A RIP-ROARING TIME.

The Bryanites Had Their Innings on Monday Last.

Last Monday the day dawned bright and clear as the crystal waters of "Maxenkuckee" and old Sol shed his silvery rays over the earth in all his resplendent glory. Monday was to be a silverite day, as bills had been liberally circulated announcing that Hon. Chas. Kellison, Hon. John B. Stoll and a republican senator from Kosciusko county would speak upon the great issues of this campaign. The one o'clock train from the north brought Hon. Kellison, but owing to circumstances unknown to the writer, H. B. Stoll, the South Bend Times editor failed to materialize. Mr. Kellison was accompanied from Plymouth by the Plymouth celebrated "Glee Club" and a mandolin orchestra. Also we noticed the following distinguished gentlemen from Plymouth, Hon. A. C. Capron, John Capron, John Wolford, Thos. Walker, Eugene Marshall (who by the way will make a rattling sheriff if elected) and others.

At two o'clock Senator Manwaring addressed a fair sized crowd in Kreuzberger's grove. The gentleman is an excellent speaker and from his point of view gave a concise and logical address upon the silver question, at the close of which the band played, the glee club sang, and everybody was happy.

It could not be said that the crowd during the day was in any way large and extensive, but in the evening, at which time Hon. Chas. Kellison was to speak, the crowd was very large and enthusiastic on both sides of the house, judging by the everlasting yelling for both candidates. At 7:30 p. m. the great hall at the Colovade hotel, which had been tendered free of charge by landlord Postbelwaite, was filled to overflowing by people anxious to hear Marshall county's distinguished son. After a song by the glee club and music by the orchestra; Chairman Osborn, in a few well chosen remarks introduced the speaker of the evening, Chas. Kellison, who said:

Ladies and Gentlemen: We are in the midst of a political campaign, upon the issues of which rest the future prosperity of our nation. It therefore behooves us to consider carefully the questions before the people. Party lines are broken, and men who have heretofore stood unflinchingly by their party, are today standing upon that divided line debating within themselves whether it would be policy to leave the ranks of the old parties and join the great army of silverites who are marching after their leader, William Jennings Bryan, with that persistent energy which characterizes their faith in him and the Chicago platform. He said that the seventy million people of this nation were capable of conducting their business affairs without the aid of any foreign power. That practically the time had come for America to slap old John Bull in the face and give him to understand that we can most effectually conduct our own monetary system. He gave a brief reference to the St. Louis convention and scored the followers of McKinley for turning the pictures of Lincoln, Garfield and scores of the brainiest men who ever graced the pages of American history to the wall. He stated that the first bill upon the money question passed by congress during Washington's presidency was for the free and unlimited coinage of silver, and most emphatically portrayed the great benefits derived from it at that time and for the succeeding years following. He gave a review of the international congress which had convened in Europe upon various occasions, which were attended by the most able financiers of this country, which, after due deliberation, failed to accomplish anything which was the great cause of the most disastrous panic ever witnessed in this country as bank after bank went to the wall, and business was prostrated. He then in a very able manner dwelt at length upon the silver question, and roasted without fear or favor the money barons of this country, who were fighting the silverites to a finish. The Chicago platform, Wm. J. Bryan and his adherents now propose to accomplish what the great financiers could not do, viz., pass a free silver bill, which will entirely change the present monetary system by making silver and gold upon a ratio of 16 to 1.

From beginning to end the speaker handled his side of the question with the ease and self-assurance of a "Henry Clay" and won the applause of the Bryanites present, if not the approval of the McKinleyites. All in all the meeting was a marked success.

For Judge of Circuit Court.

MR. EDITOR: Every man who has the privilege of exercising the rights of franchise, has his choice, both in local and national candidates. But upon national elections they are apt to forget that in municipal affairs the very best men should be elected to transact the same, and those men who have been tried and not found wanting are the men who deserve recognition no matter what their politics or what the issue. Judge Capron has been tried. He is acknowledged by the legal profession to be impartial, always standing firm upon the principles that no man is guilty until fairly proven so, and in all his career as judge has unwaveringly done his duty without fear or favor. We sincerely believe that there is no better qualified man in the district, hence he should be re-elected. Aside from his capacities, he is a genial, whole-souled gentleman, and is a sincere friend to all humanity. Do not let prejudice or party affiliation lead you to make a mistake. Judge Capron has proven himself to be the most conscientious and capable judge that ever wielded the gavel in the judicial courts of this district, and should be retained in office. A CITIZEN.

"A printing office is considered by many persons to be a rather tough place, and the newspaper workers mighty bad men. Statistics, however, do not bear out the idea," said a policeman to a reporter, a few days ago. "In looking over a book containing the records of prisoners I find that in the state penitentiary of Texas, out of 3,890 convicts, there is not a single newspaper man or printer. There were, however, ministers, doctors, bankers, barbers, photographers, barkeepers, cooks and members of all other professions and callings. The newspaper man gets his bad name because the nature of his business teaches him to detect shams, and he scorns the hypocrite. —Ex.

CONGRESSMAN ROYCE SPEAKS

On the Financial Question to an Enthusiastic Audience.

Last Friday evening the above distinguished gentleman addressed a large and enthusiastic audience at this place. After some very appropriate music by the Culver City Band, that astute young politician and political leader, Henry Speyer, in a few well chosen remarks introduced the speaker, who was roundly applauded. He said: "Fellow citizens, ladies and gentlemen, I will have to beg of you to bear with me upon this occasion, as I have been continually talking day and night during the present campaign, and my voice is somewhat affected, consequently would request that you remain quiet as possible."

He said every man had a vital interest in this campaign, and upon their ballots depended the weal or woe of the country. He started out by saying that four years ago we were requested to abolish a system which had for many years fostered the industries of this country and thereby given labor to the toiling millions, and which had been the prima facie cause of this great country to grow and expand in a commercial sense, until it was the peer of all countries both from point of wealth, industries and wages paid to wage-earners, and that system was protection. Four years ago, when the country was never more prosperous, the democratic party came to you and informed you that you were being robbed, that high protection defrauded the farmer, the laboring man, and that the "rich were growing richer and poor poorer." Hence the party that went into power by your ballots adopted the free trade policy, and as a result the factories closed and every industry all over this broad land staggered, and either collapsed or run upon half time with millions less men employed. In fact it was a regular cyclone, and the disaster is felt in every home, in every avenue of business, and today capital stands uncertain. The Chicago platform headed by Bryan promises relief on exactly the same terms promised by Cleveland, only in a double dose, as it promises us a depreciated currency and free trade combined. Under the present system of government one dollar is as good as another and it would be one of the greatest crimes to depreciate them. As it now stands the gold dollar, the silver dollar and the paper dollar stand side by side and backed by Uncle Sam, are worth 100 cents each, while under free silver rule they would fall to 50c., thereby losing one-half of their purchasing power, and the people who were fortunate enough to have a few dollars in the bank, or in their own possession for that matter, would find out, if Byran is elected, that they are worth only a little over that amount, although they gave 100 cents worth of labor for it. It is not the volume of money that the people want, it is the world-wide opportunity of earning it. The silver issue, the speaker said, did not originate in New York, nor any other eastern state, but was brought out in the silver districts of the west, by the silver mine owners to benefit themselves, with no thought of the country at large. Millions of dollars were sent to other countries last year for wool, woolen goods, etc., that might as well have been kept at home, just that much taken away from the laboring people of this country for the benefit of those abroad. The people of this nation have, for the past few years, waded through despair and tribulation, but the golden sunlight will shine upon them on the morning of the 4th of November, and the cry will be, "McKinley and Prosperity" has won the day; and the flag that has waved in the battle and the breeze will be raised above the sacred honor of the nation, and the people will uphold, preserve and maintain it.

As the close of the speech, the crowd went wild with enthusiasm and yelled for McKinley, Royce and the Republican ticket in general.

For Representative.

Our readers in looking over the political arena and discussing free silver, pro and con, should not forget that Culver City has a candidate, who is before the people of Marshall county and who is worthy of a strong vote, not only in Union township but in the county.

It is not an exaggerated statement when it is said that no citizen of our little city has labored more earnestly in its upbuilding; or by his practices and advocacy of higher and purer morality, has accomplished more good than Dr. Rea.

His honesty of purpose, his firmness of resolve, his absolute fearlessness exhibited in every undertaking, have given him a place in the hearts of his neighbors and fellow citizens that is as lasting as friendship and respect.

Whenever any great improvement has been agitated, whenever any great work is to be accomplished for the betterment of our town and county, Dr. O. A. Rea has always been and is now found with the leaders in the work, bearing his burden willingly and voluntarily.

Dr. Rea has never aspired for political honors to any great extent, and when his many friends in Marshall county irrespective of party affiliation, prevailed on him to be a candidate for the nomination of representative to the state legislature before his party's convention, no one saw fit to oppose him and he was chosen unanimously as the republican standard bearer for legislative honors. It was a case of where the office sought the man and not the man the office.

He was chosen for this office because of his peculiar fitness for the station. As a parliamentarian he has no peer in this county, and he is possessed of those precious and rare qualities of leadership, which will, in case of his election and installation in the legislative chambers of our state, at once place him to the front and give Marshall county a recognition she richly deserves.

Dr. Rea is a man firm in his convictions but not the least bit "cranky" in his notions. His scheme of legislation is, that it should be so framed as to be easy to do right. He believes that legislation should be such as will reach the whole people for the best good. His idea is, that it rests with the individual himself as to whether he can obey or disobey the law, and that laws should be framed on common sense line and not on dogmatical lines. He is a man that has a peculiar faculty of finding out what the whole people want, and he affirms that it is his pledge to the people of his county, that if elected, (and his word is as good as his bond) he intends to find out what all the people want and not what the classes want, and if the majority is in favor of that which is right but opposite that which he thinks will best serve the best interest of his constituents, he means to remember his sworn obligation that he is representing the people of Marshall county irrespective of party or class.

