street cars were turned on end, and there were dead horses still harnessed to overturned wagons. Buildings burned on either side of the street, and we heard loud crashes from falling walls."

They reached the other station and took a train for Luckenwalde. They were caught up in the mass of humanity trying to escape Berlin and found themselves separated for a time.

At Luckenwalde the Americans were taken to another prisoner of war camp. They were assigned to a Polish officers' barracks.

"No one told us a thing," Spivey said. "We did not know why we were there and neither did the German commandant."

Delay in Plans Occurs

Several days later word came from Berlin that there had been a delay in plans. The Americans were moved into a big German barracks.

The days became weeks, and nothing happened. The Americans grew discouraged.

The Germans permitted them to take walks outside the compound. They bartered with German civilians, exchanging cigarettes for food. Spivey got two fresh eggs in exchange and concealed them under his hat. He still remembers the eggs rolling about on his bald head as he walked past the German guards at the camp.

"We knew that American POWs were being shifted from camp to camp," he said. "They were not getting the parcels of food and medical supplies that were so badly needed."

Ask Aid to POWs

Vanaman and Spivey appealed to the Germans to deal with the pressing needs of the POWs. A letter sent to the Luftwaffe headquarters asked that something be done.

Word came that the Germans were negotiating through the International Red Cross and the Swiss. The negotiations were designed to arrange for American trucks to haul food and medical supplies to the American prisoners in Germany.

Later, Lt. Gen. Gottlob Berger, the head of POWs, guaranteed the trucks would be given safe passage. This was done, and soon American army trucks, driven by Canadian prisoners of the Germans, entered Germany.

Arrangements for delivering the parcels were worked out in medical conferences in Berlin in late March. Spivey said the meetings were conducted by Dr. Helmut Haubold, an aid of Gen. Berger.

Stay in Lavish House

Vanaman and Spivey attended the conferences and were quartered in an elegant house in the Wan See district of Berlin. They had beds and a bathroom and excellent food.

They conferred for hours with the Germans, Spivey recalled. POW doctors of other allied nations also were present.

A system was worked out to insure distribution of the Red Cross parcels to the prisoners. American doctors were given passes and motorcycles with sidecars to travel anywhere in unoccupied Germany to inspect the distribution of the parcels.

Two Stay On in Berlin

"Insofar as I can determine, the Germans did their best to insure the plan was carried out, even though thousands of their own people were starving," Spivey said.

After the medical conferences, Vanaman and Spivey were kept in Berlin. They were taken on trips to view the destruction of the city by allied bombers.

On April 1, they met Max Schmeling, the former heavyweight boxing champion. He invited them to his home.

"He asked if I would like to see his gym," Spivey said. "I went with him up to the second floor, and he did show me a very complete but small gymnasium."

Asks Favor of Boxer

"The real reason for the visit, I learned, was that Schmeling wanted me to sign a letter saying he had helped the American prisoners in every way he could."

"I told him I could not do this but that I was sure the Americans would take care of him. In return, he asked if he could do anything for me and I said, 'Yes.'"

"Col. Russell Spicer, a good friend of mine, was in a prison camp near Barth and had been sentenced to death for continually antagonizing the Germans. I asked Schmeling to see what he could do."

After the war, Spivey inquired in Washington whether Schmeling ever made a trip to Barth.

"Schmeling made the trip, and Russ Spicer is alive today," the general said.

They Meet Gen. Berger

On April 2, 1945, Dr. Haubold instructed Vanaman and Spivey to report to Gen. Berger that evening.

"His headquarters was in a huge residence somewhere on the outskirts of Berlin," Spivey said. "It was heavily guarded by S. S. troops. We passed through three lines of sentries and were finally ushered into the great reception hall and then into Gen. Berger's office."

"He was an impressive fellow, about 55. He rushed forward to meet us with hearty handshakes and great claps by his huge hands on our backs."

"We were taken into his study, where a great fire was roaring in the fireplace. We were seated, and immediately the general began to tell of his battles with the Russians, about the deaths of his three sons, and the loss of his estates in East Prussia and Poland."

