IMPROVEMENTS AT ASSEMBLY

Pleasure and Profit Combined in This Year's Session.

The directors of the reorganized Maxinkuckee Assembly met at the office of the secretary, Mr. Huston, in Indianapolis, last week. We understand many improvements will be undertaken in the Assembly park this year, and that the new management will show a manifest improvement over the old methods of operation.

Many Indianapolis citizens are turning their eyes to Maxinkuckee Assembly as presenting the finest opportunity for an agreeable outing and the combined pleasure and profit of an Assembly. In a few days surveyors will come to Culver to plat additional lots for cottages on the association's grounds. The already beautiful park is to have winding walks, and with a few touches of a skilled landscape gardener will more truly than ever be a beauty spot. Inquiries are already being made for cottage sites.

The six Philippine youths who are being educated in the Mannel Training High School of Indianapolis will very likely come to Maxinkuckee for their outing. The management has presented the claims to the officials and in all probability our citizens will have an opportunity to get acquainted with these bright-eyed, intelligent little men, who are already loyal sons of Uncle Sam. Their presence at the assembly will be quite a novelty.

When General Manager Hill read the detailed program for this season to the directors they declared with one voice that it was twice as great as anything ever prepared for the Assembly. It is the opinion of experts that no assembly in the west excels Maxinkuckee in the novelty and strength of the attractions offered.

Within the last week Manager Hill has secured the Indianapolis Lyric Orchestra of fourteen pieces for a lengthy engagement. This is the third orchestra to be contracted and those attending the Assembly can be assured of good music every day.

District Convention at Argos.

The South Bend District Epworth League will hold its 13th annual convention at Argos June 13-14. On the afternoon of the first day Rev. M. H. Appleby will give "A Study of the Welsh Pentecost" in the evening Rev. Chestnut W. Smith, formerly of Mishawaka, and Rev. Claud C. Travis, of South Bend, will participate in a symposium, "Living to Make Our Church a Power in the Land."

On the forenoon of the second day Miss Elizabeth Williams, of New Carlisle; Miss Ada Campbell, of South Bend, and S. U. Finauch, of North Liberty, will be on the program.

In the afternoon Rev. Homer P. Ivey, of Walkerton, and Grace V. Showalter, of South Bend, will have a leading part, and at night Rev. J. A. Maxwell, D. D., will lead the devotional service.

Officer Exonerated.

Ex County Commissioner Peter A. Follmar's friends will be relieved to know that the indictment brought against him by the grand jury has been found to be defective, and the case quashed. This was especially serious, because if he had been found guilty as charged, the only penalty the court could have imposed, under law, would be imprisonment in the penitentiary. Mr. Follmar was charged with taking a contract for building a gravel road for the county, while he was at the same time a county commissioner. This is particularly forbidden by law with the severe penalty as above. Mr. Follmar did take the contract unlawfully, but did a good job, gave the county full value for its money, and while he was technically guilty, he meant no harm, and we are told did not understand the law in that matter.—Winamac Republican.

Mr. Follmar is a prominent citizen of Monterey.

New School Building Assured.

We will present in the near future the plans and give a concise view of the new school house that is to be built this summer. It begins to look as if the dreams of a long suffering people are to become material matter, and the much discussed school house, a reality. The money is in sight and the contractors on the ground. It is the duty of every citizen to give all the aid and encouragement to the school board, possible. Lets lay aside all differences of opinion as to location, and work together in harmony for a new school house.

Letter From Oklahoma.

The following letter to Mr. G. W. Rettinghouse from a sister at Oklahoma City, will no doubt interest many of our readers:

"Your letter of the 15th found us well. We are still well pleased with our new home and would not return to Indiana to live unless circumstances should so shape themselves to compel me to return. You write your apple and peach trees are in bloom, we have apples as large as hulled walnuts and cherries are turning red to ripen. Strawberries have been on the market for a month and we are using new potatoes while garden truck is going to waste. We took a drive out in the country last Sunday and saw the wheat fields bending with the ripening grain soon ready to cut, one field of 300 acres as thick as it could stand and was grand to behold, the flowers along the road surpass description, even the weeds blooming with beauty. We are going down to Chocoma, a place about 18 miles to look at a farm of 160 acres which we can trade our city property for, it being worth about $4,000. We have twenty-five lots which means about five acres in the suburbs of the city and built a house on it in which we live. The population of the city is about 30,000 and houses rent from $10 to $35 a month. Land can be purchased in the cyclone district at four dollars an acre. That terrible storm that destroyed the city of Snyder on May 9th came in sixty-five miles of this city and a very strong wind blowing here from the tornado which awakened me by its terrible roar and I arose and dressed myself and listened to the roar of the wind and sometimes thought the house would be blown away. Bertha and her husband were sound asleep and I did not awake them for I thought if we had to go they might as well go in their sleep. One of my neighbors whose father, mother and brothers and sisters lived at Snyder were killed. There were thirty-five ladies came here in a box car for burial from Snyder.

SUSAN REED,
Oklahoma City, Oklahoma."

Notice.

There will be an election of three trustees for the Emmanuel church of Culver, Ind., June 21, 1905, at 8 p. m. at above named church. A good attendance of the male members of the church is desired.

NEWS FROM THE COUNTY SEAT

A Record of Events as Observed by Our Correspondent.

The council is disposed to deal promptly with street paving. Center street will be paved with brick, from Laporte street north to Harrison street. This street is nearly all a residence street and the improvement will make it a popular driving-way. The paving will be twenty feet wide and will give room for wide grass plats between the curbing and the sidewalk. Jefferson street, that bounds the court-house square on the south will be paved in like manner from Michigan street to the west side of the Lake Erie tracks. The council had passed a resolution to pave Garro street, which was more needed than Jefferson street, but Mr. Kellison, who with the Logan brothers, own a square each of non-valuable vacant ground, obtained a majority remonstrance and that improvement was given up for the present. The work would have imposed a heavy burden on these two property owners. Bids for the work have been advertised and it will begin as soon as possible.

The new barrel factory, secured to Plymouth by a bonus of $2000, will soon be in active operation in the old Clizbe plant in the north part of town. E. W. League and his son James, have been here for two weeks remodeling the buildings to suit their business. They are now at work preparing the dry kiln, which is the first necessity in their business. This is 84 feet in length and is being made in part of the foundry room. The first story of the brick building will be used for manufacturing purposes and the second story will be used for storing the finished product. The plant is still running in Chicago and will continue until the new plant is ready for the machinery, so that as little time may be lost as possible. It will be a month or more before the plant will be in operation here. The office will remain in Chicago during this year. E. W. League, the son of the firm, has moved here.

Miss Bessie Medbourn was in Plymouth last Saturday.
Miss Lottie Hawkins is employed at Slattery's drug store.
Charles Bush moved into Geo. Davis' new house Wednesday.
Miss Louisa Working visited at Plymouth a few days last week.
Dr. Arthur Baker, of Logansport, spent Sunday with relatives in Culver.

Frank Coleman, of Akron, Ohio, is visiting with Frank Garn near Burr Oak.

Mrs. Koshland moved into Geo. Davis' house vacated by Claud Mikesell.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barber, of Payne, O., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hand.

FOR SALE OR RENT—A good Singer sewing machine. Call on Mrs. Kate Edwards.

Al Leak returned to Culver, Friday. He may remain here during the Lake season.

Fishing has been exceptionally good and many large strings of fine fish have been caught.

This promises to be an exceptionally good season for lake trade. Every cottage will be occupied.

Ezra Hawkins has purchased of Wm. Clark, the lot lying between the Evangelical church and the grist mill.

Arley Cromley, who has been working in Logansport, came home last week and will clerk at Stahl and Co's grocery this summer.

James Thayer, wife and son Walter, W. H. Young and wife, of Plymouth, and Arthur Long, of Gray's Lake, Ill., spent Friday at the lake.

Misses Olive Hayes, Esta Cromley, Clista Easterday and Bessie Medbourn, Messrs. Garland Bogardus, Ray Poor, Clark Ferrier and Park Garn drove to Kewanna Sunday and spent the day with Miss Elsie Moore.