He believes in progress and is far from being a "kicker." He is a broad-gauged, liberal-minded man, one who will reflect credit on his town, his county, and his state. If you desire, fellow citizens of Marshall county, a representative in your legislative halls, a man who will labor for our public schools, who will work for the purification of that which needs purifying, a man who will endeavor to put our legislation on a rational basis; with equal rights to all and special privileges to none, if you want a respected citizen, an able scholar and student of state craft, vote for Dr. O. A. Rea.

When you want your hair cut, remember you can have it done for the small sum of 15c. at the "O. K." barber shop, Osborn block, and it is done all O. K., and the baths are all O. K., and when a man comes out of the O. K. bath rooms he feels O. K.

Two tramps took possession of the school building Saturday evening, and built a rousing red-hot fire in one of the stoves. John Osborn and another gentleman surprised the gents, however, and gave them a double-quick walk out of town. They secured an entrance through one of the windows.

Girls are of few days and full of mischief, and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise. When the fair girl cheweth her gum with great haste and stampeth her pretty foot, then look out. She cometh forth in the evening in low neck and short sleeves, but in the morning she lieth abed while her mother hustleth.

Wm. Foss, the experienced shoe man, who is located in the "O. K." barber shop, is doing a rushing business. His work is "awl" right, and the shoes made to order by him will "last" as long as any hand-made shoe in the market. Repairing neatly, cheaply and satisfactorily done. Don't forget the location—"O. K." barber shop, Osborn block.

A barbecue will be held at Walkerton next Thursday. Bands from South Bend, Laporte, Plymouth, Walkerton and other places will be present. Prominent speakers will address the crowd. The people of Walkerton are bound to have a great day as they are expecting a large crowd of people. Quite a large crowd of people will go from this city.—Plymouth Independent.

Owing to a typographical error, this paper stated that the great barbecue at Rochester came off on Saturday when it should have read Thursday. However, it was the greatest event that ever occurred in Fulton county, thousands of people being present. In fact the streets were literally paved by people of all political complexions, yelling for all the candidates, and we are proud to say that the Culver City band headed the procession and received all honors during the great day of jubilee. It is evident that their worth is recognized, and the fundamental fact remains that the Culver City band is destined to become a famous annex to the bon ton bands of the state and will stand right in the front ranks.

BOOTLESS ROBBERY.

QUICK-WITTED EXPRESS MESSENGER SAVES CASH.

Alton Road Suffers but Little Loss—Suicide of a Famous Connecticut Divine—Ex-Speaker Crisp Dies at Atlanta—Spain's Treasury Depleted.

Bandits Get Little Plunder.
Four men, wearing masks and armed with rifles, held up a Chicago and Alton passenger train Friday afternoon at the Blue Cut, five miles west of Independence, Mo. Not a shot was fired, and the bandits got little booty. They were baffled by a quick-witted express messenger, who, suspecting why the train stopped, snatched the cash from his safe, threw it into some chicken coops in the express car and closed the safe door. He made a show of objection at the point of the menacing rifles and opened the safe with apparent reluctance. The outlaws found in the safe two small boxes supposed to contain jewelry, and they stole $25 from the pocket of the vest left by the engineer in his cab. None of the passengers was molested. A posse of officers is pursuing the bandits.

FROM A KNOB.
Noted New England Preacher Hangs Himself.

Rev. Thomas Stoughton Potwin, M. A., one of the best-known Congregationalist clergymen of New England, committed suicide at his home in Hartford, Conn. Mr. Potwin had been in poor health for some time, and since the recent development of melancholia had been under the care of Dr. Stearns, of the Insane Retreat. While his family were away he went to an upper room and hanged himself with a rope fastened to the door-knob. Mr. Potwin was a descendant of Elder Brewster, who came over in the Mayflower, and by intermarriage his ancestors were doubly related to Jonathan Edwards and the elder Timothy Dwight, president of Yale College.

CANADA'S POOR WHEAT CROP.

Will Have to Import Grain from the United States Before Spring.
Information received from Winnipeg shows that the wheat crop there is not faring out as well as expected, and that the total crop will be 4,120,000 bushels, against 33,000,000 bushels last year. The total wheat crop in Ontario will be only 4,000,000 bushels, against about 20,000,000 bushels last year. Canada will have to import wheat from the United States or some other country before the next crop comes in.

SPAIN NEEDS MONEY.

If She Can Get It She Will Continue the Cuban War Indefinitely.

Walter C. Bevan, who probably knows as much about Spain's present position toward Cuba as any foreigner in Spain, says that if Spain can get the money she will probably continue the war indefinitely. Her people, he says, think they can wipe the United States off the earth and not half try. Mr. Bevan thinks it would be a blessing to Spain and all concerned if she would accept $400,000,000 for Cuba.

Death of C. F. Crisp.

Charles Frederick Crisp, ex-Speaker of the House of Representatives, died at Atlanta, Ga., Friday. He had been ill for a long time and was forced, by advice of his physicians, to give over a debate last spring which had been arranged between him and Hoke Smith on the currency question. A complication of diseases, aggravated by a weakness of the heart, caused his demise.

Husband and Wife Seek Death.

Domestic troubles caused Mrs. Thomas McKee, of Winsted, Conn., to swallow a deadly dose of paris green with suicidal intent in the presence of her four small children. Physicians arrived in time to save the woman's life. After McKee found out his wife was out of danger he left home and attempted to end his life by drowning in Mad River.

Wild Cuban Rumor.

It was reported in Havana that Gen. Weyler had received a cable dispatch from Minister Dupuy de Lome informing him that the United States, in accord with Mexico, have forwarded an ultimatum to Spain stating that if the Cuban war is not ended by the close of the year, both countries will proceed to establish the independence of Cuba.

DUN & CO.'S REPORT.

Certain Indications that Better Times Are Dawning.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "The one commercial change which more than any other insures better business in the near future is the excess of merchandise exports over imports. In September exports were $85,098,594 and imports only $50,825,705, and the excess of exports was $34,272,889, in payment for which net imports of gold were $34,249,183. Last year the excess of merchandise imports was $6,765,257 in September and net exports of gold $16,506,558. In the four principal classes exports increased $20,641,134, more than half in cotton. Continued shipments of gold from Europe, not including $4,000,000 from Australia, now amount to $59,250,000 since the movement began, of which $52,250,000 has already arrived and have not been arrested by measures taken by the great European banks. The heavy movement of grain is the corner stone. An important fact is that all available grain freights have been engaged for months ahead."

SCHNAUBELT IS NOW DEAD.

Haymarket Bomb-Thrower Expires at San Bernardino, Cal.

Rudolph Schnaubelt, the supposed bomb-thrower of the Chicago Haymarket riot, is dead at last. It is the third report of his death, but this time it is definite. His life came to an end Monday in San Bernardino, Cal., consumption being the cause. In 1887 he was reported dead in Erie, Pa., and only eighteen months ago a report came that he was fatally shot in Honduras. Schnaubelt was one of the first men arrested with Lingg, Spies, and Schwab, May 5, 1886, after the great riot. For ten hours the police kept him in the sweat box, but his nerves stood the test and they let him go. He took immediate advantage of this, for he disappeared as completely as if he had dropped into the lake. In ten hours more the police wanted him badly, but could not trace him. He was reported in Central America and all over the world, but was never captured.

SANK IN THE LAKE.

Steamer Grand Traverse Is Run Down and Immediately Sinks.

The steamer Grand Traverse of the Lackawanna line and the steamer Livingston collided near Colchester Light, off Amherstburg, Ont. The Grand Traverse sank immediately, the crew being taken off by the Livingston. The Grand Traverse, after being laid up most of the season, went into commission at noon Sunday, and had not been in service twenty-four hours before she was sunk. The Livingston had been out of commission but was loaded with grain at Armour's Friday. The Grand Traverse was insured for $25,000. She was built in 1879, and measured 869 tons. She belongs to a class of vessels now out of date for money-making, and her owners will not suffer much if any loss.

Death of Judge Richardson.

William A. Richardson, chief justice of the Court of Claims, died at his home in Washington, aged 74 years. He had been ill for some months with a complication of diseases, and owing to his advanced age his death had been generally expected. Judge Richardson was born at Tyngsborough, Mass., in 1821, and was a graduate of the law department of Harvard in 1846, was judge advocate and general's aid in Massachusetts, and was president of the common council of Lowell in 1853-54. He became judge of probate in 1856, and was judge of probate and insolvency from 1858 until 1872. The judge declined a Superior court judgeship in 1869 and the same year became assistant secretary of the United States treasury. He went to Europe as the financial agent of the government in 1871 to negotiate for the sale of the funded loan of the United States and made the first contract abroad for the sale of the bonds. In 1873 he became Secretary of the Treasury, resigning in 1874 to accept a seat on the bench of the Court of Claims, of which he became chief justice in 1885. This position he held at the time of his death. Judge Richardson was the author of a number of publications of a financial and legal character.

Disaster on the Lake.

The big steamer Australasia, owned by James Corrigan, of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., was burned Saturday night on Lake Michigan and now lies at the bottom of Whitefish Bay. The steamer, which was valued at $60,000 and was loaded with a cargo of 2,000 tons of coal for Milwaukee, caught fire about 11 o'clock at night. The Australasia was then in sight of land. Full steam was put on and an effort made to beach the vessel, the crew in the meantime making a terrific fight against the flames. At last shoal water was reached just as the life saving crew arrived at the vessel and rescued the officers and men. The Australasia soon afterwards sank. The vessel and cargo are counted a total loss.

E. E. Wilson Charge 1 with Fraud.

Edward E. Wilson, a member of the produce firm of Johnson & Wilson, was arrested at Boston, charged with the larceny of $10,000 worth of property in Kansas City, Mo. It is alleged that Emmet H. Wilson, a brother, purchased about $10,000 worth of goods in Kansas City, shipped the goods to E. E. Wilson, his brother, in Boston, and before the day of payment assigned.

New Tack by Watson.

Thomas E. ## GOTHAM NOW SECOND

FAR BEHIND CHICAGO IN REGISTRATION.

