The Twentieth Regiment Indiana Volunteers held their annual meeting at Plymouth last week. The address of welcome was made by Capt. Amasa Johnson. Camp fires, speeches, songs, instrumental music and a thorough discussing of old times were the main features of the meeting. The 20th Indiana had an enrollment of 1,403, but at the end of the war it numbered only 1,202,—201 having been killed and 570 wounded. The regiment participated in twenty-one pitched battles and assisted in five others.

In this county there are two men seeking the votes of the people for state representative. One of them is an old veteran who spent three of the best years of his life to help preserve the union. He is an educated, cultured gentleman, thoroughly versed in all the details of public life, and as you all know is strictly honest and more than worthy of your support. He will fill the office with honor to himself and constituency and look after the interest of all concerned to the best of his ability — and that man is Dr. O. A. Rea, of this township. On the other hand we have Adam Wise, of Center township, a young attorney. He is a good fellow and will undoubtedly look after the interests of the people to the best of his ability. Compare the two "mentally," fairly and squarely, and then take your choice.

We have heard it said that this paper has not shown a fairness in writing up political speeches that have been made in Culver City the past three months. Now during the whole fall we have not heard only two speeches in this city, being absent or compelled to remain at home on account of sickness. Hence we have given most of them a passing notice. We have, however, aimed to stand aloof from politics and in no way through our paper express an opinion that would be in any way derogatory to one party or the other. We aim to be fair and impartial, and yet "mistakes will happen in the best of families."

Preparations are now completed for a great Free Silver Barbecue and general good time to be given at Rochester on Wednesday, October 21st. It is announced that ten speakers of state and national prominence, including W. J. Bryan, if he gets back to Indiana, will be there, twenty bands are assured and a grand free dinner will be features of the occasion. Rochester is a beautiful city, those of our people who attend the barbecue will be hospitably received and entertained, and all of the railroads are making rates so low it will be an unusually favorable opportunity to visit Rochester and see the big crowd.

John Osborn is about to erect a house and barn upon his lot near the school house, which when completed will be occupied by his father, Wm. Osborn, who will retire from his farm. The old gentleman has been a resident of Starke county since 1840. He has been a successful business man and through honesty, integrity, and hard work, has gathered together a goodly supply of this world's goods, and to-day has one of the best farms in Indiana, consisting of several hundred acres. We welcome him to Culver City, and hope that he and his amiable wife may pass the remainder of their lives in peace and happiness, knowing they well deserve a rest from the cares and turmoil of a farm life.

Dr. O. A. Rea returned home Saturday night, after taking a trip through the eastern and western portion of the county, where he made several speeches. He says everything looks very favorable for a Republican victory in the county, and is reasonably sure that McKinley will carry this county, the predictions to the contrary notwithstanding. Everywhere he spoke he was greeted with crowded houses and the enthusiasm for the "grand old party" is steadily increasing. All those men who are wavering between two opinions are being gradually drawn into the fold, and this is what means victory not only to the national ticket but the county.

Teachers' Institute.

The teachers of Union township met for their first institute at Maxenkuckee, Saturday, October 10.

The genuine interest and enthusiasm with which they begun their work indicates that self improvement has not been neglected during their summer vacation. As evidence of being up with the times in these advanced years of the nineteenth century, when woman in all honorable ways is proving herself the peer of man, Miss Lizzie Brownlee has been chosen their presiding officer.

The first subject, Literary Interpretations, was introduced by Miss Nellie Snider. The nature of literature was carefully noted, and among the many good things said, one bright gem deserves quoting — "While history portrays life as it has been lived, literature portrays it as it can be lived."

Miss Hissong then introduced the work on European Civilization by reading an interesting and well prepared biographical sketch of Mr. Guizot, the French historian. Following this was discussed Civilization, with its elements, evils and benefits.

The opening subject for the afternoon session was that of Method. Though a listless and unattractive theme for the ordinary student, the talks by Messrs. Behmer, Scates and others showed it to be one of the live topics to those seeking more light.

After a thorough treatment of the "Subject Matter and Purpose of Grammar," the meeting adjourned to meet at the Shaw School House, Nov. 7. TRILBY.

Culver Military Academy.

Under the new order of things, everything is running as smooth and regular as clock work at the Culver Military Academy. The boys from the "sunny south" are delighted with the academy and its surroundings, and are especially pleased with beautiful Lake Maxenkuckee. They look forward with great expectations for many hours of unalloyed pleasure next summer, fishing, boating, and bathing in its crystal waters.

A reporter for the HERALD called at the academy Monday afternoon, and found a small army of manly looking young fellows going through a course of drill, and the HERALD man was greatly amused while watching the antics of several youngsters who evaded the quick eye of the drill master.

The rules of this excellent institution are very strict and the use of tobacco, cigarettes, etc., are strictly forbidden.

Leaving the campus, the reporter found several cadets walking around in a circle single file, under the direct supervision of Dr. Jaeger, and learned that they were walking off time, having been caught smoking. Under the new order, the students are kept under very strict rules, which will have a tendency in the end to develop in them principles of integrity which they will remember as long as life lasts. Passing through the academy he found every department as clean and tidy as a band-box. Col. Fleet was there but was too busy for an interview, so the reporter retired.

Suggestions to Swine Growers.

Last year Indiana lost five hundred and eighty thousand, two hundred and sixty hogs by disease, entailing a property loss of three and a quarter million dollars. Nearly the entire loss was due to cholera and swine plague. It was distributed as follows: In two hundred and thirty-two townships the loss was from ten to twenty per cent; in one hundred and twenty-seven, from twenty to thirty per cent; in fifty-nine, from thirty to forty per cent; in fifty-three, from forty to fifty per cent; in twenty-four, from fifty to sixty per cent; in twelve, from sixty to seventy per cent; and in one, seventy-seven per cent, while the remainder lost less than ten per cent. of all the hogs that were produced.

The disease is well disseminated in this state this fall, and the season of greatest loss will soon be upon us. Every effort should be made to lessen its ravages as much as possible. An important factor in reducing the loss, is to provide proper shelter, as all hogs with only a mild attack, or having apparently made a recovery, may take a relapse if exposed to a cold rain or a sudden change to rough weather. There are thousands of hogs uow in a condition to become affected with pneumonia, which would escape if given a little protection. Any shed which will keep off the rain and break the wind is sufficient. The floor should be dry, but little bedding is needed, and that renewed frequently. Burn litter and bedding once a week. keep the herd divided so that crowding is impossible. Remember a straw stack is the most unfavorable place that can be provided for sick hogs.

The essentials in prevention are good food, pure water and clean, dry quarters.

The station would be pleased to receive information from any source as to the presence of the disease and of all successful ways of checking it.

Address, A. W. BITTING, Experiment Station Veterinarian, LaFayette, Ind.

CHEPACHET, R. I., Oct. 5, '96.

MR. NEARPASS:

DEAR SIR: Your bill received, and many thanks to you for sending it. I had forgotten just when my subscription was out. Enclosed please find $1 for the HERALD for one year. I noticed your call in the paper asking the subscribers to remit, but I did not think that I was behind with my payment. I know you need all you can get to run your business; and it is not a good recommend to go out before the world to have the editor of Culver City pleading and begging through the columns of his paper for his just dues from his subscribers. How can people expect strangers to come into such a poor, desolate country where they cannot pay $1 per year for their paper: I hope that you will meet with better success the coming year.

Mrs. R. A. STEERE.

Persons who have catarrh or who easily catch "catarrh cold" find immediate and permanent relief by snuffing a little lukewarm water into the nostrils every morning after rising, first clansing them by blowing the nose. The water may be held in the palm of the hand and thus applied to the nostrils. During an attack of cold in the head this method of treatment will be found very effective. A little salt added to the water is very good, and a drop of carbolie acid is also recommended, but must be used cautiously.

STAGE ROBBERS BUSY

SCENE OF OPERATIONS NOW IN NEW MEXICO.

Rifle the Mail Sack and Then Steal the Horses—Germany Takes Further Steps Inimical to Interests of American Meat Packers.

Robbers Hold Up a Stage. A dispatch from San Antonio, N. M., states that the United States mail coach which left there Thursday morning was held up in the afternoon by masked men forty miles out. The mail sack was cut open and rifled and the stage horses stolen. There were no passengers aboard. The coach was en route to White Oaks. The driver was left without conveyance and walked eight miles back to the station, whence the alarm was sent into San Antonio. The west-bound coach from White Oaks it is believed was also robbed. It is thought the highwaymen are the same who held up the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad train west of Albuquerque a few days ago.

CANNED BEEF BARRED. German Government Orders an Inspection on Importation. According to unofficial though trustworthy information received at the Department of Agriculture, the prohibition of the importation of American dressed beef and live cattle into Germany by a new regulation which practically shuts out American canned beef from the German markets. Canned beef was not included in the first proscription and considerable quantities of it continued to be sent to the German ports. Recently, however, a new order was issued requiring that all canned beef should be inspected. As compliance with this requirement means the opening of the cans containing the meat, the order is a practical inhibition. The matter has been the subject of a long correspondence conducted on behalf of this Government by the State Department, thus far without any apparent disposition on the part of Germany to yield.

STRIKE ENDS. Canadian Pacific Operators to Be Reappointed. The operators' strike on the Canadian Pacific Railway is over. The strikers, with the exception of those who have committed acts of violence, are to be reinstated. The exact terms of settlement are not known. A committee of conciliation composed of employees of different branches of the Canadian Pacific arrived in Montreal, Quebec, from different parts of the Dominion in connection with the telegraphers' strike. Assistant General Manager Tait received them, and they reached an amicable conclusion, as stated.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS HURT. Platform in Ottawa, Ont., Gives Way Under the Crowd's Weight. Thursday afternoon, while the delegates to the Christian Endeavor convention at Ottawa, Ontario, were waiting for the doors of the opera house to open, the platform on the east side gave way, precipitating several hundred persons to the ground below, a distance of over twelve feet. Numerous persons were injured, several severely, one woman, the mother-in-law of Mayor Borthwick, being so severely hurt that she had to be carried home in a cab and medical aid summoned.