Mr. E. A. Forbes, of the Forbes Seed Store of Plymouth, transacted business at the Academy Friday. He had the contract for furnishing the seeds, plants and flowers for the Academy and just completed the work of making delivery.

Services Sunday at the Evangelical church will be as follows: Sunday-school at 10 a. m.; Y. P. A. at 7 p. m.; Preaching at 8 p. m. Children's Day exercises will be held Sunday, June 18, at 8 p. m. You are cordially invited to attend these services. C. McConnehey, pastor.

Reverend Streeter and Elder Maxwell may be expert fishermen but have something to learn in rowing a boat. They started out Saturday evening and in launching the boat upset it, and received a drenching. They had the bravery however to try again and succeeded in getting out on the lake but we have not heard how many fish they caught.

The Women's Session of the Marshall Co. Farmers' Institute, to be held Friday June 23 at the Court Room, will be an exceptionally interesting one. Prof. Latta, president of the College of Agriculture of the Purdue University, and a state worker, Miss M. Mathes, of Normal Ill., will be present and deliver some very practical lectures. Farmers, come and bring your families. Programs later.

Mr. Don Phillips spent Sunday in Kewanna.

Mrs. Frank Seltzer was in Plymouth Monday.

John Diport of Mishawaka was in town Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cook were here on business Saturday.

Mr. Davis, of the firm Howard & Davis, was in town for a few days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Jameson, of South Bend, visited George Davis and family Tuesday.

The Culver Novelty Company's shop is getting to be a noted hospital for crippled automobiles.

Wm. Matthew and his father John Matthew, of Plymouth, transacted business here Tuesday.

There are more people seeking rest and pleasure so early in the season than during any past year.

Messrs. Alvin Miser and Kerkenderfer, of River Park, spent a few days of last week here fishing. Mr. Miser is a cousin of Mrs. Geo. Davis.

Wm. G. Zechiel is building one of the best farm dwellings there is southwest of Culver. Mr. Zechiel is not building for style but for comfort and convenience.

The remaining notes and accounts due the Cook Brothers Hardware firm will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder. Due notice will be given of date of sale.

Clyde Souders left Monday for Denver, Colorado. He will spend the summer in the mountains of Colorado in the pursuit of better health. Our best wishes are with him.

Medbourn and Dillion are repairing the elevator and putting it in the best condition possible. If indications do no fail, we will have a magnificent crop of wheat, the bulk of which should be marketed here.

A Lawn Social will be given by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church, on Nathaniel Gandy's lawn, Thursday evening. Ice cream, strawberries and cake will be served. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Congressman Brick has appointed Creed H. Boncher, of New Carlisle, candidate to the Naval Academy at Annapolis; Chester C. Hand Argos, first alternate; Jay Calvert, South Bend, second alternate and Russel R. Heim, Plymouth, third alternate. The candidate must appear at Annapolis the third Tuesday in June for final mental and physical examination.

Lester W. Hills, of Fort Wayne, a reformed drunkard, will address the young people at Christian Endeavor in the Reformed church on Saturday evening. He will also speak to the children at Sunday-school. Preaching service at 11 a. m. by the pastor, subject "The offices of the Holy Spirit." Mr. Hills will give us one of his rare talks Sunday evening at 7:30. Be sure to hear him.

Herbert Hanley and wife of Winthrop, Cal., are here this week the guests of his parents, J. M. Hanley and wife. They are on their wedding trip, having been married only two weeks ago. Mr. Hanley is a mining expert. J. M. Hanley, by the way, returned home Monday from his sojourn at Mudlavia, and is much improved. —Pulaski County Democrat. The Hanleys visited the lake Thursday.

AROUND THE LAKE'S SHORES

Personal Notes of Summer Visitors at Lake Maxinkuckee.

Mrs. Maud Eddy spent Monday in Indianapolis on business.

W. H. Snyder, of Logansport, spent Sunday with his family at the lake.

W. H. Fulton and family opened Wapauca Hall for the summer, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Odell of Indianapolis are occupying the Stechan cottage this season.