City By the Lake Leads the Seaboard Town by Over 50,000 Votes—Rambusch, Juneau's Absconding Banker, Takes His Own Life.

Biggest City in America.

Proof of Chicago's supremacy over all other cities in the United States in point of population was recorded Tuesday at the final period for the registration of voters. New York has been left far behind in the race. The difference in the two great centers of population would permit of the addition to the New York registration lists of the total voting strength of any one of seven States. New York as it is now constituted claims a total population of 1,750,000, and up to date the best that the political parties and nonpartisan boomers have been able to register is over 54,000 short of the number enrolled in Chicago, including the last day's registration. In three days New York gathered 331,180 names, whereas in two days Chicago accumulated nearly 400,000 names of legal voters.

LIKE AN ARMY.

Episcopalians Enter the Salvationists' Field.

The Protestant Episcopal church of the United States is about to organize an army of uniformed evangelists who will be under military discipline, and compete with the Salvation Army and the American Volunteers in the field of Christian work among the poor. This important project was decided on at a meeting of prominent clergymen from different parts of the country, held in the Church Missions house at New York. The matter came up for consideration some time ago, before the Parochial Mission Society. A committee of this representative body was appointed to investigate the army project. The investigating committee's report was read and recommended the adoption of the army scheme. A committee was appointed, and it will at once proceed to complete the details of the organization. The plans will include the best features of the Salvation Army and of the Church Army of England, from which the former organization sprang. Uniformed corps of trained evangelists, under military discipline, will be stationed in different cities. These men will preach in the streets and be aided by bands of music. The work ultimately will include the erection of laborers' homes and lodging houses for men and rescue houses for fallen women.

ALL A BLUFF.

Weyler Never Meant to Fire on the Vigilancia.

It is stated by officials of the Government that the reports coming from New Orleans as to an exciting controversy at Havana between Gen. Fitz Hugh Lee, United States Consul General, and Gen. Weyler, over the attempted apprehension of a Mexican named Fernandez on board of the American ship Vigilancia, give a significance and importance to the event not warranted by the facts. A Washington correspondent says: If there was any apprehension that war would result, that feeling must have been confined entirely to Havana, for the law on the subject is too clear and its application has been so firmly established by precedent that the officials here were in no doubt as to the outcome. Consul General Lee has not informed the State Department of the affair, and the fact that he did not deem it worthy of the expense of cabling, but will treat it only in the routine way through mail reports, is evidence of the importance he accorded to the incident. The Spanish authorities received Havana advices fully explaining the case, but these advices were of an entirely pacific character and treated the matter as an incident which had been satisfactorily adjusted between Gen. Weyler and Consul General Lee without any breach of their friendly relations.

FULFILLS HIS THREAT.

Suicide in Virginia of W. T. Rambusch, of Juneau, Wis.

A dispatch was received at Juneau, Wis., late Tuesday night from the coroner of Fredericksburg, Va., stating that W. T. Rambusch, the absconding banker of Juneau, had committed suicide there. The dispatch asked what disposition should be made of the body. Instructions were at once sent to forward the body to Juneau for burial. Rambusch was engaged in banking and the abstract business. He disappeared on Oct. 10, and forgeries amounting to between $300,000 and $500,000 have come to light.

Buried Under the Roof.

At Charlottesville, Va., the asphalt roof of a one-story room used by the University of Virginia fell and caught five workmen, two of whom—Eugene Bunch and George Tucker—were killed. Lorenzo D. Bowen received a scalp wound and ugly cuts about the face. V. W. Chambers a fracture of the skull and Joseph Lamb was cut about the head.

Hanged by Grapevine.

The remains of an unknown man were found in the woods about four miles north of Menominee, Mich., by a hunting party. Upon investigation it was discovered that it was a case of suicide and that the man had hanged himself from the limb of a tree by means of twisting a grape vine into a rope. The body had evidently been there five or six years.

At Dusseldorf, on a charge of insulting a military court of honor in connection with certain challenges for a duel, Baron Ehrhardt, Lieutenant Rhein and others have been sentenced to fines and terms of a few months' imprisonment. This case has excited much interest.

BRITAIN AFTER WOOL.

Buyers Complain of the Quality of American Staple.

United States Consul Meeker, at Bradford, reports to the State Department that over 1,000,000 pounds of American wool was sold in England early in the autumn at an average price of 9 cents per pound, and that these sales would have continued except for the advance in freight rates and stiffer prices at home, so that there are still large amounts held for sale in England waiting higher prices. Complaint is made of the quality of this wool, which is of the merino short staple type, and buyers complain that the Boston shippers selected the very worst they had to send over. Mr. Meeker says British merchants strongly advise American wool buyers, if they hope to keep place in the British market, to educate the growers through agricultural papers, so that they may bring their wool to market in better condition.

IN A BOGUS LOTTERY.

Seven Chicago Men Said to Be Guilty of Fraud.

Seven men, said to be at the head of a gigantic swindling scheme, known as the Royal Spanish Lottery Company of America, were arrested by the Chicago police. It is said by the police that the swindle has been carried on for five years and the lottery company used has been represented as being a branch of the concern of the same name, having its base in Madrid. Instead of being genuine, however, the police say it has no connection whatever with the foreign concern, and its patrons have been led to believe that they were investing their money on possible returns. The proof that the American concern has no connection with the foreign one, is said to lie in the fact that the tickets which have been used in carrying on the scheme were printed in this country.

Death of Horace Rublee.

Horace Rublee, editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel, died Sunday night. He had been suffering for two years from a tumorous disease developed from tuberculosis. Mr. Rublee was born in Berkshire, Vt., in 1829, and came to Wisconsin in his eleventh year. He resided in that State continuously with the exception of a year as editor of the Boston Advertiser in 1873 and eight years as Minister to Switzerland during Grant's administration. He served for many years as chairman of the Republican State Committee, was editor of the Wisconsin State Journal at Madison for sixteen years, and in 1880 went to Milwaukee and for a like period had been in control of the Sentinel. Mr. Rublee was easily the most distinguished newspaper writer in Wisconsin history for scholarly attainments, political leadership, and style of expression.

Princess Helena's Dowry $500,000.

A Vienna dispatch to the London Chronicle says that the Czar has informed the Prince of Montenegro that the dowry of the Princess Helena, his daughter, will be 1,000,000 rubles (about $800,000). The Czar and Czarina ordered their wedding gift to the Princess in Paris. It is a diamond ornament and will cost 2,000,000 francs.

Money Escapes Pierce Flames.

The officials of the Bank of Ecuador at Guayaquil, Ecuador, succeeded Monday morning in opening, for the first time since the great fire, the vaults of that institution. They found the paper money, documents and books and coin contained in the vaults, to be in perfect condition.

True Bill Against Lady Scott.

At London the grand jury Tuesday found a true bill against Lady Scott, mother-in-law of Earl Russell, who is charged by the latter with criminal libel in conjunction with two young men who were arrested with her on the same charge.

Many Musicians Meet.

Representatives from local councils of the National League of Musicians met in session in Indianapolis for the purpose of forming an organization which will affiliate with the American Federation.

AGED BISHOP WEDS.

REV. H. B. WHIPPLE MARRIED AT NEW YORK.

Leads Mrs. Evangeline Simpson to the Altar—Furious Battle at a Florida Mill—Somber Picture Spread Before the Spanish Ministry.

Bishop Weds at 74.

Right Rev. Henry Benjamin Whipple, bishop of Minnesota, whom the Indians of the Northwest years ago named "Straight Tongue," and who is now 74 years old, was married for the second time Thursday in St. Bartholomew's Church, New York City. The bride was Mrs. Evangeline Simpson, a widow, who is still comparatively young. She was a friend of the Bishop's first wife. Her husband, who died a few years ago, was Michael Simpson, an aged millionaire cotton manufacturer of Massachusetts, much of whose wealth she inherited. She is now about 35 years old. Her relatives live in Saxonville, Mass. Bishop Potter officiated at the wedding. The affair was a very quiet one. Even Rev. Dr. Greer's assistants did not know that one bishop was to solemnize the marriage of another in Dr. Greer's church. Bishop Whipple's life has been an eventful one. At 74 he is hale and hearty, though of spare figure, and is regarded as one of the ablest men in the church. He has been attending the session of the house of the Episcopal bishops.

BESIEGED BY A MOB.

Manager of Florida Lumber Mills Kills Two Infuriated Employees.

Besieged by infuriated negroes, J. M. Criglar, manager of Hagerman's lumber mills at Hager Station, four miles west of Chipley, Fla., defended himself with such effect that he killed two of his assailants and wounded four others. Criglar became engaged in a quarrel with one of his employees, and the other negroes, drew pistols and began firing at the manager. Criglar ran to his office, locked himself in and opened fire with a Winchester on the maddened negroes, who surrounded the building. For an hour the battle continued, and when the Louisville and Nashville train arrived at the station the negroes were preparing to set fire to the building and cremate Criglar. The train crew and passengers, however, rushed to the latter's aid and dispersed the negroes. The negroes had fired over 200 bullets into the building, but Criglar escaped by lying on the floor. As soon as the negroes fired a volley, however, he would rise and shoot at them through the windows.

BUTCHER MORE ARMENIANS.

Children Buried Alive and Young Women Kidnaped.

A Berlin dispatch to the London Daily News says: The St. Petersburg Vedomosti gives details of the Van massacre secured from fugitives who have arrived at Elchamadzin. They declare that Armenians are left in the Van district. The Kurds, declaring that they were executing the Sultan's will, mercilessly butchered the men, kidnaped the prettiest women and girls, and threw the children into the pits intended for storing corn and buried them alive, in order to save ammunition. The adult victims were arranged in rows and were killed, two or three at a single shot. The details of the outrages on the priests and temples and the sacred books and vessels are indescribably revolting.

Spain Is Very Gloomy.