DAYS EQUAL THE YEAR. Important Facts Discovered About the Planets Mercury and Venus. A dispatch received from Lowell Observatory, Flagstaff, A. T., announces that the astronomers of the observatory have discovered that the planets Mercury and Venus each turn once on its axis during one revolution about the sun, making the day just equal to the year on those planets. They find, further, that Venus is not cloud-covered, as has been reported, but has about it a thick atmosphere, while Mercury has none.

GAMBLERS BEATEN TO DEATH. Full Blood Osage Indians Wreak Summary Vengeance Upon Them. The third quarterly payment to the Osage Indians, consisting of over $100,000, is being paid. Reports at Perry, O. T., are that hundreds of gamblers are at Pawhuska and that the few marshals are powerless to prevent depredations. Two gamblers, Jones and Evans, buncoed a gang of full-bloods Tuesday night and the men ran the gamblers out of town, and, it is reported, beat them to death on Turkey Creek.

RED HOT WAR. Cubans App'y the Torch to Great Estates. Advice from Cuba state that the insurgents have burned the magnificent tobacco and sugar estate of Santa Rosa in Matanzas, which cost over $1,000,000 and belonged to Miguel Aldama. A few days ago an expedition landed near Gibara. The insurgents have burned the tobacco and sugar estates of Maria Louisa at Cuevillas and of Puerto at Cavasi, Matanzas. Estimated loss, $350,000.

Work of Fire Fiends. The great fire at Guayaquil, Ecuador, is believed to have been of incendiary origin. Some arrests have been made. Many people lost their lives during the conflagration and losses are now estimated at 80,000,000 sacres ($54,400,000). The populace is furious and is demanding the prompt punishment of the guilty.

RUSSIA'S HAND IN IT.

Porte Won't Allow American Cruiser to Pass the Straits. It was semi-officially announced in Constantinople Wednesday that the Turkish Government, after weighing the matter over and consulting with certain advisers, has come to the decision not to admit the United States cruiser Bancroft through the Dardanelles, and, therefore, she will not be able to act as the guardship of the United States legation in these waters. The Porte, it is added, has also decided not to admit the guardships of Greece and Holland, which countries also proposed to have a ship stationed in the Bosphorus as a guardship and to furnish men to guard their legations in case of emergencies. It should be added, however, that the United States Government is not known to have presented through its minister, Mr. Terrell, a formal demand for the passage of the Bancroft or any other United States warship through the Straits of the Dardanelles, and it is recalled that Greece in 1888 was allowed to have a guardship in the Bosphorus. The exact ground upon which the Turkish Government takes its stand in this case is not stated, but it is known in official circles that Russia has objected to the presence in the Bosphorus of United States, Grecian or Dutch guardships. The objections to the presence of the extra guardships are said, according to general report, to be based on the Berlin agreement, which excludes from naval representation in the Bosphorus any powers that were not party to that agreement, and that, therefore, the United States cannot be allowed to send a warship to the Straits of the Dardanelles.

CANNON FOR LEADVILLE. Gen. Brooks Will Place Heavy Guns on Carbonate Hill. Gen. Brooks and his officers have practically decided to make provision for defending the endangered Leadville mines by placing cannon on Carbonate hill, which commands most of them. The next object of attack, if further attacks be made, is pretty well understood to be the great pumping plant of the Maid of Erin mine, which drains the Mahala, Emmet and Marian mine, which are now resuming work, as well as many others. The pumps belong to Smith & Moffat, and their expenses are borne by the three other mines named. If these pumps were crippled the ruin of the mines by water would reduce the normal production of the camp fully one-third.

Ax vs. Teeth. There was a gruesome death near Hinckley, Ohio, Saturday. Nearly twenty years ago there appeared in Hinckley a stranger of whom nothing was known beyond the name which he gave, Bernard Sherman, and with him came a big St. Bernard dog, which was his inseparable companion. The stranger took up his abode in an old hotel which he rented in the outskirts of the hamlet. The living place of the old man gradually became surrounded with an air of mystery, and the place came to be regarded with superstition and fear. The mysterious dweller rarely visited the village, and then only for the necessities of life, which he seemed to have plenty of money to pay for. The old man had not been seen for some time, and an investigation was begun. When the door to the hut was broken in the old man was found lying dead, chained to a post, the condition of the body telling of a terrible struggle, which the doctors have ascribed to hydrophobia. Just outside the hotel was found the dog. The beast's death had been caused by an ax wound in the head. The supposition is that the brute went mad and bit his master. The old man, realizing that death was inevitable, had locked himself in when he felt the madness coming, chained himself fast, locked his fetters with a padlock, and threw the key away. Buried under the floor of the hotel was found $13,000 in gold. There was nothing that could shed light on the mysteries of his life.

Many Cars Looted. By nailing a man in a box and shipping him in a car as "household goods" a gang of thieves plundered the railroads centering in Chicago for a year. Tuesday night three members of the gang were arrested and the story of the clever thieves made public. The booty secured by the gang amounts to many thousands of dollars. Capt. Elliott's men are on the track of three other members of the gang, whose business it was to dispose of the stolen goods. Two or three merchants who handled the stuff, knowing it to be stolen property, will be arrested. This gang of car thieves did not break the seals of freight cars and throw out boxes of merchandise like the ordinary robber. The boxed-up thief would liberate himself, fill his late prison with goods stolen from the car, cut a hole in the floor to make his escape, and then telegraph for the return of his plunder by express to Chicago. It was by tracing the last box from Omaha to Chicago that detectives were enabled to recover $800 worth of boots and shoes, and to arrest the three men engaged in the robbery.

Love Led to Murder. Reports from Arkoe, Mo., say that a young woman of that place has been arrested for the horrible murder of Mrs. John Baumley near there. It is said that she was in love with Mr. Baumley, and is supposed to have murdered the woman out of jealousy, so that she could marry the husband. The young lady was tracked by bloodhounds, and when confronted is said to have broken down and confessed.

Kills Wife and Self. Crouched in his cellar, and trembling at the approach of the officers who were seeking him for the murder of his young wife, Dr. Carl F. Nitz, of 1986 North Ashland avenue, Chicago, shot himself through the brain Wednesday. Above, in the second story of the flat building, the bedroom was torn to pieces by a fearful struggle.

In Georgia and Florida. The elections in Georgia and Florida show that the free silver Democratic candidates have been elected by majorities exceeding those of the last election.

DREADED DISGRACE.

DEFAULTING MASSACHUSETTS BANKER KILLS HIMSELF.

His Shortage Expected to Exceed $100,000—Death of Du Maurier, the Famous French Novelist—San Francisco Chinamen in a State of Terror.

Disgraced and Dead. George J. Marsh, for more than a quarter of a century the trusted treasurer of the Cape Ann Savings Bank, shot himself at his summer home at Annisquam, Mass., Thursday. It is believed that the suicide of Mr. Marsh was caused by the impending discovery that he was a defaulter to the amount of $100,000. The trouble was not in his accounts at the bank, for the commissioner examined them Wednesday, but the shortage is in the various trust funds and estates of which he was custodian. At a regular meeting of the trustees Wednesday the securities were called for. Mr. Marsh advised adjournment, and promised to produce them Thursday. After the finding of the body the trustees turned to look for the desired securities in the vaults of the bank. There were securities there, but by no means what there should have been. The securities of the Gilbert Hospital fund were $20,000 short, the funds of the Gilbert Home $15,000, and the residuary fund of the Gilbert estate about $5,000 more. Marsh was trustee of the B. R. Hough estate and many other private properties, and no one knows what the shortage will be. It is stated on good authority that it will be above rather than under $100,000. The bondsmen in the trust estate will lose largely, but none enough to be financially embarrassed.

MORE TO DIE. San Francisco Highbinders Renew Their Killings. The highbinder Tongs of Chinatown are again in emeute at San Francisco, and as a result Lee Ah Nee and Ah Chung, two members of the Bo-On-Tong, were assassinated Wednesday night, presumably by hatchet men of the Bo-Long-Tong in revenge for the death of Lee Ti, a member of the latter society, who was mysteriously murdered on the night of July 18 last. Ah Nee was shot down in the hallway of a Chinese lodging house, just before midnight. While the police were looking for the murderer, Ah Chung was killed on Pacific street, supposedly by Lee Loui, who was captured in the vicinity while in the act of concealing a freshly-discharged revolver. How Fook and How Tom, both members of the Bo-Long-Tong, have been arrested. A prominent Chinaman who called at the Receiving Hospital to see Ah Chung remarked, when informed that his friend was dead: "Lots more be killed; big fight now." It is believed that the efforts now making to reunite the Six Companies will result in many fresh feuds between the various societies, who, having once enjoyed commercial freedom, will never return to their former state of bondage.