Miss Mina Merrill, of Indianapolis, is a guest of Mrs. Hurvey Bates at Mananna. Miss Merrill is a daughter of the late Samuel Merrill, the first treasurer of the state of Indiana and also the first railroad president in the state. Mr. Merrill was state treasurer when the capital was moved from Corydon to Indianapolis, bringing the treasury, his family and household goods of two wagon loads.

Remarkable Menagerie.

Paula Edwards recently received the following letter, which if evidently the work of some polite lunatic:

"Dear Miss Edwards: Knowing you to be interested in anything novel in theatrical entertainment, I should like to make an appointment to show you my collection of trained germs. They have the well known flea circus skinned to death. The star of the company is a typhoid fever bacillus, named Mike, who can stand on all seven hands and whistle 'Home Sweet Home' through his teeth. I have also two young measles microbes who do a sister act and a family of diphtheria bacilli, the youngest of which can tuck his limbs under his neck and sit on both ears at once. The performance can be given on a stage two inches square. Kindly let me know when and where you will see me."—Minneapolis Times.

Grand Lodge Meeting B. P. O. Elks Buffalo, N. Y. July 11th to 13th. Low round trip rates via Nickel Plate Road, July 8-9-10. Long limit and stopover privilege at Chautauqua Lake. Call on Agent or address C. A. Asterlin, T. P. A., Ft. Wayne Ind. 7-8

FORTUNES DISAPPEAR ON COTTON EXCHANGE

Telegrapher's Error Causes Prices to Advance on New Orleans Board, and Great Losses Are Recorded.

New Orleans, La., special: Because of a telegraphic error bulls were slaughtered and fortunes were swept away at the Cotton exchange Friday. Prices fell forty points from the highest of the day, or $2 a bale, after the government report had been read. The government estimate of reduction in acreage was 11.4 per cent, or 2.83 per cent less than the eleven average estimates given before. It was 7.03 per cent less than the reduction estimate of the Southern Cotton association, which was 18.43.

The government estimate of crop conditions was 77.2. The Western Union Telegraph company announced this estimate at 75.2. The announcement was posted. Prices shot up from 8.21c to 8.50c for July, or twenty-six points, at one purchase. Then the telegraph company announced an error and the correct conditions were posted as 77.2. Prices then dropped to 8.17c, or thirty-three points.

A number of suits may follow because of this error in so critical a time. The gallery of the exchange was filled with women, members of the families of the bulls and members of the families of the bears. There was no standing room left on the floor of the exchange. The ring was crowded to the last inch. The electric fans buzzed and the linen suits turned moist.

Secretary Hester has made an issue of the blunder in the receiving of the government figures. An old-time operator made the mistake. He defines his mistake by asserting that the pandemonium made it impossible to catch the figures.

President Brittin called the exchange to order in the midst of the excitement and in the calm said that the error in sending the wrong figures by the telegraph company was an unmitigated crime. "As president of this exchange," he said, "I assure you I and the directors will do all we can to ferret out and punish the perpetrators."

One case was reported wherein an operator lost $15,000 in exactly twenty-five seconds because of the error.

STEEL POOL IS NEAR COLLAPSE

Members Will Discuss Situation at a Meeting in New York.

Pittsburg, Pa., dispatch: Authorities here assert that the steel billet pool is on the verge of collapse. The members have called a meeting to be held in New York next Wednesday, for the purpose of canvassing the situation. Since the rail pool dissolved all the steel pools have been threatened. As a result consumers are holding back orders, believing prices will come down. One of the members admitted that one of the billet-making concerns had been offered an attractive order for delivery during the last six months of the year at a price below the pool figure and the billet producer is anxious to book the order, as there have been no orders placed for the second half of the year.

TRAIN ROBBER ADMITS CRIME

Clarence Young Says He Alone Held Up North Coast Limited.

Butte, Mont., dispatch: A special from Phillipsburg, Mont., says the train robber who held up the North Coast Limited on the Northern Pacific at Bearmouth confessed the crime. He says he alone was implicated. His name is Clarence B. Young and he has been a wood chopper in the camps of Missoula and Ravalli companies for years. He obtained powder while acting as foreman of men employed on an irrigation ditch near Twin Falls, Idaho, holding out a stick at a time. Young says he held up the train more in spirit of adventure, as he had plenty of money.