A Madrid dispatch says: The Queen Regent presided at a council of ministers Thursday. Senor Canovas, the premier, gave a complete sketch, which was gloomy enough, of home and colonial affairs. The loss of men in the colonial wars has proved disastrous to husbandry, as proved by the marked decrease in exports. Spain will be compelled to largely import breadstuffs. Only patriotism prevents the latent discontent from breaking out. A sort of instinctive presentiment impels the nation to show cohesion and a haughty determination with a view to avoiding international complications and the possible intervention of the United States.

Short of Freight Cars.

The freight-car famine is assuming large proportions in the West. The Missouri Pacific is short over 600 cars north of Kansas City, and the Union Pacific, Burlington, Omaha, Elkhorn, and Rock Island are far behind in the number of required cars in Nebraska, while the famine in Iowa and Kansas is even worse. The roads have need of cars for extra weight, for all the wheat in the country is being rushed to market during the present high price.

Hurl Eggs at Carlisle.

John G. Carlisle, Secretary of the Treasury, was the target for eggs at Lexington, Ky., Thursday night. Repeated voicing of insult and contumely hurled at him was coupled with incidents which leaders of all factions declare were the work of hoodlums. He stood by his oratorical guns throughout, but at the close of the meeting had to be escorted to his home by a platoon of police.

Hogs Die of Cholera.

Hog cholera is raging in all the States on the corn belt but Illinois. The disease is attributed to the feeding of the swine soft corn. In South Dakota the loss is put at from 35 to 40 per cent. of the whole number. In Indiana, South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska the disease is more virulent than in any of the other infected States.

Officers Kill Moonshiners.

Four deputy United States marshals, headed by "Kid" Greer, had a desperate battle with moonshiners in the mountains near Whitesburg, Ky., killing two of them and capturing five others. The deputies also cut up and destroyed four stills.

ROSE LEAVES.

A rude wind shook the climbing rose
Which bloomed without my door,
And straightaway fell a blushing snow
About me on the floor.
'Tis thus, Oh Youth! æolian winds
Of fortune, changing tune,
Will shake your laurels till they lie
As roses wrecked in June.

DEVAL'S ESCAPE.

It was a red-letter day in my life when I was first put in charge of a "passenger." I'd worked my way up by successive stages from the post of leaner in the sheds, and being always a steady-going young fellow, had reached the topmost rung of the ladder sooner than most. There was, perhaps, an extra incentive in my case, as I was courting a little girl who was, she had told me, only waiting till I earned enough, to make me the happiest of men.

To be sure, I had a rival, Ernest Deval by name, who was "something in the city," and possessing the showy attractiveness and the art of insidious flattery which sometimes lure fickle-minded women to forsake the true metal for the glittering dross. I must own he occasioned me some slight cause for jealousy, still, secure in the knowledge of our mutual love and knowing Alice to be a sensible little girl, I was on the whole as happy as most chaps who see their sweethearts but once or twice a week.

She had told him on more than one occasion that she wanted nothing to do with him, but in spite of her obvious dislike he persisted in persecuting her with his attentions, and only the day before the incidents happened which I am about to relate, I had found it necessary myself to display the finger of Alice to him with my ring upon it, to his ill-concealed chagrin and evident mortification.

On the next night I was, as usual, ordered to take out the sleeping saloon express to the north. My mate had secured the couplings, the old engine was panting and snorting like a thing of life, as if eager for the coming journey, and the bustle on the platform had subsided. The signals were right, and I had my hand on the throttle only waiting for the "right away!" when, just as the green light was displayed, a cab rattled into the station, from which an excited man hastily jumped. Flinging some money to the driver, he rushed along the platform and sprang into the first compartment of the train, the next one to the engine, just as I pressed the lever and my fireman had loosened the brake.

We had hardly begun to move when another man, who had been waiting on the station, in the shadow of a pillar, and I knew as Detective Jobson, of Scotland Yard, sprang to the carriage and ejaculating, "Thought I should nab you here, my beauty!" endeavored to enter. I was busy, getting under way, but my mate told me that the man in the carriage struck the detective in the face, and thrust him off the footboard. His hat flew off in the struggle and fell between the platform and the moving train, but the officer, determined not to lose his quarry, was up again in an instant, and though the carriages were flying past him, he sprang upon the footboard of the last coach, heeding not the cries of the excited porters and terrified onlookers; and just as the train cleared the platform we saw the guard lean forward from the open door, and grasping the man by the arms, assist him into the van.

The fugitive in the first coach saw the detective's disappearance also, and his bloodless face blanched a shade paler.

"Great snakes!" exclaimed my fireman, drawing in his breath with a sharp hiss, "that was a narrow shave. Jobson means to have that chap somehow, and have him he will. I wonder what he's wanted for. He'll never reach the landing stage this journey, that's a dead cert!"

"No," said I; "they'll have him at Crewe right enough. Poor beggar! He made a desperate fight for it, anyhow!"

The "sleeper," as we called it, was timed straight through to Crewe without a stop, doing the 158 miles in three hours and five minutes. There we left it to another engine which would be waiting to take it on, but we should return with the "up" express later in the morning. I knew that as soon as we reached Crewe there would be a crowd of policemen waiting to search the train from end to end. Jobson was up to his work, and the telegraph would be clicking the warning message a moment or two after we had passed through the first station.

It was not the only capture, by any means. I had witnessed this astute officer make, and the despairing faces of men, robbed of the last hope of escape, the shadow of the criminal's cell already upon them, came into my mind as we rushed past Willesden, and looking backward for a moment through the flitting light, I saw the fateful piece of paper flutter from the detective's hand.

The officials would understand the significance of that scribbled message, and unless Providence miraculously interposed, the man was doomed. To leave the train as it flew through the night at the rate of fifty miles an hour was impossible. One man had done so once, but his body was found, mangled beyond recognition, lying on the track in the morning. There was no escape; and with such passing thoughts I dismissed the matter and concentrated my attention on the work in hand.

Suddenly I was startled by an ejaculation of horror from my mate.

"Look, Ben," he shouted, his eyes starting out from his head as he gazed into the dim light which surrounded the train like a haze, "the fool will kill himself!"

I turned, and though I prided myself on my steady nerves, the sight that met my eyes sent a cold thrill down my back, and made me lean against the brake for support.

The man had swung himself out of the end of the carriage and was endeavoring to work his way in face of the terrible backdraught toward us. Every moment I expected to see him torn from his precarious hold and dashed to pieces on the lines, but with the tenacity of a leech he clung to the handle of the door, while he leaned forward to grasp some new support. Suddenly a distant roar burst on our terrified ears. My mate tuned, his face as white as milk, and the perspiration standing on his forehead.

"Merciful powers!" he screamed in a harsh discordant voice, "the 'up' mail! Heaven have mercy on him!" and he hid his face with his hands as with a deafening shriek we flew toward each other and crashed past in the darkness, but above the din I fancied I heard the wild scream of terror as the wretched man realized his horrible peril. It was a full minute before I could turn my throbbing head to look behind.

With a feeling of sickness that was new to me I peered into the gloom.

"Thank God!" I ejaculated fervently, as the blood rushed through my veins once more. There, with his body pressed flat against the oscillating surface still stood the man who had been so near an awful death. Slowly he moved his head in our direction, and with another expression of grim resolution he pulled himself together. With bated breath we wondered what he would do next. As far as we could see his way was stopped, but, undeterred, he steadied himself and reaching forward felt round the corner of the coach.

Unexpectedly, his hand encountered one of the steps by which the men mount to the roof, and though we could not see his face distinctly, we fancied he set his lips in a terrible smile of accomplished purpose as he clutched it and, with a despairing effort, pulled himself to the end of the footboard and round into comparative safety on to the couplings between the tender and the coach.

"The madman is coming on to the engine," I burst out excitedly, divining his intention, as I saw his head appear for a brief instant above the coal.

"Anyhow, we can't see him commit suicide without raising a hand to stop him," Bill said, and began to scramble over the coal, where I saw him presently stoop down and grasp the man, dragging him with an almost superhuman effort on to the tender, where he sank down utterly exhausted.

Coming forward, my mate threw open the stoke hole with the intention of replenishing the fire, and the ruddy glow from the raging furnace lit up the tender from end to end.

"Good heavens!" I ejaculated, as my gaze met the haggard face of the rescued delinquent, "Ernest Deval!" and my nerveless hand fell from the polished lever.

"Ben!" he gasped, wonderingly, his wild eyes encountering mine, as he struggled toward us.

"Now, Mr. Deval," I shouted hotly, "perhaps you will be good enough to explain the meaning of the little game you've been playing to-night; but let me tell you, if you think you've furthered your chances of escape, you're wrong."

"Yes, mate," Bill sternly remarked, "you haven't done a lot for yourself by coming here."

"Ben!" he at last jerked forth, gasping for breath, his bloodshot eyes wandering round the cab, and into the darkness as we flew along. "Ben—I've been a fool—you saw the detective on my track—he's in this town now—I've been betting—and, you know how it looks at the office—found out this morning—I've fled for my life—but you'll help me give them the slip, Ben?" and the shivering wretch fell down helpless and clasped my knees.

"Don't talk nonsense, man," I answered roughly; "what you ask is an impossibility. My duty as a servant of the company is to hand you over to the authorities who will be waiting for you at Crewe; besides, your own sense should tell you there is no place to hide a child here."

"Oh, yes," added my mate, grimly, "you're every bit as bad off as if you was sitting on them comfortable cushions in the carriage there. I wouldn't give much for your chance."

"But you can help me if you like," he screamed, his eager face upturned, and the hunted expression of a wild animal at bay in his eyes. "Slow up the train a little—you can do it. I've money—I will give you £50—£100—anything you like," and he pulled out a handful of glittering gold.

"It can't be done, I tell you," I replied, shaking myself free from his grasp. "Get up and be a man. You've made your bed and you will have to lie in it. No man on this earth could get out of this scrape, so make the best of it."

Seeing that I was immovable, he turned his attention to Bill, and I saw him proffer a handful of gold. My fireman turned his back and busied himself with his duties. "It's no use, matey," I heard him say, "if Ben says it can't be done, it can't; and that's the end on it. I'm sorry for yer, for ou're a rattling good plucked 'un."