TRILBY'S AUTHOR DEAD. The End Was Painless and Was Not Unexpected. Trilby's author is no more. George Du Maurier died at 2:30 Thursday morning at his London home. His end was painless, and he passed away surrounded by friends. The illness of Mr. Du Maurier was pathetic in the extreme. For days he has been hovering between life and death, at intervals conversing with his friends regarding his work. Upon one occasion a friend at the dying man's bedside referred to the success of "Trilby" as a book and as a play, whereupon Du Maurier replied: "Yes, it has been successful, but the popularity has killed me at last." One of Du Maurier's friends, who was present at his death, said: "He died almost as tragically as Svengali. At the zenith of Trilby's fame, Svengali became a victim of an affection of the heart, and Du Maurier has gone the same way. At the zenith of his popularity the author has succumbed to the heart trouble from which he always suffered, his suffering being accentuated by the constant succession of exciting incidents in which the closing few months of his life were spent. Checks rained in upon him as his old heart trouble increased. This, complicated by an affection of the lungs, took him off."

Chili Fears a Crisis. The Chilean Minister of Finance held a long conference with the managers of the banks and the heads of important business houses with a view of devising means to stay the commercial crisis which is imminent. Many foreign bank managers urged that the measures adopted by the Government to restore normal financial conditions were wholly inadequate.

Tributes to Noted Men. An event of national interest was the celebration Wednesday at Galesburg, Ill., to commemorate the famous debate between Lincoln and Douglas in 1858. A monument suitably inscribed was unveiled. Senator Palmer and Chauncey Depew were the orators of the day, and a vast crowd heard them.

Objects to a School Text-Book. Mrs. M. J. Evans, a believer in Christian science, has protested to the Topeka, Kan., school board against physiology being taught her son. She maintains that the laws of health as outlined in the text-books are in direct contradiction to the laws believed in by the Christian scientists.

Begins a Suit for $5,000,000. A suit was commenced at San Francisco in the United States Circuit Court by Herman Cramer, claiming $5,000,000 from the Singer Sewing Machine Company, profits alleged to have been made in selling machines infringing on Cramer's patent.

DIES IN A WITNESS-BOX.

Chicago Man Drops Dead While Giving His Testimony.

Clifford B. Eversham, of Chicago, manager of the quotation department of the Western Union Telegraph Company, was subpoenaed as a witness in the case of Oscar M. Stone and James S. Turner, who were accused of tapping the wires of the Western Union Company. Mr. Eversham was the most important witness of the State, and was the first witness called. "What is your name?" asked Attorney Holt. "Clifford B. Eversham," replied the witness in a tone of voice which gave no intimation that there was anything wrong. "What is your occupation?" continued the attorney. "I am manager of the quotation department of the Western Union Telegraph Company." The last words of the sentence were not distinguishable. The witness was seen to sway for a moment in his chair, and then he fell forward limp and unconscious upon the rail of the stenographer's desk. He was dead an hour later. Heart disease was said to have been the cause. Great confusion prevailed in the court room, and Judge Tuthill adjourned court for the day.

CONGREGATIONAL MISSIONS. American Board Meets at Toledo and Discusses Armenian Trouble. The eighty-seventh annual meeting of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions convened at Toledo, Ohio, with an attendance of over five hundred delegates. Among them were many of the brainiest and ablest men of this denomination in the United States. The opening hour of the first day's session was devoted to religious exercises. Rev. Dr. Richard S. Storrs, of Brooklyn, called the board to order, and in the evening the annual sermon was preached by Dr. Edward N. Packard, of Syracuse, N. Y. The board discussed the Armenian atrocities and the destruction of the missions and schools at Harpoot, in which missions, under the supervision of the American board, the Congregationalist denomination has been especially interested. Resolutions were submitted urging that the United States Government take speedy action looking to the securing of ample indemnity from the Sultan.

Murdered in a Bank. Two masked men walked in to the Sherburne, Minn., bank Wednesday afternoon, and without uttering a word shot down Assistant Cashier Thorburn and J. A. Oestern, a traveling agent of the Walter A. Wood Harvester Company. Thorburn died two hours later. Oestern was killed instantly. Their murderers escaped on bicycles with $1,000 as the price of the lives they had taken so wantonly.

Explosion Causes Death and Injury. At Danville, Pa., a large boiler in the Reading Iron Works exploded, killing two persons instantly, seriously injuring four others and slightly injuring a score or more of other persons at various points near by. The dead are: John Castleman and a small child.

Blacklist a Harbor. At Halifax it is reported among ship captains that the marine underwriters propose to prohibit St. Thomas, West Indies, as a port of call. That port is said to be full of "land pirates."

Commerce Increasing. The imperial trade returns for the first eight months of 1896 show an increase of 2,570,148 tons of imports and 1,280,375 tons of exports over the corresponding period of 1895.

Valuable Sacks of Ore Stolen. The ore house at the May Bell mine, at Victor, Colo., was broken into Sunday night and sixty-five sacks of ore, worth $60,000, were stolen. There is no clew to the thieves.

Sewall Speaks Out. Arthur Sewall, Democratic nominee for Vice President of the United States, made public his letter of acceptance Tuesday night from Bath, Me.

MARKET QUOTATIONS. SCOURGED BY A GALE.

WILD TIME ON THE ENGLISH AND IRISH COASTS.

Buoys Drifted, Vessels Driven Ashore and Many Lives Lost—Chicago's Day of Jubilee—Minnesota Bank Robber Kills Himself—Aid for Cubans.

Wild Revel of Winds. By a gale which began on Monday all the buoys in Queenstown harbor have been shifted, some of them being driven a quarter of a mile from their positions. The Daunts Rock lightship, having on board a crew of eight men, has broken adrift and is believed to have foundered. The Majestic, which left Liverpool for New York, took twenty instead of ten, hours to run from Liverpool to Queens-town. She encountered terrific weather, and reports that she saw nothing of the missing Daunts Rock lightship. The storm caused considerable damage along the English, Irish and Welsh coasts. A number of casualties have already been reported and numerous vessels have been sighted flying signals of distress. At Ilfracomb, Devonshire, the sea has washed away 100 feet of the wall fronting the Ilfracomb Hotel, the lower part of the town was flooded, and a number of houses were swamped. At Porthcawl the seas were sixty feet high and have been crashing over the breakwater. Floods are also reported in various parts of Wales. The Rhonda and Swansea Bay Railroad in many parts is under six feet of water or washed away. From all parts of the United Kingdom immense damage is reported. The South of Ireland particularly suffered badly, the town hall at Queenstown being severely damaged and the country around Cork and the low parts of the town itself being inundated. The race course at Tremore was also much damaged. Traffic in the Mersey has been suspended. A schooner with five hands was lost off Holy Head, and a large ship was wrecked at Milfordhaven, in Wales, and all on board perished. Numerous small wrecks were also reported, by which the aggregate loss of life has been considerable.

FILIBUSTERS ACTIVE IN FLORIDA Two Carloads of Arms and Ammunition Awaiting Shipment. The United States cruiser Newark, which has been lying off the St. Johns bar at Jacksonville, Fla., to watch for filibusters, left for the southward under sealed orders. Since the arrival of the Newark and the revenue cutters Morrill and Boutwell nothing has been done by the tugs Three Friends and Commodore. The Cubans, however, have been active, for on Wednesday two carloads of arms and ammunition were shipped down the Florida East Coast Railroad to Miami, to be loaded on the Dauntless, which is supposed to be lying behind some of the Florida keys in Biscayne Bay. Twenty Cubans, who arrived in Jacksonville from New York several days ago, also left for Miami. The Cubans and the arms will be carried from Biscayne Bay to the southern coast of the Province of Pinar del Rio. The arms and ammunition are said to be badly needed, as large quantities of ammunition have been used recently in the several battles fought.

BANDIT RUN TO DEATH. Murderer and Bank Robber Shoots Himself to Avoid Capture. After murdering Marshal Will Galvin, of Bancroft, Iowa, one of the men who brought him to bay, Friday, escaping from a house surrounded by a sheriff's posse and riding four miles on his bicycle, one of the bandits who robbed the Sherburne, Minn., bank and killed the assistant cashier and a traveling salesman, seeing that he was doomed, sent a bullet crashing through his own brain and fell dead at the feet of his pursuers. A punctured bicycle tire was responsible for his falling into the hands of the men who were hungry for his blood, and whom he cheated in the hour of their victory. Nearly all the $1,000 stolen from the bank was found in the possession of the bandit who killed himself. The other is under arrest.

Prisoner in Jail Cremates Himself. The jail at Paulding, Miss., burned. E. A. Strickland and Mollie Daniels, a crazy negro woman, were cremated. Strickland dropped a note out of the window stating that unless opium were brought to him he would burn the jail.

Price of Sugar Is Reduced. All grades of refined sugar were reduced 1/2 cent per pound by the American Refining Company, making a net reduction of 3/4 cent within a week. This brings the price to the retail grocer down to 4 1/2 cents, which is the lowest it has sold at for a year.

PROUD DAY FOR KNOX

GREAT LINCOLN-DOUGLAS DEBATE COMMEMORATED.

Monument Unveiled in Honor of the Historic Event—Palmer and Depew the Principal Orators—Exercises Held Under Auspices of the College.

Tributes to Noted Men.

The entire population of Galesburg, Ill., united Wednesday to commemorate history and exalt education. Thousands came from the surrounding country and assisted in making it a day of enthusiastic, noble-spirited celebration. These were the features of this most noteworthy day in the history of Galesburg: Celebration of the thirty-eighth anniversary of the famous debate between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas. Unveiling of a bronze tablet, built into the walls of Knox College, to commemorate that event. Formal announcement of the establishment of the Abraham Lincoln School of Arts and Sciences in Knox College. Dedication of a monument to the soldier dead of Knox County. Finally, lest the day should seem too one-sided, too much given to the things that live mostly in the recollections of the old, the day closed in genuine college style with a football game.