ST. LOUIS BANK ASKS STATE AID

Missouri Secretary of State Rejects Plan of People's President.

St. Louis, Mo., special: E. G. Lewis, president of the People's United States bank, against which a fraud order has been recommended by postoffice officials, proposed to Secretary of State Swanger that a cashier be named by Mr. Swanger to take charge of the affairs of the bank. The proposition was rejected by Mr. Swanger. The only thing definitely agreed upon was that Attorney General Hadley should be called into the case.

Poison in Prisoners' Food.

Raleigh, N. C., special: State Chemist Burney has found arsenic in the remnants of a cabbage dinner which was given to the prisoners in the state prison, and which made over 100 of them ill. The suspicion points strongly to one of the convicts as having poisoned the food.

Hotel Clerk Kills Himself.

St. Louis, Mo., dispatch: Brooding over his ill health and lack of funds, W. H. Robinson, clerk of the Lincoln hotel, shot himself through the head.

President of Woman's College.

Ann Arbor, Mich., special: Dr. Jane Scherzer has been elected president of Oxford (O.) College for Women, to succeed Ruth Robinson, resigned.

Jealous Man Attacks Wife.

Piqua, Ohio, special: Simon Arrington cut his wife's throat while she was lying in bed. Jealousy was the cause. The man was arrested.

CORN GROWTH IS VERY SLOW

Lack of Germination, Owing to Cool Weather, Forces Replanting.

RUST APPEARS IN SIX STATES

Blackheads Have Made Their Appearance in Illinois Wheat Fields, Threatening to Play Havoc With the Winter Variety Yield.

Washington dispatch: The following is the general summary of the weekly crop report of the weather bureau:

During the week ended May 29 most of the country experienced unfavorable temperature. Rains interfered with farm work in portions of the South Atlantic and East Gulf states, Tennessee and over an area extending from central Texas northward to South Dakota, and in portions of the lake region. At the close of the week rain was much needed in New England and the Middle Atlantic states, and sunshine and warmth in the South Atlantic and East Gulf states and the Missouri valley.

Cold Weather Retards Crops.

Corn planting is largely finished, except in the lake region, Ohio valley and northern portion of the Middle Atlantic states. Throughout the principal corn states germination and growth of corn have been very slow, owing to cool weather, and more than the usual amount of replanting will be necessary. In the central gulf states part of the crop has been laid by. In this region corn has suffered considerably from overflows. In northern Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Tennessee corn is much in need of cultivation.

Winter wheat has suffered slight deterioration in portions of the central and western districts of the winter wheat belt, but it continues promising in the eastern districts, an improvement being reported from Ohio.

Rust and Blackheads.

Reports of injury from rust continue from Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas, and rust and blackheads are appearing in Illinois. Generally the reports indicate that wheat is heading low. In California the crop is maturing rapidly and an average yield is indicated. In Oregon and Washington growth has been rapid, too rank growth being reported from Oregon, where it is in danger of lodging.

Although freezing temperatures occurred in the northern portion of the spring wheat region, spring wheat is reported as in good condition in Minnesota, and while frost in North Dakota proved injurious, the crop in that state has not been seriously damaged. Over the southern portion of the spring wheat region the crop has made more favorable progress, although growth has been slow. On the north Pacific coast spring wheat is much improved in Washington, but in Oregon it has advanced slowly.

Oat Promise Generally Good.

In the Dakotas, Minnesota and Nebraska oats have made slow growth, and the crop has suffered deterioration in Texas and portions of the Middle Atlantic states, but elsewhere and in principal producing states the outlook continues very promising.

Throughout nearly the whole of the cotton belt cotton is much in need of cultivation, and reports of abandoned fields are received from the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama and Louisiana. Good stands are generally reported, but much planting remains to be done in northern Texas, and planting is unfinished in Arkansas. In southern Texas and in portions of the central and eastern districts the situation is improved, and the crop is doing well in localities. Squares are now forming in the southern portions of the central and eastern districts. Boll weevils are increasing in Texas. The general outlook for a good crop of hay continues promising.

BANK MESSENGER IS ROBBED

Four Men Secure an Empty Bag for Their Trouble.