"I was frightened, and so was Gen. Vanaman. We knew that something was in the offing and that we must be prepared to meet it."

Berger talked until 4 a.m. He described his plans to stop the Russians and intimidated many times that the United States should join in this effort. Berger said that Russia was the true enemy of the United States, Britain, and Germany.

"I have never heard a clearer elucidation and prophesy concerning what has actually happened since that time in my whole life," Spivey emphasized.

Moslem Aid Predicted

"He assured us that within five years every American and every Briton would regret not having joined forces with the Germans in those last days in order to crush what he termed our common foe."

Berger briefed them on how the Moslem world would join in on a grand assault against Russia.

The session was interrupted by an air raid. Berger did not leave his office but sent Spivey and Vanaman to a shelter.

"We were taken back to our quarters," Spivey related. "Later, we were told that Berger would meet again with us the next night. We knew he wanted something, but what?"

(The concluding installments will follow next week.)

Purdue University held commencement ceremonies Sunday, June 6, for approximately 4,660 graduates. The class is 12 per cent greater than the 4,065 graduates in 1963-64.

Biggest group among those receiving degrees were about 2,675 June graduates, including more than 2,000 bachelor degrees, 384 master degrees, 116 doctorates and 171 associate (two-year) degrees.

The annual commencement programs are open also to the 1,192 midyear graduates and 794 who completed their studies last August.

The June degree candidates from Culver were Roberta Lou Easterday, Bachelor, Home Economics; and Nancy Eileen Ervin, Bachelor, Humanities.

Editor, THE CITIZEN:

June 14 is Flag Day. How many people in our neighborhood will display the Flag.

Our Flag is as vital as the free air we breathe. It is part of every American living or dead. Old Glory represents our Constitution, our laws, our ideals. Our Flag stands for all the people. It has been bathed in blood and tears; has evoked expressions of joy and song; has been raised for victors; and has been draped on caskets of those who gave their lives in battle.

Have you ever thought of these things as the Flag passes by in review? The communists boast that they will destroy our government. Looking at the red, white and blue Stars and Stripes should stir every loyal American citizen to resolve to defend freedom forever.

Christian Scientists Hold Annual Meeting

MRS. FRANCIS S. WELLS, C.S.B.

The Christian Science Board of Directors urged its church members to find the "areas of agreement" which exist with other denominations — "rather than think of ourselves as entirely different or exclusive."

From the church's earliest beginnings, said the Directors, it has been deeply involved in "the search for the real source of unity."

The message was presented before several thousand members at the annual meeting of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The annual election of a new church president by the Directors was also announced at the meeting. Mrs. Francis S. Wells, C.S.B., of San Antonio, Texas, took over as presiding officer from the retiring president, Edward Froderman of Chicago, Ill. Both of them also hold positions on the Board of Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Mrs. Wells, a graduate of Briarcliff College, N.Y., has been an active teacher and practitioner of Christian Science in San Antonio for several years.

In her remarks to the meeting, Mrs. Wells emphasized that "divine Love knows no race or creed."

Observing that resistance to Christian ideals seems "rampant in the thoughts of men," she then added: "On the other hand, the thought of mankind has never been so roused, the desire to help so active.

"Jesus prophesied disturbed world conditions," she noted. He "foresaw the fermentation which would take place in mortal thought.

"When we learn to love and understand one another as God's perfect ideas, we shall live peacefully."

In reports to the meeting by the managers of various church departments, it was disclosed that the number of Christian Science branch churches had reached the 3,300 mark with recent additions in Argentina, The Netherlands,

By Mary Whitman

Have you ever seen a copper nickel — or a partially engraved penny?

These are among the typical mint errors that may turn up in your pocket change.

"Mis-struck coins usually attract a lot of publicity," notes Ken Bressett, numismatic editor at Whitman Publishing Co., Racine, Wis. "People who find them think they have discovered a valuable rarity, and local news outlets often play up the event."

However, most coins of this sort are not as valuable as you might think.

Mint errors are caused by irregularities in mass production, and some of the defective coins get into circulation despite careful inspection by the government.