This manifold, many-sided occasion sprang from the desire of old Knox College to emphasize its adherence to the doctrine that true education combines care for citizenship and patriotism. The veteran soldiers who had poured out their blood in expression of their patriotic creed joined hands in the endeavor. Men who lived in the days when the deeds commemorated were wrought and who knew, with the knowledge that comes from personal contact, the emotions that ruled men's souls at that time, came to read the lesson of the past, and apply them to the future. Other men, whose part it is to apply in the present the lessons of the past, joined their voices in the chorus.

There was Chauncey M. Depew, strong in the knowledge of what has made his country great and superb in ability, to tell the story of that greatness. There was Senator John M. Palmer, soldier and statesman, best qualified of all men in Illinois to throw the flashlights of personal experience upon the mighty struggle of forty years ago, when two Illinoisans were the champions, the American people were the spectators, and the unity of the nation, the fate of the nation, was the ground of battle. There was Robert T. Lincoln, famous son of a world famous father, and there were the dozens who cheered on the fight in the old days, and the other dozens and scores who have given their lives since that time to putting into enduring form the decision then rendered. Nature smiled on the efforts of her children and gave a perfect day, and a gorgeous setting for their undertaking.

Galesburg, clothed for a holiday, received a holiday crowd. Every railroad brought in special train loads. Long lines of vehicles—carriages, buggies, family carryalls and plain springless farm wagons—rolled over the country roads in seemingly endless streams. Each was piled high with old people, young people, babies and lunch baskets. Galesburg houses were opened early, and emptied before 10 o'clock in the morning. Thirty thousand people thronged the streets, making progress on sidewalks well-nigh impossible, blocking street cars and possessing the roadways for pedestrianism. Every single individual was in holiday attire and in holiday humor—a combination of barbecue, circus day, county fair and graduation day spirit. The seller of official souvenirs, tin horns and campaign badges found a ready market.

The crowd found the first outlet for its enthusiasm in the morning parade preceding the soldiers' monument dedication, and kept the supply steadily on tap until after the Knox boys had trounced the young football players from Parsons, Kan., in the afternoon.

The ceremonies on the campus of Knox College, were, of course, the event of the day. The crowd commenced to gather at noon on the historic spot where "Honest Abe" and the "Little Giant" wrestled in debate thirty-eight years ago. Old Knox had put on festal garb. The college colors, purple and gold, were everywhere. Three significant dates were displayed on big banners—1837, the date Knox College was founded; 1858, the year of the debates, and 1896. The history of Illinois could have been written from the personal recollections of the men in the crowd.

John H. Finley, president of Knox College, presided. He is the youngest col-

MURDER BY BANK ROBBERS.

Minnesota Bandits Kill Two Men and Make Their Escape.

The deliberate murder of two men was committed at Sherburne, Minn., Wednesday by highwaymen who robbed the Bank of Sherburne of $1,000. The affair was a terrible reminder of the great bank robbery at Northfield in 1876, in which the James and Younger boys were participants. About noon two strangers, one of whom looked like a mere boy, rode along the main street on bicycles. They were both well dressed but were unshaven and travel-stained. No particular attention was paid to them, as Sherburne is a town of but 300 persons, most of them workmen, and at that hour they were hurrying home to dinner.

The strangers loitered around the outskirts until nearly 1 o'clock. At that time they sauntered lazily down the street and stopped immediately in front of the bank of Sherburne. After a moment's talk they went into the bank, and the elder of the men engaged Assistant Cashier George Thorburn in conversation. One of the desperadoes secured possession of a roll of bills containing about $1,000. Thorburn tried to prevent the men from getting away with the money, when they whipped out their revolvers and began firing and at the same time retreating. One of the bullets struck Thorburn, causing almost instant death. The shooting within the bank aroused the town, and the citizens began running in that direction. The first man to reach the place was Olaf Oestern, a traveling salesman for the Wood Harvester Company of St. Paul. The desperadoes, fearing they would be captured, quickly turned their weapons upon Oestern. He made a dash to grapple with them, but was not quick enough, as he was struck in the head and fell dead at their feet.

They ran down the street firing at random, while persons in the street hurried to places of shelter. They ran about three blocks to some bushes where they had left their wheels. These they mounted and rode rapidly away toward the Iowa line, six miles to the south. Mayor C. E. Everett and the town marshal at once did all in their power to capture the bandits. Sheriff Hill, of Marion County, organized a large posse of determined Sherburne men, which moved southward on horseback late in the afternoon. It is declared that if the men are captured they will be strung up to a limb of the first tree big enough to bear them. The men got away with the roll of money, about $1,000, which they snatched from the counter of the bank. Gov. Clough issued a proclamation offering a reward of $500 for the capture of the robbers.

Sparks from the Wires.

Miss Helene Scott, a young comic opera singer, who was with the "Princess Bonnie" company, died at Pittsburgh.

The big Edgar Thomson steel works at Braddock, Pa., have resumed work after a short stoppage. They employ 3,000 men.

Col. Pattie Watkins, of Ballington Booth's American Volunteers, has been married to Fred Lindsay, staff captain of the same organization in New York.

Thomas Cullen, a trolley repairer of the street railroad company at Cleveland, met a horrible death. He was up on a ladder when he was caught by a live wire, drawn up and instantly killed. A large crowd witnessed his death as he was hanging in the wires.

The United States Minister, Mr. Taylor, has declared to the Spanish Government that the United States is most favorably disposed towards Spain, but that, owing to the extent of the United States coast line, she is unable to prevent the departure of filibusters for the island of Cuba.

John Daly, who was recently released from Portland prison, after serving several years on conviction of complicity in a dynamite plot, together with his brother, has arrived at Queenstown. In reply to an address Daly declared that he was not a dynamiter, and that he never believed in dynamite to terrorize the English Government. The dream of his life, he said, was to fight for Ireland like a soldier and a patriot.

"PALACE OF PROGRESS."

Great Revolving Tower for the Paris Exposition in 1903.

After much casting about for an idea, France has decided to astonish visitors to the Paris Exposition of A. D. 2000 with an immense revolving tower 400 feet high. The inventor is M. Devic, and he calls his tower the "Palace of Progress."

This extraordinary sort of a structure is shown in the architect's perspective drawing. The outer room of the building will move at the rate of 1.1175 meters, or about 3 feet 8 inches, per second, which is as nearly as possible two and one-half miles an hour. A complete revolution will thus occupy about two minutes, and the views of Paris and of the hills and plains of the Seine and Marne country will change as rapidly as the scenery changes when one is strolling slowly along a road. The rotary building will be only half the height of the Eiffel Tower, but, as it is to be erected near the summit of Montmartre, the highest point within the fortifications, it will command a broad view, cut only by the tower of the new church on the apex. The bearings are said by the mechanical engineers who have prepared the specifications to be so designed as to absolutely assure the absence of all sense of motion. When you are not looking out at the view you will be as tranquil as in any other building, but when you swing your chair so that you face the window you enjoy a serene motion and contemplate a constantly changing spectacle.

The motive power which will supply the force necessary to turn the structure will be hydraulic, and its cost has been calculated to be only $7.12 francs per hour, although each time that the movement is checked the hydraulic pressure needed to give it a new impulse will represent an expenditure of 232.80 francs.

The upper part of the building will be occupied by a public ball room, to be open from 11 o'clock in the evening until 2 in the morning, and the space immediately below this for an artificial skating rink, so that the allurements of the Palais de Glace on the Pole Nord will be added to those of the Moulin Rouge and the Casino de Paris.

EXPRESS WAGON OF THE ORIENT

The Herculean Turkish Porter Whose Place of Business Is on the Street.

The Turkish porter is one of the most interesting objects seen in a tour of the orient. Of herculean strength and power of endurance, he is usually prompt and obliging, also honest so far as in him lies. He cannot speak the truth, and would not respect himself if he could, for that is a virtue of the Frank. His place of business is on the streets of his native town, where he can be found at all hours of the day, clad in a loose soiled jacket usually gray, with gray gaiters, Turkish shoes or sandals, the inevitable fez and a neckerchief that makes him look as if he were strangling. All the burden of conveying large or small articles falls upon him and he will carry a piano as easily as a trunk. He is the most contented of the working fraternity one meets abroad. His occasional smoke under the shade of a mulberry tree, or his lazy sips of sherbet, are treats that renew his strength for the hard work by which he must live.

FIREMEN'S ADVANCE GUARD.

Motor Carriages Used by the Berlin Fire Department.

The Berlin Fire Department, which is considered the model fire department of Europe on account of its excellent organization, its great attention to the improvement of apparatus by carefully watching the progress of science, has but recently introduced for some purposes the Ganswindt motor carriage, which is propelled by foot power. The apparatus, after having been thoroughly tested, has been found to be very efficient, and is now being rapidly introduced into the fire departments of all the German capitals. A squad known as the advance guard, consisting of six men, is mounted on one of these motor carriages, which is always ready at the door of the fire station. The men are in their places ready to start at the first signal. The two first ones attend to its girding, one to the steering and the other to ringing the bell. The six men stand in pairs upon long treadles, and by alternately raising and lowering their feet the movement is transmitted by means of strong belts upon a horizontal mechanism, the active power being considerably increased by spiral springs and ratchets attached to the axis and by a very clever arrangement of the leverage. The entire motor carriage is built as lightly as possible of steel tubing and hickory wood.

The machine was for more than a month sent out with the regular fire patrol, and it was found that the carriage rides very easily and safely; that it proceeds faster than the patrol wagon, drawn by horses, and that if the distance is not entirely too great the men arrive at the fire in excellent condition for their arduous duties.

Takes the Palm for Meanness.