New York dispatch: Four daring robbers held up Charles Keuhn, a messenger of the Yorkville bank of this city, in a crowded business section at Houston and Hudson streets, choked him and robbed him of an empty bag. Keuhn was on his way to other banks from which he usually returned with the bag filled with thousands of dollars in gold and notes. Three of the robbers escaped. The fourth, an ex-convict named Hogan, who only a short time ago finished a 12-year sentence for highway robbery, was pursued and captured by a detective after he had attempted to shoot his pursuer.

AMERICANS ARE SENT TO PRISON

Capture of Hunters by Russians on High Seas Is Reported.

Victoria, B. C., special: A letter has been received from Habarovsk telling of the imprisonment of a sealer from Victoria and two American hunters, in common with a score of Japanese who were captured by Russians on the Japanese schooner Koyochi in Okhotsk sea last August. Each was sentenced to one year and four months imprisonment for hunting fur seals, though captured on the high sea. The sentences date from Feb. 8 and will be served at Habarovsk.

NORWEGIANS PREPARE FOR SEPARATE STATE

Country Is Determined to Have Consular System Apart From That of Sweden and Republic May Result.

Christiania, capital, Premier Michelsen at Friday's session of the storting gave the members an account of the occurrences at the council of state over which King Oscar presided at Stockholm May 27, when the king vetoed the measure providing for separate consular systems for Sweden and Norway. The statement, however, was merely a repetition of the facts already known and the matter was referred to the special committee which is dealing with the question. In this connection it is said Norway is preparing for the eventuality of war. Her leading officials scoff at the idea that she will be gobbled up by some great power if she breaks the union with Sweden.

Norway is determined to have her own separate consular system, come what may. It is even intimated that the government is prepared for independence in all things. A new kingdom may be formed, but there are some who say a new republic is more likely to be Norway's fate.

One thing is certain, that the government has taken precaution to repulse any attack that may be made by land or sea. Red flags have been placed in the hands of the rectors of churches to be displayed in the event of danger. This signal will be emphasized by the ringing of church bells.

Norway's field artillery is among the best in the world. The navy is weak in big ships, but the inlet can be easily defended by mines. The entrances by sea to Christiania, Christiansand, Bergen and Trondhjem are powerfully fortified.

It is rumored that the premier has secured two new battleships. All the forts in the kingdom are fully manned and target practice is being carried on with enormous howitzers.

MINE OWNERS BATTLE IN PITTSBURG HOTEL

Fire Department Is Called Upon to Arrest Four Men Who Quarrel Over Transfer of Property.

Pittsburg, Pa., dispatch: Arthur Elliott of the Empire Trust company New York; John D. Morgan of Alaska and Japan, one of the largest holders of tin properties in this country; John F. Saunders of Idaho, a mine owner and prospector; and Joseph H. Richl, a mining engineer of this city, engaged in a desperate fight in a room at the Griswold hotel. At the point of a revolver Saunders demanded that Elliott sign a paper in a mining deal. When he refused to do so the fight started. Elliott was knocked down several times, his face badly bruised and the furniture of the room smashed. The hotel clerk summoned an officer, but the door of the room was locked. A hook and ladder company was then called. It entered through the windows and arrested the four men.

According to the story told Magistrate Moke at the central station, Morgan and Saunders are associated together. The former owns large tin properties in Alaska and sold a large parcel of this property to Richl. Subsequently a suit was filed by Morgan and M. Harper of New York to recover $350,000 from Morgan and Saunders as commission for the sale of the property to Richl. This suit is now pending in this city and it is claimed by Morgan that Elliott is an agent for Harper and interested with him in bringing the suit. When the four men met in Richl's room Morgan accused Elliott of being implicated with Harper in the suit, which Elliott denied. A demand was then made that he sign a document to that effect.

Magistrate Moke fined Elliott, Morgan and Richl $1 each, and Saunders $5.

FIND CASH AND BONDS IN SAND

Money and Securities Stolen in Illinois Hidden in Indiana.

Bedford, Ind., special: Workmen engaged in unloading a carload of sand found hidden in it several bundles of papers, which proved to be bonds and securities valued at $300,000. They were identified as the property of the Wilmington (Ill.) bank, which was robbed of the papers and $2,500 cash on May 9. The papers have been returned to the bank.