Among the common numismatic oddities are coins struck on the wrong planchet (the metal blank from which the coin is stamped), such as a copper nickel, and coins struck off center, typified by an irregular penny.

Several types of errors can occur while coin blanks are being cut to size at the U. S. Mint. These include partial coins, "sliced" or split planchet coins, and "thick" or double planchet coins.

Another irregularity is the laminated planchet, in which portions of surface metal have peeled or flaked off, leaving a defective design.

"It's always exciting to find such coins, and a ready market exists for them at fairly good prices. But you should beware of claims that they're worth large sums of money," says Bressett, whose firm is the nation's leading manufacturer of coin collecting supplies.

One type of mint error that can represent substantial value is the superimposed date, such as the 1942 over 1941 Liberty dime ($360 in new condition) or the 1955 Doubled-Die penny ($250 in new condition).

When in doubt, the best way to determine the value of an irregular coin is to have it appraised by an expert, he concludes.

New Zealand, and, for the first time, in Guatemala and Korea.

Several other reports at the meeting indicated that the church is continuing to broaden its communications effort through improvements in its public lectures, weekly radio series, New York World's Fair Pavilion, and various publications, including the well-known daily newspaper, The Christian Science Monitor.

ENTERS COLLEGE AT AGE 57

A former worker in Gary's steel mills, 64-year-old Paul A. Miller, is now a teacher at Purdue University.

But that's only half the story. He left the mills in 1925 for a 33-year career with the U. S. Weather Bureau. Although he had only a year of college training, Miller held a number of top positions. He was in charge of the Indianapolis Weather Bureau from 1947 to 1950.

At age 57, Miller retired from the Weather Bureau and joined Purdue's freshman class as a student. Four years later he held the B.S. degree in biology. Last January he received the M.S. degree in soils and joined the department of agronomy for teaching and research. Meteorology and ecology are his major interests.

Through the years, Miller says, a desire to know more about the environment of man and plants has guided his work.

He returned to get a university education, with classmates nearly 40 years his junior, simply because it was something he'd always wanted. Going to class was just as he remembered it, he said, with the same feelings he had as a youth.

Miller, who grew up in Madison county around Alexandria and Elwood, worked in the steel mills and studied two semesters at Purdue University. He first tried weather work as a junior observer about 1925 in Macon, Ga.

He was a junior observer at the station in Davenport, Iowa, before moving to the airport station in Moline, Ill.

From there, Miller took charge of establishing a weather station at Bolling Field, Washington, D.C. in 1929.

Through the years that followed, he served in half a dozen various weather stations and administrative posts. He was once special assistant to the chief of the bureau and once assistant regional director at Atlanta, Ga. He served 13 years as head of the airways section of the Bureau's Aerologi-cal Division in Washington, D.C.

Following World War II, Miller worked in aviation weather projects. He was involved in weather work at Tule, Greenland, and served as executive officer for arctic network operations.

He holds the Department Silver Medal, awarded for his reorganization of the aviation flight advisory weather service.

As to the future, Miller plans to continue meteorological research and part-time teaching at Purdue.

HOUSECLEANING SAFETY TIPS

If you are housecleaning, don't keep working until you are overtired.

F. R. Willsey, Purdue University safety specialist, says fatigue breeds accidents. So, stop occasionally for a rest period.

He also offers several other suggestions for safer housecleaning. Unnecessary falls, for example, can be avoided by being sure your ladder is in safe condition. Then, use it properly.

Use a ladder or step stool for all climbing — your kitchen chair was meant for sitting only. Use a ladder, too, for window washing. Don't sit on the window sill.

Cleaning fluids rank high as hazards. Use them according to directions and keep cleaning compounds away from small children who might taste them.

Using hot water for cleaning often means leaving buckets or large pans of water on the floor where a small child may fall into it and be scalded, injured by strong cleaning agents, or even drowned. Do not put pans, pails, brushes and other cleaning equipment in places where adults may trip and fall over them.

At the end of most cleaning comes the inevitable rubbish pile which is a perfect spot for fire. Dispose of rubbish promptly. Do not store rags used with turpentine, paint or flammable liquids.