I have a neighbor, says an Ohio man, who cannot be excelled for meanness. He has three children and his wife, who, wholly unlike him, insists that presents shall be given them each Christmas. Four years ago he was practically coerced into allowing the purchase of a few toys. A few days after Christmas the children had lost all of these toys, and the father whipped them for losing them. The next Christmas he brought home some toys, duplicates of those given the previous year. In a few days they were lost, the children again whipped, and nothing more was seen of them until the following Christmas, when they once more did duty for Santa Claus. Since then the mother acts as custodian to prevent the father from stealing his children's toys.

He Was the King of Smokers.

Klaes, the merchant of Rotterdam, was called the king of smokers, from his devotion to the gentle weed, and he had a right regal funeral. By the terms of his will, every smoker who chose to attend it was presented with ten pounds of tobacco and two Dutch pipes, on which were engraved the name, arms and date of the decease of the testator. All his guests were invited to be careful to keep their pipes alight during the funeral ceremonies, and to empty their ashes into the grave. His oak coffin was lined with the cedar of his old Havana cigar boxes, and a packet of old Dutch tobacco was placed at the foot of his coffin. His favorite pipe was laid by his side along with a box of matches, as well as flint and steel and some tinder.

A Psychological Cure.

The small boy had been requested to do some errands, but insisted that he was feeling badly. As the family physician happened to call he felt the boy's pulse and looked at his tongue, and said:

"You had better make a strong mustard plaster."

The boy looked depressed and left the room.

"When shall I apply the plaster?" asked the mother.

"Don't apply it at all. He'll get well before that stage of the treatment is reached."

Drummer—Could I show you a few goods, Mr. Rosenbaum? Rosenbaum—Py heavens! you missed a big order py nod gedding here a liddle sooner. "I shust dis minute failed!—ruck.

ILL-ASSORTED MARRIAGE.

Coming Union of Princess Helene and Crown Prince of Naples.

An ill-assorted marriage will be that between Princess Helene of Montenegro and the Crown Prince of Naples, heir to the throne of Italy. The Princess is a stalwart brunette, nearly six feet high, and one of the handsomest women in Europe, while the Prince is almost a dwarf, being less than five feet in height, and so poor in health that his life has often been despaired of. There are other royal pairs who are disproportionate in size, the Princess of Wales being taller than her husband, but none so incongruous as this will be. Princess Helene is ambitious; she tried to marry the young Czar of Russia, but was jilted by him. The Crown Prince's hand was rejected by every marriageable princess in Europe, and so in this respect they are well matched. She is handsome and poor; he is ugly and rich, and they are well content to strike a bargain. Her only fault is her poverty, the revenues from her father's little kingdom being sufficient to support him and her in no better style than thousands of Americans live. His subjects number less than 200,000, his country is tiny, and his capital town of Cetinje has only one hotel, no bank or theater, and no houses of decent appearance except the shabby old villa in which he lives. The only virtue of the Crown Prince of Naples is that he will some day be King of Italy. He is bad-tempered, dissolute in habits, and fond of gambling and drink. He is a hypochondriac, and when not really ill imagines that he is so. If his bride is a dutiful wife she will spend most of her time nursing him. In Montenegro there is some disapproval of the marriage, because the beautiful Princess Helene is thought by the mountaineers to be worthy of a better fate. In Italy everyone is well content. They expected that the Prince would never be able to find a bride.

SMALL VOTE IN FLORIDA.

Democrats Say They Will Win in November, but Others Dispute Them.

A general election for State and county officials was held throughout Florida Tuesday. There were three tickets: the field for State officers, Democratic Republican and Populist, and also for county officers in nearly all the counties. The gold Democrats supported the Democratic ticket, and there is no doubt of success by a good majority. Several important amendments to the State constitution were voted on, the most important being one to abolish October election. Democratic managers have claimed that they would elect their State ticket by majority of 20,000 or more, while Republican leaders have asserted the Democratic majority would not exceed 15,000, a night fall below 12,000. The meager returns based on estimates received the time this is written indicate that the Democratic ticket will not receive a majority hoped for by its sponsors. The vote seems to have been a light one as the Democrats are the principal losers the falling off. In the storm-stricken counties, which have heretofore given large Democratic majorities, practice no interest was taken in the election, people having no heart for politics wrecked homes about them. There is difference of opinion as to the bearing the November result. Regular Democrats claim the State is safe for Bryan but Republicans and gold Democrats assert that they believe Bryan will be beaten.

KILLED FOR STEALING RIDES

New Haven Police Accuse Brakemen of Wholesale Tramp Murders.

The police of New Haven, Conn., assert that brakemen of the Consolidated Railroad have been murdering tramps caught stealing rides on cars of that line. It is said that ten bodies, all mangled being run over by trains, have been found on the tracks of the Consolidated within the last six months. A man named Long from Brooklyn was shot twice thrown from a train by the train but survived his injuries. He has given information to the authorities which led to the arrest of a brakeman named Bean. The latter, according to the police, confessed that trainmen made practice to kill tramps found on the cars.

Who for Treasurer?

We clip the following from the Argos Reflector, and although we have no particular interest in the matter, think the advice embodied in the article could be followed. It says we are apt to forget that the men making the race for county offices should receive our attention during a national campaign. We believe the very best and most capable men should be elected regardless of party affiliation.

"In the heat of the contest over national issues, voters are apt to give little consideration to the local offices. It must be admitted that the interest attached to the former is very great, but that will not excuse the individual from the performance of duties lie near home. The selection of the agents who are to look after the county's interest is a matter that demands careful attention, and a duty that should be judiciously performed.

The citizens of the south part of the county are naturally most concerned with regard to those of the candidates who are now or who have formerly affiliated with the business and social interests of this part of the county; and, if political bias could be left entirely out of the question, they would undoubtedly be unanimous in their declaration for William J. Rankin, our former townsman, for the responsible position of County Treasurer. Mr. Rankin is in the prime of life, and having been born and grown to manhood amid the duties of farm life, he is possessed of sturdy physical qualities, and as all of our readers well know, for several years conducted a flourishing business in Argos, winning hosts of friends by his affable and courteous way of dealing with the public. In 1894 he was made the nominee of his party for the office of Treasurer, and was elected for a term of two years. His official record has been one of eminent satisfaction to the people of the county. Last June he was again honored by receiving the unanimous nomination of his party for another term. If close and courteous attention to the duties of the office, coupled with sterling honesty and a manifest desire to please everybody, are appreciated by those having business to attend to at the Treasurer's office, he should again be honored by an election to this important trust. Every incumbent of the office, (with the exception of the first, and he held the position for 14 years) has filled the position for two terms (four years), and it is right they should. It is one of the most important offices in the gift of the people of the county. The bond which they are required to give implies great responsibility, and it takes most of the first term to become thoroughly familiar with the duties so as to render the best and most satisfactory service. Mr. Rankin has discharged every duty incumbent upon him honestly and impartially. Previous treasurers have all been given two terms, and in accordance with this custom, and because he is in every way worthy of the position, the Reflector feels that it is not trespassing on good taste in saying that he should be re-elected to the position which he has filled so satisfactorily to the public, and that, too, without adequate compensation, as, under the fee and salary law, he has been virtually deprived of pay for the services thus far performed."

Battle Scared Generals.

Last Tuesday a train carrying five generals who won fame in the late civil war, arrived in Plymouth in Gen. Alger's own private car. They pulled into Plymouth at 9-40 a. m. and only remained a very short time, each one giving a short address in favor of the election of McKinley, assuring the mammoth crowd present that this is the only method to save the country from disaster and ruin. Gen. Alger, of Detroit, Mich., was the first to speak, followed by Gen. Howard who left one of his arms upon the rebel battle field. He greeted the old comrades present with a vim and practically in a brief space of time fought many battles over again, and pleaded with them to be true to the party that had given them gallant recognition in the past by inaugurating laws that would relieve them in the days when the physical body refused to further act. "Corporal Tanner, the hero of many battles, and who left both legs upon the battle field, delivered a short address upon the situation, and urged all those present to stand by the party that had placed the old flag where all nations had to respect and revere it. He claimed that all the Eastern states would go for McKinley, and that New York state would whoop up all the way from 250,000 to 1,000,000. Gen. Sickles and Comrade Martin also addressed the audience. When the train bearing the old veterans pulled into Plymouth, the cannon boomed, the bands played, and never was there more enthusiasm displayed in Plymouth over the arrival of distinguished guests. The party left a little after 10 o'clock for Logansport, and when passing through Culver City the battery, which was loaded upon a flat car and attached to the rear end of the train, fired several salutes to remind the citizens of this place that the heroes of the civil war were passing through. The train was in charge of that genial and gentlemanly conductor, Charley Mancourt, who took great pride in piloting the distinguished party safely over the Vandalia line to their destination on said road.

On Wednesday several of the moguls of the Vandalia System arrived in Culver City in their special car and remained until Thursday. It is said they had an important mission here, viz., to make arrangements for extensive improvements at this place another season by the way of improving their property, and it was whispered upon the sly that they contemplated building a large addition to the company's magnificent hotel, the Lake View. This would be a paying investment for the company. Occupying one of the most picturesque and desirable positions on the lake, it is a most delightful spot for the bon ton resorters; consequently it would, as at present, receive the most liberal patronage, and if it could accommodate 1,000, could be easily filled.

Culver will at once commence the erection of a large addition to the Culver Military Academy which will accommodate as many more as there are at present attending the school. This is necessary owing to the fact that scores of applications are now pouring in and for lack of room they are refused. The prospects of the academy are most flattering; and there is not a shadow of a doubt that ere many seasons roll round, 1,000 cadets will be in attendance. All that is necessary is to furnish accommodations. We say, let the good work go on.

And blind you on the plain,
Just pause at some sweet fountain
And ring the bells for rain!