The despairing creature detected the tone of commiseration in Bill's voice, and redoubled his wild entreaties.

"If it could be done, I'd do it," Bill murmured. "I've got a wife and six kids to look after at home, and that brass would come in useful; but there," and he cast his eyes around the tender. Suddenly they lit up with a peculiar light, and turning to me he said, apologetically, "Ben! I don't ask yer to have any hand in this at all. You knows nothing about it. If the worst comes to the worst, we forced yer to silence, but all I say is this. Will you give me a chance to get the beggar off? I think I can do it without danger to you or me. All I asks yer to do is to know nothing about it. What say now?"

"Well, Bill," I remarked. "I bear the fellow no love, as you can see, but if by keeping silent I can do you a good turn to the tune of £50, you can depend on me, though I must say I don't see how you can possibly do the trick."

"You put your money on me," he returned, smilingly, as he gripped my hand, and retired to the end of the tender with Deval.

We had left Stacord behind some time since, and if nothing happened should run into Crewe in another twenty-five minutes or so. Having to do Bill's work as well as control the engine, I had my hands pretty full, and during the next ten minutes I was fully occupied. At the end of that time Bill rejoined me, and threw open the furnace doors once more. I looked round the engine. Deval had disappeared. Not a vestige or sign of his visit remained, but Bill's pocket bulged considerably, and his grimy face was expanded in a broad grin.

A few minutes later we slowed up at our destination for the night. There they were, just as I had expected. One policeman at the station gates and five or six stationed along the platform.

Before we had quite stopped, out jumps Jobson and rushes up the train. As the sergeant threw open the door of the compartment Deval had occupied we saw an expression of consternation cross the face of the bewildered detective, but, quickly regaining his composure, he superintended the examination with practiced eye. My mate had unfastened the couplings, and we were just off to the sheds, when Jobson approached the engine.

"Ben," he queried, anxiously, "did you see anything extraordinary on the way down? I've been sold nicely, and no mistake."

"I don't have time to see anything except signals ahead when I'm in charge of an express," I returned, unceremoniously. "Did you see anything, Bill?"

"Can't say as I did," Bill answered artlessly. "Have you lost your man, Mr. Jobson?"

"I have so," replied the officer. "I expect he dropped off somewhere."

"If he did he's a goner, for certain," said Bill. "We were never under fifty since we left Willesden."

"I'll look along the track for him going back," I remarked. "Are you going on or back with the morning mail?"

"I hardly know," he returned, disappointedly. "Well, thank you, anyhow. Good night, or, rather, good morning," and he made his way to the telegraph office.

We returned his salutation and steamed off to the sheds.

"What did I tell yer?" said Bill joyously. "We drop him outside and let him take his chance."

"Then he is on the engine?" I asked, as we pulled up.

For answer Bill got off and went to see if the coast was clear. Returning in five minutes he proceeded to the rear of the tender, and carefully lifted up a large piece of coal. Underneath was the head of Deval! Bill had artfully walked him in against the side, and in such a manner as to defy suspicion, little bits being scattered about in most natural manner possible. Quickly he was rescued from his uncomfortable position, and stood up as black as a sweep. Bill gave him a drink from his pannikin, and then conducted him off the engine and round the back of the sheds.

Did I ever hear from him again? Oh, yes. About two years afterward, a letter reached me one morning from Columbia, enclosing a Bank of England note for £100. It was from Deval and in it he told how he had succeeded in doubling on his tracks to Birmingham, and from thence had worked down to Southampton in disguise and got clear away. He expressed the hope that Alice and myself were happily wedded, and begged us to keep the note and give it as a present to our first-born child.—Tid-Bits.

THE CASTLE CASE.

Wealthy San Francisco Merchant and His Wife Accused of Shoplifting.

A case which has attracted international attention is that of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Castle, of San Francisco, who have been admitted to $200,000 bail in London to await trial for grand larceny. The Castles, who are wealthy Americans, and move in the best society of the Pacific coast, are accused of shoplifting. Castle is a member of one of the wealthiest firms in San Francisco and a graduate of London University. His wife is one of the society leaders of the Golden Gate, a woman of gentle disposition and highly cultured. They went to Europe this summer and in September arrived in London. They stopped at the Hotel Cecil and their wealth insured them every attention. The couple often went out on shopping expeditions. One day they visited a furrier's shop, and after examining the furs left without making a purchase. After they had gone the shopkeeper missed articles and put detectives on the track. Mr. and Mrs. Castle were followed to their hotel and there arrested. An examination of their trunks, which had been packed ready for sailing, revealed an amazing amount of stuff, the possession of which is beyond any explanation the police can offer, unless it be taken as evidence that Mrs. Castle has a mania for collecting odd trifles. Among the articles were a number of watches, all alike; a plated toast rack that came from the hotel breakfast table; thirteen umbrella heads, and a pair of sheets bearing the mark of a big London hotel. The sable and chinchilla skins missed by the furrier were also found.

After their arrest £2,000,000 sterling was offered as bail, but the authorities refused to release them. The United States embassy interested itself in their behalf, but without avail. They remained in common cells at the jail seven days, when they were arraigned, held for trial and released on $200,000 bail. Charles Matthews, one of the most noted criminal lawyers in England, has been retained to assist in the defense, and influential friends have sprung up all over the kingdom to help save the Castles from further disgrace, but their efforts will hardly avail. Larceny is a felony in English law, the punishment for which is practically unlimited, and the charges against the Castles are so well founded that their legal advisers are in despair. They do not believe that Magistrate Shell will even consent to consider the case under the "first offenders" act, which provides punishment by fine in lieu of imprisonment. Their attorneys admit the thefts, but will set up kleptomania as a defense.

PRINCETON'S GREAT DAY.

Cleveland Participates in the Celebration of a University's Birth.

President Cleveland's address was the principal feature of the Princeton College celebration at Princeton, N. J. It was delivered in Alexander Hall, whence he had been escorted on foot through the college grounds from President Patton's house by the Philadelphia City Troop, Mrs. Cleveland riding in an open carriage with Mrs. Patton.

The exercises opened with a prayer by Rev. Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler, of Brooklyn. After Dr. Cuyler's prayer, President Patton made the formal announcement that what was formerly the College of New Jersey will henceforth and forever be known as Princeton University. A scene of wonderful enthusiasm greeted Dr. Patton's remarks. He then announced the endowment fund received, amounting to nearly a million and a half dollars, not including the amounts contributed for Blair Hall by John I. Blair, of Blairstown, N. J., and the new library.

The ceremony of conferring the degrees on the sixty-five men elected for that honor was next on the program. It was learned that President Patton desired to confer the degree of doctor of laws upon Mr. Cleveland, but the President modestly declined the honor. The degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon a large number of European college professors and scholars. After the conferring of degrees, the President addressed the great assemblage.

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

Advance Information from the Report of State Geologist Blatchley—Singular Affliction Befalls a Little Girl at Kokomo.

Conditions of the Oil Field.

State Geologist W. S. Blatchley is paying his attention to the Jay County oil and gas fields with a view to obtaining data for his next annual report. During the tour he is now making he has found 1,800 producing wells in the State, while more than twice that many have proven failures, or have been abandoned after ceasing to produce. Nearly 6,000 wells have been drilled in Indiana, and Mr. Blatchley estimates that the total cost of drilling these wells will reach $6,000,000. He also has men at work on the oolitic stone, such as comes from the Bedford quarries, and will make this and the old gas fields special features of the report. Maps of these two areas, unlike any before gotten out, will also be printed. It is Mr. Blatchley's aim during his tenure of office to develop as fully as possible the resources of the State, such as coal, stone, etc. In regard to the oil field, he said that it will gradually extend, and that the crude product will be found over the greater portion of the present gas field. This extension will be toward the west and south, and he considers the recently drilled wells at Broad Ripple as on the western margin. Mr. Blatchley thought people should take into consideration the fact that neither gas nor oil is being formed at the present time, and should be more careful of their uses. The volume of both that has been wasted is immense. In regard to the Jay County field one thing is very noticeable. This is the condemnation of a large amount of territory because a dry hole has been struck within its limits. In his opinion this will, in course of time, be found to be incorrect.

Wheat Grows in a Child's Eye.

Three months ago the 7-year-old daughter of Abram Cain, living near Sweetser, got wheat in her eyes. A week ago one of the eyes began to inflame, and her parents, in examining the organ, discovered what was to all appearances a green sliver protruding from the corner of the eye. In attempting to remove the substance it broke off. The operation was repeated every day with the same result, the supposed sliver breaking off each time. A physician found a grain of wheat lodged in a corner of the eye with a sprout on it half an inch in length. The sprout was what the parents had been pinching off every day as it grew, thinking it a green sliver or splint. The eye is getting well now.

All Over the State.

At Noblesville the molders in the American Carbon Works walked out on a strike Monday morning. Under the rule of a former superintendent they were required to make 92 per cent. perfect carbons. A rule of a new superintendent demands a 97 per cent. rate, which price reduces their wages.

At Valparaiso Special Judge Burson refused to reduce the assessments of the Tolleston Club. M. T. Hart and John G. Earle of Chicago, in the famous Jerne ditch case, from Lake County, which is to connect Little Calumet with Big Calumet. The plan is to reclaim thousands of acres of land, costing $100,000. They took an appeal to the Supreme Court.

The Indiana oil field is extremely quiet, and unless there is a great change there will be a big drop in production. The largest company operating in the State has only three wells drilling, while another has not built a rig since July. A dozen other companies have curtailed work owing to a lack of paying territory. Supply companies are feeling the falling off in operations heavily.

The experts appointed to investigate the affairs of the Union Savings and Loan Association of Indianapolis, have made a report that it is solvent and that it is in excellent condition. Charles W. Griffin, of Hammond, is the president. This association was recently thrown into the hands of a receiver, from which an appeal was taken to the Supreme Court, the officers for the association giving bond in $1,200,000. Two plaintiffs to the suit for a receiver have withdrawn, a third has given notice of a wish to withdraw, and it is now anticipated that the suit will be set aside for want of parties to maintain prosecution.