If you rearrange furniture, be sure to leave clear pathways to the doors. Willsey also says women are foolish to lift heavy furniture alone — get help for these heavier jobs.

Make certain scatter rugs are firmly anchored with rubberized backing. If they aren't skid-proof, use foam rubber strips designed for this purpose.

As you clean you can check each room for possible hazards and eliminate them. When you finish you have a safer house as well as a cleaner one.

Our Academy Neighbors

(Culled from the May Issue of the CMA Messenger)

Our most sincere sympathy to Gerald and Eleanor Feece on the death of their 17-year-old son, Jerry. April 23, Jerry was riding his bicycle home from his job at a drive-in and was struck by an automobile and killed instantly. He lived in Sauk Village, Ill. Services were held in the Lansing Apostolic Church and burial was in the Glen Oak Cemetery.

Lt. Col. Scruggs departed recently for Indianapolis, Ind., to inspect the high school ROTC program in that city. . . The Military Science Department received its new member and his family April 26. M/Sgt. R. L. Johnson and his family reside at 434 Lake Street. His wife and daughter Sharon are natives of Springfield, Mo. . . The detachment will have a unit party at the Three Sisters May 25 to mark the departure of the Proutys and the arrival of the Johnsons. . . The Proutys will be going on leave the first part of June as will the Friends. . . Capt. Friend will go to summer camp at Fort Knox, Ky. Jeanine and the remainder of the family will go home to Nebraska to visit family while Capt. Friend is in Kentucky. . . M/Sgt. Johnson will also go to summer camp, but at Fort Riley, Kan. . . The rifle team will have its annual picnic at the home of Col. and Mrs. Scruggs May 23. Fifty-three medals will be distributed to members of the team.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Walker, Scottsdale, Ariz., will be in Culver for a short visit during June week. They will return then to Arizona and Tom will resume his studies at Arizona State University. Tom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Walker of Culver. The Walker's new address is 8221 East Garfield, L11, Scottsdale, Ariz.

Miss Joyce Morrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Morrison is to be graduated from Ball State Teachers College in June. She will be teaching in Denver, Colo.

Jeanne and Bill Anderson are "revving" their engines in anticipation of the Indianapolis 500 Race on Memorial Day. They are making it a four-day holiday, and the race is one of the highlights of the year for them.

Mrs. Elgie Good spent the Mothers Day weekend with her daughter Bonnie at Purdue University. . . Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Starr, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Starr and sons of Bremen, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hanson of Lowell, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Peer of Argos, spent Mother's Day with Mrs. Ethel Hudkins at Kewanaw. Mrs. Starr received a telephone call from daughter Miriam on Mother's Day from Maryland.

Frances and Ralph Geiselman attended the Judy Garland Show at McCormick Place, Chicago, Friday evening, May 7. They were overnight guests of Miss Jean Overmyer. . . Abbie Thomas attended the Leifers Ford-Auburne alumnae banquet Saturday night at Leifers Ford. Mr. and Mrs. Keith Thomas and son were Mothers Day dinner guests with her.

Marine Corp. Jerry Kimmel called his parents Margaret and Lester Kimmel and informed them that he is being discharged June 12 after being in the service four years.

Mother's Day weekend was spent in Newcastle by Sara Rietzoldt and Bob as they visited Judy and her family.

Linda Heiser is looking forward to returning to her alma mater, Gallaudet College, Washington, D.C., for her fiancé's graduation in June. She will be back here in time for the start of Summer Schools.

Betty Bryant had a surprise visit from her brother and his daughter from St. Louis over Mother's Day weekend. Son Chip, who is putting in his last days as a civilian here after a wonderful two months stay in Mexico with two Culver classmates, is due at Fort Benjamin Harrison May 19.

Pat Hamilton attended the Easter Pageant at Marion, Ind. . . Mary Landis visited the first week in May. . . Doris Carlisle, a former employee, visited Office Services with her son, Arlen, the first part of May. Doris is now living in Elkhart where her husband is employed.