When the broad, dry fields are blinking
And the blooms are summer-slain;
And the lilies long for drinking,
Just ring the bells for rain!
Just ring the bells

THE PRODIGAL'S RETURN.

"Yes, mother, he will come. Of course he will come!" and the girl turned her drawn and anxious young face toward the cottage door, just as if her blind mother could see the action.

It is probable that the old woman divined the longing glance from the change in the girl's tone, for she, too, half turned toward the door. It was a habit these two women had acquired. They constantly looked toward the door for the arrival of one who never came through the long summer days, through the quiet winter evenings; moreover, they rarely spoke of other things; this arrival was the topic of their lives. And now the old woman's life was drawing to a close, as some lives do, without its object. She herself felt it, and her daughter knew it.

There was in both of them a subtle sense of clinging. It was hard to die without touching the reward of a wondrous patience. It was cruel to deprive the girl of this burden, for in most burdens there is a safeguard, in all a duty, and in some the greatest happiness allotted to human existence.

It was no new thing, this waiting for the scapegrace son; the girl had grown up to it, for she would not know her brother should she meet him in the street. Since sight had left the old mother's eyes she had fed her heart upon this hope.

He had left them eighteen years before in a fit of passionate resentment against his father, whose only fault had been too great an indulgence for the son of his old age. Nothing had been too good for dear Stephen—hardly anything had been good enough. Educated at a charity school himself, the simple old clergyman held the mistaken view that no man can be educated above his station.

Stephen Leach's father, having risen by the force of his own will and the capabilities of his own mind from the people to the Church, held, as such men do, that he had only to give his son a good education to insure his career in life. So everything—even to the old parson's sense of right and wrong—was sacrificed to the education of Stephen Leach at public school and university. Here he met and selected for his friends youths whose futures were insured, and who were only passing through the formula of an education so that no one could say that they were unfit for the saug government appointment, living or inheritance of a more substantial sort that might be waiting for them. Stephen acquired their ways of life without possessing their advantages, and the consequence was something very nearly approaching ruin for the little country rectory. Stephen Leach had expensive tastes, and he unscrupulously traded on his father's ignorance. He was good-looking, and had a certain brilliancy of manner which "goes down" well at the "Varsity. Everything was against him, and at last the end came. At last the rector's eyes were opened, and when a narrow-minded man's eyes are once opened he usually becomes stony at heart.

Stephen Leach left England, and before he landed in America his father had departed on a longer journey. The ne'er-do-well had the good grace to send back the little sums of money saved by his mother in her widowhood, and gradually his letters ceased. It was known that he was in Chili, and there was war going on there, and yet the good old lady's faith never wavered.

"He will come, Joyce," she would say, "he will surely come."

And somehow it came to be an understood thing that he was to come in the afternoon when they were all ready for him—when Joyce had clad her pretty young form in a dark dress, and when the old lady was up and seated in her chair by the fire in winter, by the door in summer. They had never imagined his arrival at another time. It would not be quite the same should he make a mistake and come in the morning, before Joyce had got the house put right.

Yet he never came. A greater infirmity came instead, and at last Joyce suggested that the mother should not get up in bad weather. They both knew what this meant, but the episode passed as others do, and Mrs. Leach was bedridden. Still she said:

"He will come, Joyce! He will surely come!"

And the girl would go to the window and draw aside the curtains, looking down the quiet country road toward the village.

"Yes, mother, he will come," was her usual answer; and one day she gave a little exclamation of surprise and almost of fear.

"Mother," she exclaimed, "there is someone coming along the road." The old lady was already sitting up in bed, staring with her sightless orbs toward the window.

Thus they waited. The man stopped opposite the cottage, and the two women heard the latch of the gate. Then Joyce, turning, saw that her mother had fainted. But it was only momentary. By the time she reached the bed her mother had recovered consciousness.

"Go," said the old lady, breathlessly, "go let him in yourself."

Down stairs, on the doorstep, the girl found a tall man of thirty or thereabouts with a browner face than English suns can account for. He looked down into her eager eyes with a strange questioning wonder.

"Am I too late?" he asked in a voice which almost seemed to indicate a hope that it might be so.

"No, Stephen," she answered. "But mother cannot live much longer. You are just in time."

The young man made a hesitating little movement with his right hand and shuffled uneasily on the clean stone step. He was an actor called suddenly upon the stage, having no knowledge of his part. The return of this prodigal was not a dramatic success. No one seemed desirous of learning whether he had lived upon husks or otherwise, and with whom he had eaten. The quiet dignity of the girl, who had remained behind to do all the work and bear all the burden, seemed in some subtle manner to deprive him of any romance that might have attached itself to him. She ignored his half-proffered hand, and, turning into the little passage, led the way upstairs.

Stephen Leach followed silently. He was rather large for the house, and especially for the stairs; moreover, he had a certain burliness of walk, such as is acquired by men living constantly in the open. There was a vaguely pained look in his blue eyes, as if he had suddenly been opened to his own shortcomings. His attitude toward Joyce was distinctly apologetic.

When he followed the girl across the threshold of their mother's bedroom the old lady was sitting up in bed, holding out trembling arms toward the door.

Here Stephen Leach seemed to know better what to do. He held his mother in his arms while she sobbed and murmured out her joy. He had no words, but his arms meant more than his lips could ever have told.

It would seem that the best part of happiness is the sharing of it with someone else.

"Joyce," was the first distinct word the old lady spoke. "Joyce, he has come at last. He has come! Come here, dear. Kiss your brother. This is my first born—my little Steve."

The young man had sunk upon his knees at the bedside, probably because it was the most convenient position. He did not second his mother's proposal with much enthusiasm. Altogether he did not seem to have discovered much sympathy with his sister, whom he had left in her cradle.

Joyce came forward and leaned over the bed to kiss her brother while the old lady's hands joined theirs. Just as her fresh young lips came within reach he turned his face aside, so that the kiss fell on barren ground on his tanned cheek.

"Joyce," continued the old lady, feverishly. "I am not afraid to die now, for Stephen is here. Your brother will take care of you, dear, when I am gone."

It was strange that Stephen had not spoken yet; and it was perhaps just as well, because there are occasions in life when men do wisely to keep silent.

"He is strong," the proud mother went on. "I can feel it. His hands are large and steady and quiet, and his arms are big and very hard."

The young man knelt upright and submitted gravely to this maternal inventory.

"Yes," she said, "I knew he would grow to be a big man. His little fingers were so strong—he hurt me sometimes. What a great mustache! I knew you had been a soldier. And the skin of your face is brown and a little rough. What is this? What is this, Stephen dear? Is this a wound?"

"Yes," answered the Prodigal, speaking for the first time. "That is a sword cut. I got that in the last war. I am a colonel in the Chilean army, or was, before I resigned."

The old lady's sightless eyes were fixed on his face as if listening for the echo of another voice in his deep, quiet tones.

"Your voice is deeper than your father's ever was," she said, and all the while her trembling fingers moved lovingly over his face, touching the deep cut from cheekbone to jaw with soft inquiry. "This must have been very near your eye, Stephen. Promise me, dear, no more soldiering."

"I promise that," he replied, without raising his eyes.

Such was the home-coming of the Prodigal. After all, he arrived at the right moment in the afternoon, when the house was ready. It sometimes does happen so in real life, and not only in books. There is a great deal that might be altered in this world, but, sometimes, by a mere chance, things come about rightly. And yet, there was something wrong, something subtle, which the dying woman's duller senses failed to detect. Her son, her Stephen, was quiet, and had not much to say for himself. He apparently had the habit of taking things as they came. There was no enthusiasm, but rather a restraint in his manner, more especially toward Joyce.

The girl noticed it, but even her small experience of humankind had taught her that large, fair-skinned men are often thus. They go through life placidly, leaving unsaid and undone many things which some think they ought to say and do.

After the first excitement of the return was over it became glaringly apparent that Stephen had arrived just in time. His mother fell into a happy sleep before sunset, and when the active young doctor came a little later in the evening he shook his head.

"Yes," he said, "I see that she is asleep and quiet—too quiet. It is a foretaste of a longer sleep; some old people have it."

For the first time Joyce's courage seemed to give away. When she had been alone she was brave enough, but now that her brother was there, womanlike, she seemed to turn to him with a sudden fear. They stood side by side near the bed, and the young doctor involuntarily watched them. Stephen had taken her hand in his with that silent sympathy which was so natural and so eloquent. He said nothing, this big, sun-tanned youth; he did not even glance down at his sister, who stood small, soft-eyed and gentle at his side.

The doctor knew something of the history of the small family thus momentarily united, and he had always feared that if Stephen Leach did return it would only kill his mother. This, indeed, seemed to be the result about to follow.

Presently the doctor took his leave. He was a young man engaged in getting together a good practice, and in his own interest he had been forced to give up waiting for his patients to finish dying.

"I am glad you are here," he said to Stephen, who accompanied him to the door. "It would not do for your sister to be alone; this may go on for a couple of days."

It did not go on for a couple of days, but Mrs. Leach lived through that night in the same semi-comatose state. The two watchers sat in her room until supper-time, when they left their mother in charge of a hired nurse, whose services Joyce had been forced to seek.

After supper Stephen Leach seemed at last to find his tongue, and he talked in his quiet, almost gentle voice, such as some big men possess, not about himself or his past; but about Joyce and the future. In a deliberate, businesslike way he proceeded to investigate the affairs of the dying woman and the prospects of her daughter; in a word, he asserted his authority as a brother, and Joyce was relieved and happy to obey him.

It is not in times of gayety that friendships are formed, but in sorrow or suspense. During that long evening this brother and sister suddenly became intimate; more so than months of prosperous intercourse could have made them. At 10 o'clock Stephen quietly insisted that Joyce should go to bed while he lay down, all dressed, on the sofa in the dining-room.