A surging mass of excited people surrounded the city hall Monday morning at Fort Wayne, when Claude Smith was to have a hearing in the Mayor's Court on the charge of murdering George Frech, a 14-year-old lad, who was hurrying home to give his mother his first wages. A rush was made by those on the outside to catch a glimpse of the man who is suspected of having committed the most brutal crime in the history of Fort Wayne. What they saw was a young man, neatly dressed, kid gloved, shoes polished and smoking a cigar. He entered court smoking and removed his kid gloves. He then casually surveyed the crowd. Smith was bound over to the Circuit Court without bail.

The worst gang of thieves that ever infested Northern Indiana are now in jail at Kokomo. Two weeks ago Gus Freeman, the leader, was shot at the Flora fair while robbing a farmer, and Tuesday the gang, which scattered when Freeman was mortally wounded, was captured. They are Ida Clevenger, an 18-year-old girl, who divided honors with Gus Freeman in leading the outlaws; John Clevenger, "Buck" Gibbs, "Chick" Doll, and Lee Bard. The officers say they have in the last three years stolen more than 5,000 chickens and a number of horses and cattle, besides committing numerous burglaries. Freeman, who is 20 years old and has served one term in prison, is still alive, but is given up to die by the county physician.

Facts.

Some men have a gallon of words and only a spoonful of thought.

Most men are ready and willing to die for their country—of old age.

A man always puts his best foot forward; a mule puts his backward.

Some men are so exceedingly modest that they shun the naked truth.

Mrs. H. H. Culver arrived from St. Louis Thursday.

I. C. Dillion had an operation performed on his nose in Chicago last week by which he hopes to be greatly relieved of the asthma with which he has been affected for a number of years.

Milton B. Mawhorter the talented young musician, left for Benton Harbor, Mich., where he will be employed by a celebrated minstrel troupe which is about to start out on the road. We wish him success.

The Maxekuckee Annual Outing Club, of Indianapolis, which spent a few days hunting and fishing here last week have returned home. They are the jolliest lot of fellows we have met in a decade.

Next Friday evening Hon. G. G. Thayer will deliver an address in this city. The Philharmonic club will be present at the meeting and furnish excellent vocal music. The Plymouth drum corps will be on hand accompanied by a large delegation from that city. The Culver City band will also discourse sweet music. Everybody turn out.

Last Wednesday the silverites of this county had practically their wind-up rally at Plymouth. Gov. Claude Matthews was present and addressed the people. Between three and four thousand people were present. There was a monster procession composed of men on foot headed by numerous carriages, band wagons, men on horseback, etc. The Culver City band was there and absolutely "took the cake" over all competitors, which was conceded by hundreds, who were good judges. This caused a jealousy and the story was started that part of the band belonged to the Culver military academy. This is false, as every member of the band is a resident of this city or farmer boys living near. Of course the older bands in the procession have our sympathy, but Culver City is not to blame because they lack material for first class musicians. We have the material which will expand and develop until the Culver City band is known far and near as the "crack-a-jack" band of the state.

Mannerisms of Statesmen.

Mr. Gladstone had a number of quiet mannerisms, the most peculiar of which was the way, when puzzled by a question or a point at debate, he would scratch the top of his head with the thumb of his left hand, the palm upturned or the fingers tightly closed. When seated with his legs kept closely together, his head resting on the back of the bench and his eyes closed he would hug himself vigorously as if he were pleased with himself for something he had done. Lord Beaconsfield came by the surname of "Sphinx" from the way he would sit, with his knees crossed, his arms folded, absolutely motionless. But if a question were put he would spring up and with right elbow tight to his side play with his eyeglass and rattle off at railway speed whatever he had to say. A smile or a frown upon his face was the making of an epoch in parliamentary annals.—Tit-Bits.

She leaves four children to mourn their irreparable loss, two children and her husband having preceded her to the spirit world. She was a devoted and faithful wife, an indulgent and loving mother, a kind and pleasant neighbor and a consistent Christian.

She with her husband joined the Christian church more than thirty years ago. Three of her children followed the example of their parents and are earnest workers in their church. She was well and favorably known among a large circle of friends and will be greatly missed in the church and the community in which she lived for so long, but most of all will she be missed in the home where she was always so kind and considerate to all, and always had a pleasant welcome for each one. The sorrowing children and friends have the supreme sympathy of the whole community.

FAMED FOR QUALITY.

MICHIGAN PEACHES CARRY OFF THE PALM FOR FLAVOR.

Have Been Cheap and Very Plentiful This Season—Millions of Baskets Shipped to Chicago for Packing and Distribution.

A Luscious Fruit.

Every time Chicago sits down to breakfast in the peach season, says the Chronicle, the yield of half a hundred acres of Michigan peaches is consumed, and the country west, rolling up a proportionate average, helps to pay off that vast army of pickers, pack-

Thirty years about cover the history of the peach industry in Berrien County, for it was not until 1860 that orchards of any size were set out in the vicinity of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph. The pioneers soon had fruit-bearing land up to $1,000 an acre. The year 1868 marked the appearance of such diseases as "blotches" and "yellows" among the peaches, spreading until five years later not a peach orchard of any size was left in Berrien County. Orchards which had been worth fortunes were set back on a general produce-bearing basis of value. The peach industry was dead, and not until ten years ago did a revival come. The disease gradually lost its hold, and Berrien County is now the banner peach district of Michigan.

Naturally, the peach tree is a sloven.

given way before this scrutiny, and even if no State inspector were going the rounds of Michigan orchards the yellows would have little chance to spread, for no progressive farmer would let a suspected tree stand for an hour after it had been noticed.

The foundation of a peach orchard is the nursery, in which pits from the peach orchards of Tennessee are planted. At one year old these seedling shoots are taken up and set out in the orchards in squares of twenty feet, giving 108 trees to the acre. In the following spring they are ready for budding. Buds are taken from bearing trees which have demonstrated the quality of their fruit. A branch is cut from the tree, and from this branch a bit of bark is cut in the shape of a dagger's blade, carrying with it just one leaf bud. With a pointed knife a perpendicular slit is cut in the bark of the seedling, almost at the ground. This slit is about an inch long and at the top of it, at right angles, another cut is made through the bark, extending a quarter of an inch on each side of the perpendicular slit. Into this cross cut the point of the dagger-like piece of bark is thrust and pushed down ward until it is snugly housed by the loosened bark, leaving only the bud protruding. On each side of this bud the bark of the seedling is wrapped and in a few weeks the incisions have healed, leaving the bud growing.

The year following the budding process the pruner passes through the young orchard and cuts away the whole top of the seedling, just above the shoot from the bud, and the bud's growth is thinned to one straight shoot. At one year old this shoot will produce peaches. They are not allowed to grow, however, but are pulled off before the pits in the fruit begin to harden. The next year they are allowed to bear a few peaches, in the third year they bear a few more, and in the fourth year the orchard is paying profits to the grower. After this year nothing else is grown in the orchard, but from May 1 to Aug. 15, twice a week, the ground is stirred by a "weeder," which loosens the soil to ers, carters, vesselmen, teamsters, commission merchants and basket makers who, since early in July, have been part and parcel of the millions of the famous peach belt of the Wolverine State. From Berrien County north, a broad band ten miles in width along the shores of Lake Michigan is the favored fruit center, and all this territory, with its millions of acres, is devoted to supplying the Western markets with fruits and vegetables of various kinds, with peaches far in the lead as an edible, out of which many handsome fortunes have been made by intelligent growers. The present year has been a banner one for this interest. More peaches have been shipped than in any previous season, for several days of one week some 20,000 bushels arriving in Chicago regularly, notwithstanding the fact that the best varieties dropped from $5 to $1.75 per bushel, and that thousands of 1-5 bushel, and brought less than 9 cents baskets

Michigan peaches begin coming as early as the first week in July, and shipments continue until snow flies. Nearly all of them are sent by boat, and a morning scene in the Chicago peach docks is often enlivened by the arrival of a steamer carrying as high as 70,000 bushels of the fruit. The moment these arrive a hundred stout-armed men march in single file down a gangplank, and, threading the baskets in half-dozen, convey them to as many waiting cars. They are hurried to the great commission marts of the city, and the big steamer puffs its way back to St. Joseph for another load, to keep busy the odd 3,000 men who are engaged daily during the season about the various loading and unloading docks.

There is a profit in raising peaches, notwithstanding the price fluctuations of the season, and fruit growers in such favored localities as Benton Harbor,

It will grow out of shape in one season if left to itself. To correct this the grower goes over his orchard every spring, cutting off just half of every twig which grew the season before. In another respect the peach tree is very troublesome. It undertakes more than it can accomplish in fruit bearing. It overloads itself, and the first work of the grower is to thin his peaches. On an average it costs $17 an acre to do this work. No skill is needed for it, and the Michigan tramp has the reputation of doing the work. Provided with a step-ladder, he goes over every limb, flipping off the fruit, as nearly as possible leaving the peaches four inches apart on the twigs. This is done just before the pits begin to harden in the green fruit.

the depth of an inch or more. A man with one horse and this "weeder" cultivates twenty-five acres a day on an average. Between crops bonedust and potash are sown broadcast over the ground, the influences of which are manifest directly in the fruit, showing juiciness and color.

Economic Value of Birds.

The economic value of birds is untold. This fact might be placed beyond dispute if it were possible to prepare two tables—one showing how many wire worms it would take to destroy a mile of turnips, how many grubs to ravage the wheat harvests of a dozen farms, how many insects to strip the leafy blades of a forest bare, how many to spoil the fruits of wide orchards, and the other recording the fact that these very numbers of insects are eaten by a few humble birds in the course of the year. That the result would be conclusive evidence of the birds' value may be safely foretold by a glance at a few facts which have already been brought to bear upon the question.

In the spring, when there are clamorous young birds in the nest, the house sparrow returns every three or four minutes, each time bearing spoils in the shape of insect food. Calculated at its lowest possible value—that is, allowing only one insect to each journey—this thankless task represents tens of thousands of captured insects as the work of one pair of birds in one month. Swift fliers like the swallow that hawk for food in the air may rank higher. They slay hundreds of thousands.