Carol Stayton will be leaving Office Services on May 28. Carol is being married June 19 and will be residing in Warsaw, Ind., where her future husband is employed.

Our artist friends had their day back in April when the music and arts division of the Culver City Club had an exhibit of Hobby Arts at the Gates and Calhoun Chevrolet Showroom. Painting, ceramics, knitting, etc., were exhibited. Dr. George Johnson had lettering, Barbara Heggard, knitting, the whole Warner Williams family, modeling, Ruth MacQuillan, sculpture, Erna Short, Phyllis Helber, and Pat Hodgkin, watercolors, and members of Jean Williams' classes were represented. And then from April 26 to May 3, the Northern Indiana Artists' Association held an exhibit in Robertson's Tea Room in South Bend. Two very active members of that group are Phyllis Helber and Erna Short, who helped to plan and host the display.

Too many of these things "pass in the night," unfortunately; we shouldn't miss — or dismiss — the talents in our midst!

(Your reporter, Charlotte Walker, making enquiries about a sign received the following answer to said enquiry): "Designating streets by numbers is supremely efficient and also supremely lusterless. How drab, we felt, that our address was 400 West 18th road, when acquaintances elsewhere lived on Lullaby Lane, Bougainvillea Boulevard, Anacoluton Avenue, or Medowlark Mews. My solution was to Latinize our address. Thus our signboard at the entrance to our driveway reads thus:

COCC VIA DUODEVICESIMA
(400 West 18th Road)
The ROOS family

The parenthetical English is, of course, for the benefit of Maiben's Laundry, Tousley and Butler, Culligan's Soft Water, and other callers whose Latin is limp." John Roos is known for his Latin and his movie reviews, and now his signboard. The frosting on the cake came when a S.S. alumnus addressed a letter to that address. Latin and all, and it arrived without delay!

It was a family Easter for Frieda and Ted Clarno, with Frieda's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hagan, coming from New Carlisle for Palm Sunday, and then all of them going on to Kentland over Easter to be with Frieda's brother, Roger, and his family. . . Larry and Donna Rickett hosted Larry's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rickett, from Wooster, Ohio, over a merry May weekend, and are looking forward to having friends from Wooster, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gessel, come for their first view of Culver the end of May. . . A world traveler has been resting up from and talking about her wonderful round-the-world tour at the Mel Ester's. The delightful and well-informed lady is Mel's aunt, Mrs. Mildred Adams, of Boothbay Harbor, Maine. She completed her 65-day trip in San Francisco, where her hostess and she were entertained by Nancy Rossow Ryan and Ethel, during Ethel's joyful visit to the West Coast. . . If folks thought they were seeing double over Mother's day, they were — as far as looking at Fred Lane goes. Fred's twin, Francis, and his family from Lafayette were here, along with their sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. James Baldwin, and daughter, of Indianapolis, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lane, the parents and grandparents, who came from Shelbyville for the reunion.

Norma Henderson's Mother's Day was made brighter by the presence of the Mike McKinstry and their youngsters, who came over from Wayne, Ill., and Jim and Toots Henderson, who came up from Columbus, Ind. . . A quick weekend visit the first of May was paid John and Phyllis Roos when Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson, Phyllis' sister and her husband, from Philadelphia, brought their son, Paul, to spend a few days with the Roos family before taking his summer job on the Great Lakes. Paul, a veteran of the Summer Schools band, ('62 and '63), and now a student at Penn State, will spend four months as a bellhop aboard the Great Lakes passenger steamship, "South American," which touches in all major ports of the Great Lakes in the U.S. and Canada. The Rooses expect to be passengers sometime during the summer and promise to ring bells frequently to see how promptly Paul "hops" them! . . . Sparking up the Tom Walker household through June Week is Mrs. Bess Patten, Tom's aunt, from Los Angeles, who is making her annual visit of the "Walker relatives" across the country. . . Louise Eyerly's face is again on the scene, and as a result, Jag's face is all a-gleam. Louise looks marvelous after her winter in Florida. . . John Tanner's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Lester F. Whitney, of Holdrege, Neb., will spend a week with John, Florence and children.