"I shall sleep perfectly; it is not the first time I have slept in my clothes," he said simply.

They went upstairs together and told the nurse of this arrangement. Joyce remained for some moments by the bedside watching her mother's peaceful sleep, and when she turned she found that Stephen had quietly slipped away. Wondering vaguely whether he had intentionally solved her difficulty as to the fraternal good-night, she went to her own room.

The next morning Mrs. Leach was fully conscious and appeared to be stronger; nevertheless, she knew that the end was near. She called her two children to her bedside, and, turning her blind eyes toward them, spoke in broken sentences:

"I am ready now—I am ready," she said. "Dearest, I am going to your father—and. . . thank God, I can tell him that I have left you together. I always knew Stephen would come back. I found it written everywhere in the Bible. Stephen—kiss me, dear!"

The man leant over the bed and kissed her.

"Ah!" she sighed. "how I wish I could see you—just once before I die. Joyce" she added, suddenly turning to her daughter, who stood at the other side of the bed, "tell me what he is like. But I know. . . I know—I feel it. Listen! He is tall and spare, like his father. His hair is black, like his father's—it was black before he went away. His eyes, I know, are dark—almost dark. He is pale—like a Spaniard."

Joyce looked across the bed with slow horror dawning in her face, looked into a pair of blue eyes beneath tawny hair, cut short, as a soldier's hair should be. She looked upon a man big, broad, fair—English from crown to toe—and the quiet command of his lips and eyes made her say:

"Yes, mother, yes."

For some moments there was silence. Joyce stood pale and breathless, wondering what this might mean. Then the dying woman spoke again.

"Kiss me," she said. "I . . . am going. Stephen first—my first born! And now Joyce . . . and now kiss each other—across the bed! I want to bear it . . . I want . . . to tell . . . your father."

With a last effort she raised her hands, seeking their heads. At first Joyce hesitated, then she leant forward, and the old woman's chilled fingers pressed their lips together. That was the end.

Half an hour afterward Joyce and this man stood facing each other in the little dining-room. He began his explanation at once.

"Stephen," he said, "was shot—out there—as a traitor. I could not tell her that! I did not mean to do this, but what else could I do?"

He paused, moved toward the door with that strange hesitation which she had noticed on his arrival. At the door he turned, to justify himself.

"I still think," he said gravely, "that it was the best thing to do." Joyce made no answer. The tears stood in her eyes. There was something very pathetic in the distress of this strong man, facing, as it were, an emergency of which he felt the delicacy to be beyond his cleverness to handle.

"Last night I made all the necessary arrangements for your future—just as Stephen would have made them—as a brother might have done. I . . . He and I were brother officers in a very wild army. Your brother—was not a good man. None of us were."

His hand was on the door.

"He asked me to come and tell you," he added. "I shall go back now."

They stood thus, he watching her face with his honest, soft blue eyes, she failing to meet his glance.

"May I come back again?" he asked suddenly.

She gave a little gasp, but made no answer.

"I will come back in six months," he announced quietly, and then he closed the door behind him.—Henry Seton Merriman in The Cornhill.

STRANGEST OF WARSHIPS.

The Circular Ironclad Designed by Admiral Popoff of the Russian Navy.

A warship which is in certain respects the most original ever constructed is the Novgorodo, designed by Admiral Popoff, of the Russian Navy. It is a circular ship, capable of delivering an all-round fire.

It seems to fulfil the ideal of many naval architects, in that it is nothing more nor less than a floating fort, capable of motion. All the characteristic outlines of a ship are missing from it.

The Novgorod marks an advance beyond a point at which naval constructors have hitherto stopped, and it is interesting to explain what this point is. Although modern ironclads have ceased to look much like ships, they still retain below the water line the essential form of sailing vessels. This form has, in fact, varied little since the beginning of human history.

In spite of the wonderful achievements of modern science, men have not been able to make any revolution in the shape of a ship's hull. Even the peculiar development of the modern racing yacht's hull, which has had great results in a narrow way, is not applicable to the vessels of trade.

Is the peculiar shape of a ship's hull, with the pointed stem and blunt stern, an eternal necessity? Surely no human contrivance is destined to last forever. That is what Admiral Popoff said when he set about the designing of a new type of warship.

One of the recognized weaknesses of an ordinary warship's construction is that the guns can only be used against objects facing the side on which they are mounted. To bring the guns on the other side to bear it is necessary to turn the ship around, a long and complicated operation, during which it may be destroyed.

It is claimed for the Novgorod that it is able to maintain a fire in all directions and to revolve within the space occupied by itself. It is thus relieved from the necessity of making many difficult and dangerous movements, and no enemy within striking distance can escape its aim.

Its deck rises a very short distance above the water, and the heavy guns are mounted in two revolving turrets, which together command the whole surrounding space. Owing to its shape its propelling and steering machinery is constructed on very different principles from that of other ironclads.

To Subdue Wild Horses.

Runaway horses are unknown in Russia. No one drives there without having a thin cord with a running noose around the neck of the animal. When the animal bolts the cord is pulled and the horse stops as soon as it feels the pressure on the windpipe.

By those troubled with constipation in seeking relief from Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The disease is easily relieved in its earlier stage, and as it is utterly subversive of the general health, postponement of the remedy is unwise. The same holds good of delay in cases of fever and ague, kidney complaints, nervousness, debility and rheumatism, ailments to which the Bitters is particularly adapted.

There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the one remedy with millions of families, and everywhere esteemed so highly by a who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes intern cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health and the system is regular, then laxatives or other remedies are not needed. JOYS OF MATERNITY.

VIGOROUS MOTHERS AND STURDY CHILDREN ADMIRER.

Why so Many Women Are Childless—A Problem That Has Puzzled Physicians for Centuries.

Reproduction is a law of nature, and no picture of joy and happiness can equal that of the vigorous mother and her sturdy child.

Nature makes but few mistakes, and every thoughtful person must admit that a cause exists, why so many women are childless. The subject baffles the theories of physicians. Such cases are curable nine times out of ten, as evidenced by thousands of letters on file at Mrs. Pinkham's office. Many a darling baby owes its existence to Mrs. Pinkham's advice and the Vegetable Compound. This is not to be wondered at when such testimony as the following explains itself:

"I have taken three bottles of your Vegetable Compound, one package of Sanative Wash, one box of Liver Pills; and now I have a dear little babe four weeks old, and I am well. I have to thank you for this."

"I have spent $200.00 for doctor's bills without obtaining any relief. For my cure I only spent $5.00."

"I had been a victim of female troubles in their worst form; suffered untold agonies every month; had to stay in bed, and have poultices applied, and then could not stand the pain."

"My physician told me if I became pregnant I would die. I had bladder trouble, itching, back-ache, catarrh of the stomach, hysteria and heart trouble, fainting spells and leucorrhoea. Can you wonder that I sing the praises of a medicine that has cured me of all these ills?"—Mrs. GEO. C. KIRCHNER, 372 Belmont Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

AMATEUR SURGERY.

Hints as to the Care of Cyclists Who Meet with Injury.

It seldom happens, when a bicyclist is thrown from his wheel or receives injuries by other means, that a surgeon can be had on call. It is, therefore, necessary that they should understand how to treat wounds which they or their companions receive. The up-to-date wheelmen are taking time by the forelock and ascertaining what measures should be taken to afford themselves temporary relief in case of injury on the road. Even a few minutes' delay when an artery has been severed may mean the death of the rider. The Society for Instruction in First Aid to the Injured, with headquarters in New York and branches in other cities, is turning its attention especially to instructing bicyclists in helping themselves or their fellow wheelmen in case of accident. Lectures will be given in the fall before cycling clubs, in which all forms of road injuries will be dealt with.

Here is a list of the most common accidents and brief instructions for immediate assistance. If carefully studied and promptly applied they may be the means of saving many lives as well as of relieving much unnecessary agony.

Contusions are the simplest wounds made by falls and are usually disregarded by hardy wheelmen. The remedy is to bathe as soon as possible in alcohol and water, Pond's extract or laudanum. Anything containing alcohol will act efficaciously. The simplest falls are usually from inexperienced riding or from slipping on wet pavements.

Shock is a condition so common and so dangerous that its remedy must be kept constantly in mind. The action of the heart has been interfered with through the nerve centers and unless promptly attended to may produce grave consequences. The treatment consists in applying heat to the body as quickly as possible. Stimulants should be given in small quantities except in cases of injury to the head, when heat alone should be resorted to. The nearest house should be called on for hot wet towels. Sudden collisions between two wheels or between a wheel and some other object will nearly always produce some degree of shock.

Broken ribs are almost the invariable outcome where several riders, going at the top of their speed, fall one on top of the other. If, in this accident, the sufferer groans continually and has much difficulty in breathing, perhaps spitting a little blood at intervals, there is nothing to do but moisten his lips with liquor and carry him as gently as possible to the nearest hospital.

For simple fracture, where the bone is broken but does not protrude, there is no need to hurry. Give the patient a little stimulant and handle as little as possible until the surgeon arrives. For fracture of the collar bone, lay the patient flat on his back and keep him practically quiet; but if it is absolutely necessary to move him before the bone is set do not forget to put a large pad in the armpit and bind the arm to the side with the hand and forearm across the chest.

A broken arm or leg can readily be seen if it is a compound fracture. In this case little can be done but protect the wound from dirt and treat the patient the same as from shock, unless there be bleeding, when it should be treated as any other hemorrhage.

Dislocations should be kept wet in cool water until medical aid arrives.

Sprains, which are especially common for beginners, should be bathed in hot water if possible and kept perfectly quiet until bandaged. Cold water will also give relief.