Liberal Marriage Laws.

The marriage laws of the different States in this country are in general so liberal that to most persons it will be a surprise to learn that in quite a number of States the marriage of first cousins is forbidden. This is the case in Arizona, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Washington and Wyoming.

CHARLES F. CRISP DEAD.

Ex-Speaker of the House of Representatives Passes Away.

Charles F. Crisp, the ex-Speaker of the House of Representatives, died at Atlanta, Ga., Friday afternoon. Mr. Crisp had been an inmate of the sanitarium of Dr. Holmes for several weeks. His condition had been reported as very low, but no fatal conclusions to his illness had been expected so soon. When a rumor got abroad several days ago that he was sinking it was vigorously denied at the sanitarium, where it was given out that he was getting better. Mr. Crisp was the choice of the Democrats of Georgia to succeed Senator John B. Gordon in the United States Senate, and would have been chosen to that position by the Legislature at its approaching session had he lived.

Mr. Crisp had been suffering from malarial fever. The immediate cause of his death was heart failure. Mr. Crisp had been in intense pain all day. At about a quarter of 2 o'clock Mr. Crisp was seized with another attack. The watchers saw it and Judge Crisp's two daughters, Mrs. Fred Davenport and Miss Bertha Crisp, and his two sons, Charles F. Crisp Jr., and Fred Crisp were quickly summoned. When they entered the room Judge Crisp was still conscious. He gave them the look of recognition, breathed a few times and died.

Mr. Crisp's death, while apparently thus sudden, was not unexpected by the physicians who have been watching him. He had been declining for several years. His last illness, however, was occasioned by an attack of malarial fever, which he contracted at his home, Americus, a few weeks ago, but which itself yielded to treatment when he went to Atlanta. He was considered convalescent, and only last Sabbath had ridden out. But, when renewed health seemed within view, he was attacked by congestion of the lungs, which, added to the weakness of the lungs and heart, caused by two previous attacks of pleuro-pneumonia, resulted in his death.

Charles Frederick Crisp was born at Sheffield, England, Jan. 20, 1845. He was brought to the United States when a year old, and was educated at public schools of Savannah and Macon, Ga. He served in the Confederate army during the civil war, and at its close studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1866. He practiced at Ellaville, Ga. In 1872 he was appointed solicitor general of the Southwestern Judicial Circuit of Georgia, and in 1877 became judge of the Superior Court of the same judicial circuit. This position he retained until elected a representative in Congress in 1882. He served continuously in Congress until the expiration of the last term. He had been Speaker of the House.

The Baltimore baseball team will make a short tour of England. Arrangements will be made for a series of games with all the prominent baseball clubs of the British empire. Lange and Gleason will take the places of Brodie and Reitz. They will be billed in England as the Three-Times-Champions of America.

A most remarkable feat was recently performed by an athlete named Tommy Burns, of London. On a wager he was to dive from the top of London bridge, and then run to Yarmouth, a distance of 128 miles, inside twenty-four hours. He made the dive, but was immediately arrested by the police. He was released on bail, and started on his run. He won the wager by doing the journey in 23h. 40m. Burns has saved forty-three lives.

WHEAT IS BOOMING.

GOES UP FOUR CENTS IN CHICAGO ON MONDAY.

Based on Legitimate Demand, Traders See a Rampant Market Likely Until Christmas—Home and Foreign Markets Excited and America Happy

Biggest Day's Jump in Years.

Wheat made the greatest single day's advance in price Monday that it has in twenty years. It took a balloon and sailed to great heights. There was no parachute attached to that balloon either for a speedy descent. All day above the pit of the Chicago Board of Trade rang the cry: "Dollar wheat." It was echoed in Liverpool, in Paris, Antwerp and Berlin, over the impoverished fields of Russia and where the empty granaries of Argentine mock the sun.

Foreign bread makers and bread sellers were after American wheat. Since Skobloff stormed the mountain crags of Plevna, during the Turko-Russian war, European markets have never put forth such a demand for a Yankee's grain. The bound in prices was phenomenal.

The advances at the great foreign and home markets in the price over that of Saturday were:

At Antwerp .....	10 cents
At Paris .....	8 cents
At Liverpool .....	6 cents
At Berlin .....	3 1/2 cents
At New York .....	5 cents
At Chicago .....	4 cents

While at the closing of the market there was some falling off from these gains, it was not sufficient to afford the bears any satisfaction or comfort.

Twenty Years' Record Broken.

Twenty years have passed since the wheat market has seen any such activity. Britishers have been accustomed to wait for war times before expecting such market excitement as seen in Liverpool Monday. Their uniform cablegrams to Chicago agents were: "Wheat excited and 5d higher." On the continent the excitement was still greater. Paris and Antwerp for the tremendous bulge of Saturday in the Berlin market. Berlin, which set the pace Saturday, advanced 3 1/2 cents. On the Pacific coast the net gain for the day was but 5 cents per cental, although at one time it was 8 cents. New York's opening gain was 5 cents, and of this it retained 3 cents until the close.

December wheat in Chicago was within one-fourth of a cent of 80 cents at 11 o'clock Monday morning. This was the highwater mark of the day. Two years ago on Oct. 19 December wheat sold at closing at 60 3/4 cents. The closing price was 77 3/4, or 17 cents higher than two years ago. The biggest bear on the market could not take cheer out of that comparison, especially since the foreign demand continues strong and without a sign of letting up.

The advance was an increase in the posted figures show 500,000 bushels, making a grand total in sight of 55,000,000. Europe wanted wheat—wants it still—and that badly. America has the grain.

Unloading at Quick Profits.

The bulls, wise sometimes and sometimes not, thought the situation at opening warranted the unloading of part of their holdings. They wanted a profit at 79 cents. They got it, and then under foreign pressure bought back the grain they had sold at a higher figure than they had received for it. Law of supply and demand proved stronger than all speculative rules, and made many a wiseacre on the board wish for a few moments Monday that he was omniscient.

The gamut which December wheat ran Monday in the Chicago market was:

Opening, 78 1/2 cents, 79 1/2 cents, 79 3/4 cents; closing, 77 3/4 cents.

The hot haste of the bulls to realize quick profits had more to do with hammering the local price down than anything else. There was no weakening in the foreign demand. But as it was there was a net gain of 1 1/2 cents from Saturday's closing figures and no decline. A flood of buying orders from California and foreign markets caused an advance on the unofficial curb market in the afternoon of 1 cent over the closing price on the Board of Trade.

No one better explains the situation or makes it more plain why the eyes of the whole world are now turned to the wheat stores of America than John Hyde, expert special agent of the eleventh census, in his statement:

"It is worthy of note that in 1867 and 1868 the failure of crops in Great Britain, which the United States was unable to make good out of its own surplus, caused an advance in price of no less than 42 cents per bushel. Wheat during the last ninety days, owing to deficient harvests in other countries, has advanced from 64 to 78 cents per bushel."

Told in a Few Lines.

Harry M. Schneider, trading as L. H. Schneider's Sons, hardware, made an assignment at Washington, D. C. Assets, $56,091; liabilities, $39,357.

The First National Bank of Joseph, Wallawa County, Ore., was robbed of $2,000 by three men, one of whom is dead, another badly wounded, while the third is being pursued by a posse of citizens.

The greater part of the damage done by the cloudburst at Benson, Ariz., was in the town, the west end of which was completely washed away. The express office was lifted from its foundation. Seven persons are reported dead.

Consent has been given by the Chinese Government for the building of a branch of the Silesian Railway across North Manchuria with the pre-emption clause giving China the right to purchase this branch after thirty years.

The estimate of the total damage done by the storm in Washington, D. C., aggregate $433,500. The unroofing of so many houses caused a brisk demand for roofing tin and sent the price up. The stock of tin in the city soon became exhausted.

MORNING SCENE ON THE PEACH DOCKS IN CHICAGO.

where transportation facilities are superior, are exceedingly prosperous and satisfied. Here is located the largest peach farm in Michigan, and that means in the world. It is owned by Rolland Morrill, president of the Michigan State Horticultural Society, and he has made a fortune out of it. It is about five miles from Benton Harbor, and contains 300 acres, 100 acres of which are devoted exclusively to peaches, meaning a yearly yield of 50,000 bushels. Ten acres is devoted to a late variety, known as the Golden Drop, which has yielded $10,000 clear profit within five years, being, therefore, most appropriately named. Other great farms are being yearly opened, one of which, owned by the West Michigan Nursery Company, will contain 800 acres, and eclipse even the Morrill farm as soon as the trees begin to bear.

First of Berrien County peaches comes the "Lewis seedling," one of the most popular varieties. It is of medium size, red-coated and having white meat. The Crawford peach is another favorite, and is of a golden yellow; the "Stumps" peach, beautifully marked, with a white meat, is profitable, but of them all the "Elberta" peach is king. Just now it is on the market, large as an ordinary tea cup, blotched with brilliant red, and on the under side yellow as gold. It brings the top price of the market, the wholesaler in Chicago paying $1 for seventy-two picked peaches.

Peaches in Berrien County are nearer perfection than they have ever been, and to maintain this perfection orchards are watched for the first sign of deterioration. No tree that is unhealthy is allowed to cumber the ground. The dreaded yellows have

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, then laxatives or other remedies are not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, then one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

A Cougher's Coffers

may not be so full as he wishes, but if he is wise he will neglect his coffers awhile and attend to his cough. A man's coffers may be so secure that no one can take them away from him. But a little cough has taken many a man away from his coffers. The "slight cough" is somewhat like the small pebble that lies on the mountain side, and appears utterly insignificant. A fluttering bird, perhaps, starts the pebble rolling, and the rolling pebble begets an avalanche that buries a town. Many fatal diseases begin with a slight cough. But any cough, taken in time, can be cured by the use of

Can Leap Seventy Feet.

The champion jumper of the world lives in Borneo, which is one of the largest islands in the world.