The latest news from Tina Hughes, down in Bolivia, is that she is trying to decide on a new assignment (and leans in the direction of taking it) to Ororo, on the Alto Plano, as supervisor of public health at a new hospital there. Right now, she is still in Sucre, and is teaching Public Health to a "batch" of boys, gives endless smallpox vaccinations and is generally the busy, helpful PCV. . . And, as long as we're talking about the Hughes family — Greta Hughes Kalli and young Kristin were here for several days to delight Barb's and Art's, and Eric's, hearts! Greta was on her spring vacation from the Hyde Park High School in Chicago, where she teaches "Essential Classes," students with an average I.Q. of 90, and is seemingly doing a tremendous job, since she recently directed her classes in a production of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," and was very pleased with their performance. More power to her in her work. While Art and Barbara went up for the girls, husband-father Ribbi came down to take them home.

Mark Uebel joined the line of faculty children "having things out" when he and his tonsils parted company recently. He recovered wonderfully, and is back at all the exciting spring games. . . Janie Bray spent her week's spring vacation with her father, Allan, catching up on all of her friends by visiting classes at the Academy and downtown. . . Dave King's three children will join him and Paula the end of June. For the information of the younger set, Laura, 11, Bonnie, 10, and Tom, 8, will be here for a month. . . Congratulations to "Bud" Zieg for being elected to Beta Gamma Sigma, scholastic honorary society in Business at I.U.'s Graduate School of Business. "Bud" will graduate from I.U. in June and be back at his post here in Summer Schools, before going off to the greater world in the fall.

There are at least two men who are taking the first part of their sabbatical this summer: Mac MacQuillan will be at Purdue, living in a graduate dorm, taking special work in forensics and speech, while Ruth helps to keep the library in order here. Son Malcolm will do volunteer work with the Presbyterian Church in community centers in Chicago's underprivileged areas as a change from his studies at Wooster. . . M. L. (Brownie) Brown, Winnie and children will leave for New Hampshire and Massachusetts right after commencement to visit their families and for Brownie to confer with John Mellon, at Cambridge, about their book. Brownie will return here, work on the linguistic project, and then in August will return to Harvard to work with John. . . The Helber family will leave for Sorocco, N.M., where Wally will work with the Earth Science Institute, with emphasis on geology. For 10 weeks he'll be climbing, chipping and digging in the mountains of N.M., on field trips, while Phyllis paints and takes the girls for a visit to her sister, who lives in Tucson.

And Bill Garrison finally got his appointment with the Colorado Outward-Bound school for July and August. No provisions for Ellen and the children, who will mind the farm until the last two weeks of August, when they hope to join Bill, although Matt will have been able to spend the whole month out there with his dad. . . Norm Wagner and King Moore will be at I.U. Norm has a Fleet Fund grant to take two courses in English (Graduate), Literature — 20th Century Novel, and 20th Century Fiction. King, on an IDEA grant, will study a special course in History of Russia and International Communism. . . Harvard will have Bill Martin this summer. Bill will be teaching the practical end of a course called "Drama in the Theater" to secondary school teachers while Robert Chapman teaches the theory. He will also be in charge of the experimental theater in the Loeb Drama Center during the eight week session, July 6-August 29. Katy remains here, since son David will be in Woodcraft Camp, and she will be helping in Culver's own Theater School. Patrick Henry, from the Goodman Theatre in Chicago, replaces Bill in the director's box during Summer Schools.

Sue and Bob Bauman are going to the Southern Arizona School, near Tucson where Bob will be headmaster with 75 boys in grades seven through 12, under his benevolent guidance. The middle of May Bob made a flying trip out there to witness the school's Commencement activities but he won't assume his duties there until July 1st. Sue and Alicia will go to the Adirondacks, with Sue's parents before joining Bob toward the end of July.

Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau, Mo., has lured Dr. Len Stevens away from Culver after 18 consecutive years, and therefore, Marie, from the English Department office. Len will be teaching French in Summer School at Cape while Marie and children remain here to tie up loose ends. During the regular school year Len will be teaching both French and Spanish at the College, which is part of the State University system in Missouri.