MAMMOTH PARADES.

GOLD AND SILVER HOSTS OF CHICAGO MARCH.

The Mightiest Demonstrations Ever Seen Upon This Continent—Tens of Thousands in Line, Viewed by Half a Million—City Suspends Business.

A Memorable Day.

Friday was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the burning of Chicago and the day was commemorated in that city by two of the greatest political demonstrations ever witnessed in this country. The day was given to a mammoth procession of gold men, and at night an army 20,000 strong of those favoring silver marched the streets with flaming torches and lusty shouts for their candidates.

Over 60,000 men on foot, on horseback, on floats, in carriages, all of them directly identified with the industrial and commercial activity of Chicago, occupied the down town streets from 10 o'clock in the morning until 4:15 o'clock in the afternoon. Some of them were millionaires, some of them day laborers, many of them employers and thousands of them wage-earners. This was the composition of what was admittedly the largest, best-managed and the most successful parade ever witnessed in the city. It was Chicago's own day, the twenty-fifth anniversary of the fire of 1871 and the quarter-centennial of the rebuilding of the city.

Ten o'clock was the hour designated by the Chief Marshal as the time for the movement to begin. The hands on the watch of the artillery officer represented an acute angle. He nodded to the gunner in charge of the battery section. The twelve-pound Napoleon spoke. Chief of Police Badenoch spurred his horse. The great procession was in motion.

The step was in quick time, and 15,000 men were continually in the line. As fast as they reached the point of dismissal they were hurried away. The slightest delay was prevented. The distance covered by each man in the actual line of march was three and one-half miles; his marching time was one hour and twenty minutes, while five hours was the time required for the procession to pass a given point.

Sixty Thousand in Line.

By actual count these were 57,733 persons in the procession. Of these, 52,231 were on foot; 2,274 were on horseback, and the others were distributed on floats, in carriages and on bicycles. On the floats were 980 men; in carriages, 370; the bands numbered 1,430 men all told, and 240 rode in tally-ho coaches. From the stock yards came 760 mounted men. One hundred and eight cyclists, acting as couriers, were in line, while the police numbered 150. Eighty-five brass bands and forty five and drum corps furnished the music. Business firms represented by banners numbered 120, while ninety-six political clubs marched in the column. Among the wheeled vehicles were 178 carriages, 111 floats, thirty-seven tally-ho coaches and one electric motorcycle.

One of the principal features was the living flag, formed by veterans carrying colored umbrellas in such position as to represent the stars and stripes. These men were heartily cheered all along the route, and when they reached the stand occupied by John R. Tanner in front of the Great Northern Hotel, the enthusiasm was immense and the cheering loud and continuous. The old Tippecanoe boys were too infirm to march, but they made a brave display in their thirteen carriages.

SILVER'S GREAT SHOWING. Twenty Thousand Bryan Enthusiasts Celebrate Chicago Day.

The silver men owned Chicago Friday night. Twenty thousand of them tramped through the business center with torches aflame, red fire burning and cheering wildly for Bryan and Altgeld. They filled Tattersalls' building to hear free silver speeches and crowded around the score of stands which were built at street corners to take care of the overflow. They formed groups ranging from fifty to 200 persons in all parts of the district, and discussed the financial issue until midnight, and long after the cable cars had stopped running shouts for Bryan and Altgeld woke up sleepers in all parts of the city.

So far as numerical strength was concerned, the silver parade was outclassed by the gold parade of the afternoon, but in enthusiasm and noise the Bryan men led the McKinley men by a large majority. From the moment Grand Marshal Tolman gave the order to march until the procession broke up south of Tattersalls, the cheering, yelling and hurrahs were continuous, and every cheer for Bryan was echoed by another from the throng which bordered the line of march. The sympathetic enthusiasm of the spectators was one of the principal features of the demonstration, and women joined with the men in cheering for the free silver champion.

By actual count there were 21,548 men and women in the procession on foot, horseback, on floats and in wagons and carriages. Over 500 women and girls took part in the parade, and there were several hundred boys, who carried banners and were members of life and drum corps. It was an old-fashioned torch-light procession, with some lime lights and hundreds of transparencies and banners. The silver men were short of bands, for almost all union bands in the city had been engaged for the afternoon procession, and they were compelled to make up the deficiency with life and drum corps, but they were strong on horses, and the men from the stock yards made a good showing in their saddles.

A West Side silver club caught the crowd by shouting, "We love Mark Hanna, nit." "No Yale dudes in these ranks," was painted in bold black letters on a transparency, and others were, "Bryan, Brain and Brawn, against Bonds, Booodle and Bluster."

How Old are You?

You need not answer the question, madam, for in your case age is not counted by years. It will always be true that "a woman is as old as she looks." Nothing sets the seal of age so deeply upon woman's beauty as gray hair. It is natural, therefore, that every woman is anxious to preserve her hair in all its original abundance and beauty; or, that being denied the crowning gift of beautiful hair, she longs to possess it. Nothing is easier than to attain to this gift or to preserve it, if already possessed. Ayer's Hair Vigor restores gray or faded hair to its original color. It does this by simply aiding nature, by supplying the nutrition necessary to health and growth. There is no better preparation for the hair than

THE NEW WOMAN.

Has She Come—What She Is And What She Is Not.

The phrase "new woman," together with the type of womanhood it represents, or is supposed to represent, has become a popular theme with the pulpit, the platform, and the press. Permit me then to say what, in my conception of the new woman, she is not.

First, she is not a man hater. On the other hand, she believes man to be a good creature of God, and enjoys the companionship of noble men without a thought of any of them as a possible lover.

She believes in a high and holy comradeship between men and women—an intellectual comradeship based, most of all, upon some high plane of common good to humanity—a comradeship into which comes no suggestion of physical differences.

Second, she is not seeking to usurp authority over the man, nor to supersede or displace him in his field of activity. She does not covet man's lawful rights nor envy him his sex. She does not wish she had been born a man, but she rather rejoices in the divine possibilities of her womanhood.

Third, She is not disinclined to matrimony. She believes marriage to be the holiest relationship entered into by men and women, but she does not believe it to be the chief end and aim of a woman's existence. She believes that when a pure man and a virtuous woman, by mutual consent, and in obedience to the law, set up for themselves a home, a miniature republic, in which each has an equal voice in the government, a republic, in which love, equality and justice reign, that they have complied with nature's highest law for humanity.

To be sure, she does not look with favor upon early marriages. She is too busily engaged in developing her intellectual faculties and her physical powers to give time or thought to beaux and suitors. Her regard for marriage as a holy estate, a sublime possibility in her own life, prompts her to seek to fit herself for its responsibilities.

Fourth, she is not averse to maternity. A few good people in view of the woman's presence, have become painfully apprehensive lest the race become extinct. If there be any among those who read these words, let me dispel your fear. God has taken care for that. So deeply imbedded in the fibres of a woman's being is the maternal instinct, that no vexed social problem, no philanthropic scheme, no vaulting ambition for place and power can ever separate her from a desire for the crown of motherhood. It is the society woman, the woman of fashion bedecked in silks and jewels, the woman who finds her highest enjoyment and greatest pleasure in the theater and the ballroom, it is such a woman that refuses to sacrifice ease and pleasure for the care of little children, fresh from the hand of God.

The new woman, my new woman, believes maternity to be the crowning glory of womanhood. Her heart yearns for the touch of the little velvety fingers upon cheek and brow; for the imprint of sweet baby lips upon her own, and for that earliest smile that signifies the dawning of intelligence in the mind of her offspring.

The new woman not only loves her own little ones; she loves all children and is in sympathy with them. She believes, however, that children have a right to be well born; that parents should subordinate their own desires for the good of their children; that the coming of the little ones should be planned for and prayed about, and that not only when placed for the first time in the mother's arms should they receive a welcome of love and gratitude, but months before should that welcome be accorded them.

My new women is neither vain, frivolous nor selfish. She does not paint her face, pencil her eyebrows, pinch her feet, restrict the delicate but long-suffering muscles of her waist, nor expose her health or cause her modesty to be impugned by the wearing of décolleté gowns.

She is not careless of her personal appearance, nor does she look with disdain upon suitable adornment. She aims to be neatly, artistically, becomingly and healthfully attired. In dress she seeks to be neat, not gaudy. She believes in the gospel of good health, in a white life for two, and she is gentle, tender and sympathetic, yet firm, self reliant and dignified.—Mrs. Morrow in Signal.

The seven electors' tickets and the state and county tickets on the official ballot this year make it much larger sheet than it has ever been before and the discovery is now made that all the boxes heretofore provided in the 3,200 precincts will have to be thrown away and new ones purchased, as the 200 ballots, the number of voters in each precinct, cannot be crowded into one box. Saturday at Indianapolis the state commissioners had paper cut the size of the official ballots and when they attempted to force 200 of the sheets into the ballot box it was found impossible to do so. Though an effort has been made to reduce all precincts to 200 voters, many of them contain 250 or more, and this fact makes the purchase of new boxes throughout the state absolutely imperative upon the commissioners.

The following essay on corns was written by a young lady: "Corns are of two kinds—vegetable and animal. Vegetable corns grow in rows; animal corns grow on toes. There are Unicorns capricorn, corn-dodger, field corn and corn whiskey. Gophers do not have corns, but people having corns do not 'go fur' if they can help it. Corns have kernels, and some colonels have corns. They say corns are purchased by tight shoes and boots, which is probably the reason why when a man is drunk they say he is corned. If a farmer manages well he gets a good deal of corn per acre, but we know of one farmer who has one corn acher with one corn. Another kind of corn is the dodger. In fact every man with a corn is a dodger."