This leaper can jump seventy feet when it is pressed hard, and it is no trick at all for him to go forty and fifty feet in a single bound. The name of the champion is "pouched jumper," and it is a member of the kangaroo family. It moves about much as the kangaroo does, but it can outjump it any day.

It lives on squirrels, birds and small animals, and is so quick in its movements and can jump so well that it has little trouble in getting all it wants to eat. When it is in hot pursuit of its prey it has been known to jump seventy feet on a level, and it is not at all unusual for it to make jumps of fifty feet.

Current Condensations.

Leon Valliant describes more than 300 species of fish, heretofore unknown to naturalists, as inhabiting the lakes of Borneo.

The mere cost of producing the sixty-four volumes of books containing the evidence given at the English labor commission was almost $200,000.

Toads and frogs carry a supply of water about with them in a sack provided for the purpose, and if by accident the supply becomes exhausted the animal dies.

Russian punishments comprise compulsory labor in the Siberian mines for life or for a term of years, compulsory labor in fortresses or in factories, the loss of rank, personal rights and privileges, and deportation to Siberia or elsewhere as colonists.

A French electrician, M. Trouve, catches fish by sinking in the water a net with an incandescent lamp attached. The curious fish collect around the light, when a pneumatic tire around the edge of the net is silently inflated and rises to the surface, entrapping them without frightening them and, hence, without destroying the spawn.

The French mode of conducting auctions is rather curious. In sales of importance, such as of land, houses, etc., the affair is placed in the hands of a notary, who, for the time being, becomes an auctioneer. The property, whatever be its nature, is first examined by competent judges, who fix upon it a price, considerably less than its value, but always sufficient to prevent any ruinous loss by a preconceived plan or combination of bidders. The property is then offered with the fixed valuation stated. The auctioneer is provided with a number of small wax tapers, each capable of burning about five minutes. As soon as a bid is made one of these tapers is placed in full view of all interested parties and lighted. If, before it expires, another bid is offered, it is immediately extinguished and a fresh taper placed in its stead, and so on until one flickers and dies out of itself, when the last bid becomes irrevocable. This simple plan prevents all contention among rival bidders and affords a reasonable time for reflection before making a higher offer than the one preceding. By this means, too, the auctioneer is prevented from exercising undue influence upon the bidders or hastily accepting the bid of a favorite.

The Oldest.

The oldest rose bush in the world is at Hildesheim, a small city in Hanover. Its roots are in the subsoil of a church in the cemetery, and although the primitive stem has been dead for a long time, the new stems have found their way through a crevice in the wall, and cover almost the whole church with their branches for a height and width of forty feet. According to tradition this rose tree was planted by Charlemagne in 833, and the church having been burnt down in the eleventh century, the root continued to grow in the subsoil. A book has been published recently giving the history of this venerable rose tree, which, casting tradition aside, is known to be at least three hundred years old, it having been mentioned in a book published in 1673, and in a poem bearing the date of 1650.

A Tenacious Clutch

Is that of dyspepsia. Few remedies do more than palliate this obstinate complaint. Try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, however, and you will find that it is conquerable, along with its symptoms, heartburn, flatulence, nervousness, and loss of flesh and vigor. Biliousness and constipation frequently accompany it. These, besides malarial, rheumatic and kidney complaints, are also subduable with the Bitters.

Who, Indeed?

At one of the later banquets of the coronation festivities at Moscow, in returning thanks for a toast proposed in his honor by General de Boisdeffre, the French envoy, General Dragomiroff, said: "We must love one another, for if we don't, who the devil in Europe will?"

Verified Her Husband's Story.

It was not necessary for the men in line at the bank to turn their heads in order to be informed that a good looking woman was approaching. The winsomely bland smile which flowed across the countenance of the clerk at the window conveyed the information swiftly and conclusively.

"Excuse me," she said, as she took her place at the head of the procession—a place which strong and brave men could have reached only by wading through gore—"I would like to ask you a question."

"Certainly."

"Are times really hard?"

"There isn't any use of trying to conceal it. In a good many branches of industry the depression is very serious."

"I'm ever so much obliged to you," she responded, and turned to go away.

"If you were worrying about any particular investment I might be able to give you some advice."

"No. It wasn't about anything special. I just wanted to satisfy myself that times are hard. I don't really wish to annoy my husband with my expenses, and I thought the best thing to do was to come and find out for certain whether times are hard or whether it is merely the same story that he has been telling me every year when the fall styles come in."—Washington Star.

SAPOLIO

The Churches.

Rev. Geo. R. Streeter, pastor of the M. E. church, Winamac, preached an able and eloquent sermon at the M. E. church, this city, last Sunday morning.

He selected his text from St. Matthew, 17 chap. 17 verse.

He gave a graphical and very interesting illustration relative to what wars have accomplished toward civilizing the world, and cited many instances of conquest of some great nations which had a happy effect toward bringing about great reforms in the world from a moral standpoint. He characterized Christ as a warrior, but the difference between Christ and other warriors; Christ used the sword of truth while others used the sword of steel. He spoke of Napoleon, Wellington, and other great conquerors, who made conquests in order to gain power, while Christ made conquests upon the morality line, which drew all the world to him and hence the large number of churches and religious societies which have for their sole aim the elevation of mankind. He said that what the sword was to the soldier the word of God was, and is to the christian, the latter being far the best weapon with which to conquer the world and lead it to Christ. He made a very appropriate allusion to the present campaign, and said that every four years the cry is to turn the "rascals" out of office and put better men in.

In closing he said that if there was any one thing he would impress upon the minds of his listeners it was "self-respect".

Taken as a whole, the sermon was replete with grand thoughts, and we bespeak for him a full house should he again favor this city with his presence.

Rev. Streeter is also editor of the Church News, a very interesting and well filled magazine, from the pens of the most scholarly divines in the Northern Indiana Conference. The price is very reasonable being but $.50 per year. All orders can be left with Rev. Howard.

Rev. Barber preached an excellent sermon upon "Repentance" Sunday evening at the Reformed church to a large audience. He proved conclusively that it was necessary to repent of sins before one could secure eternal life. Repentance was the chief command of Christ in his great teachings of truth to the world; and was the chief command of the the apostles who took up the work after Christ's death. The sermon was ably handled and reflected great credit upon this cultured divine who never says anything in the pulpit but what has wisdom and truth as the paramount object of his sermons, each one of which will elevate and instruct all who are fortunate enough to hear him.

The Growler.

Uncle Sam don't seem to have enough trouble on hand with this election, but he must go shake his fist under the nose of that old rooster over in Europe—I mean Turkey—and almost dare him to come out and fight. To a man in this neck of the woods it looks as though he might have waited at least 100 hours longer before he attempted to demonstrate his pugilistic ability.

Thank the Lord that in four days we shall have time to think of something besides Wall street and Lombard street and calamity howlers and corrupt syndicate and boy orators and persons owned by trusts and slave-drivers and barn rats and party wreckers and decoy ducks—and those other things which go to make an election up in these United States a thing glorious.

The fact that a "spoony" couple was arrested in Iowa recently will cause wide spread alarm. Ed Black and Margarite Wilson, of Sioux City it is alleged, were detected in the very act of "spooning," while sitting on the church and a cold, unfeeling policeman, who never experienced the pleasure of kissing a pretty girl on a church step, promptly arrested them. It is to be hoped that our marshal will not interpret it his duty to arrest "spoony" couples who are jeopardizing so many front gates.

For Recorder.

We have two candidates in this county who are seeking the office of Recorder. Both are excellent men, one being the present incumbent, Thos. Walker. The other gentleman is J. A. Yockey, one of the representative farmers of Polk township. He seeks the franchise of the people upon as grand a record as ever graced the life of any man in Marshall county. Starting out in life as a poor boy, by indomitable energy and perseverance he has attained the supreme confidence and respect of all who have the honor of his acquaintance. He has filled positions of trust, being elected trustee of his township where the democratic majority was over 80, and filled the same with great satisfaction to all interested. He was also assistant postmaster at Plymouth under Kendall for three years, and through attention to business and courteous treatment of all, won the hearts of the Plymouth citizens who have but the best wishes for his success. He is 42 years old, and has been a resident farmer of the county for the past 18 years. He attained his schooling by working mornings and evenings in Plymouth for his board. He is an active Christian worker in the Reformed church at Plymouth and is deeply interested in all Sabbath school work and everything pertaining to the elevation of mankind. Mr. Yockey is a man every inch of him, and although we cannot and will not persuade you to vote against any candidate, in order to favor him, we gladly give space to this short sketch, knowing he is worthy the support of all men.

Pipe Line.

The pipe line now being laid near Monterey is owned by the Cuddahy Bros. The line is a four inch one, and is for pumping crude oil for fuel. The line commences at Geneva Ohio, and runs to Kankakee, Ill. The owners have been offered $2,000,000 by the Standard Oil Co. and it is believed they will eventually own it.

There has been a camp of about 100 men near Ora, engaged in laying the pipe and digging the trenches. A few Sundays ago they wanted something to drink, and the saloons refusing to open doors they commenced to smash things pretty freely. The saloon keeper became frightened and telegraphed to Knox for assistance. But finally seeing that the men were bound to have something to drink, he opened up, and took in good many of the shining shekels. Some of the men did not go to work for some three or four days after pay day which was the Friday before. The camp broke up Saturday and moved to another part of the line.

The question has been frequently asked us what kind of a secretary of the treasury McKinley would appoint in case he is elected, would it be a man of the opinion of Foster or Manning? We are unable to state positively, but in our opinion he will appoint a man thoroughly capable of conducting the office in a manner that will be perfectly satisfactory to the unprejudiced masses of the citizens of these United States. We also believe that in case of his election no one will be tempered with power to dictate how McKinley shall conduct his office. As the secretary of the treasury is a member of the cabinet, he will be surrounded with a phalanx of the brainiest men of this nation, who will positively have to watch how they conduct business as the ever watchful eye of the people will be upon them, and they well know that four years hence, unless active work is done to relieve the people, their names will be "Dennis." This will be the result in the event of the election of either party.