INDICTS THE ZEIGLER COMPANY

Illinois Grand Jury Decides Mining Laws Have Been Violated.

Springfield, Ill., dispatch: As result of a ten days' investigation into alleged violation of the mining laws of Illinois, a Franklin county grand jury, in session at Benton, has returned four indictments against the Zeigler Coal company, whose mine was the scene a short time ago of an explosion that cost the lives of a half hundred miners.

Babe Eats Strychnine Tablets.

Hammond, Ind., dispatch: Frank Kramer, the 3-year-old son of a prominent Hobart business man, climbed upon the desk in his father's study and found strychnine tablets. The child thinking the pellets were candy, ate them and died.

President's Southern Trip.

Washington, dispatch: It is officially announced that the president's southern trip will begin Oct. 17 and that it will occupy twelve days. The extra session of congress will, therefore, not be called for Oct. 16 as was expected.

GOOD WEATHER FAVORS TRADE

Labor Troubles Cause Investors to Be Wary of New Enterprises.

ACTIVITY IN MANUFACTURING

Well-Sustained Demand for the Output of the Factories Adds Steadiness to Prices—Prospects for Crops Are Encouraging.

Chicago dispatch: The weekly review of Chicago trade published by R. G. Dun & Co. says:

"Business was favorably influenced by more reasonable weather and the distribution of commodities expanded, reflecting a sustained high volume of consumption. The labor troubles continue a cause of disquiet and hinder investment in new enterprises, but other developments have added to confidence in the commercial outlook.

"Manufacturing remains very active in leading lines, and has gathered further strength from the well-maintained demand for future output and steadiness in prices. The wholesale branches found buying better divided in staple needs for both city and interior, the movement being satisfactory for this period in dry goods, clothing, footwear and food products and better than a year ago in sporting goods, automobiles and carriages. Local retail trade made progress, and stock of light-weight apparel were materially reduced.

Farm Work Is Advanced.

"Reports from the farming sections show spring work almost ended, crop prospects advancing, and the demand gaining for necessities and improvement material. Mercantile defaults are seen to be comparatively few, less complaint is heard as to collections generally and money remains ample for ordinary purposes.

"The metal and wood industries exhibit no falling off in the production of finished materials, and prices for northern iron are steadier in anticipation of early revival in the demand. Shipments of mill and furnace product are of record-breaking tonnage. Factory work presents more activity, particularly in farm implements, hardware, special machinery and electric supplies.

"Building material of all kinds remains in widespread request, and receipts of lumber were 46,079,000 feet, against 32,507,000 feet a year ago. "The markets for hides and leather were fair in volume. Shoe factories obtained additional orders for fall goods, and working forces were increased.

Railroad Earnings.

"Earnings of western railroads again exceeded those of the corresponding week last year, testifying to sustained expansion in the movement of freight. The marketing of grain was 17 per cent over that of a year ago, and the shipments increased 5.6 per cent. Forwarding was heavy in provisions, corn and oats, but slightly lessened in wheat, hides and live stock.

"Board of trade operations largely centered in the winding up of the May options in the two prominent cereals. Cash dealings were limited owing to the high prices which prevailed, and growers secured their profits. Export demand was poor in all the breadstuffs, current quotations being a discouragement. Grain receipts, 3,546,186 bushels, compared with 3,063,138 bushels a year ago, and the shipments were 2,620,115 bushels, against 2,479,304 bushels.

"Compared with the closings of a week ago values advanced in oats 1 1/2 cents a bushel, in wheat 1 cent, ribs 2 1/2 cents, pork 1 1/2 cents and lard 15 cents, and declined in corn 10 cents, cattle 5 cents, sheep 10 cents and hogs 15 cents.

"Failures reported in the Chicago district number thirteen, against twenty-six last week and twenty-three a year ago."

WOMAN GETS ANOTHER CHANCE

Supreme Court Justice to Hear Plea for Mrs. Rogers.

Montpelier, Vt., dispatch: Chief Justice Rowell of the state supreme court refused to grant a writ of error in the case of Mrs. Mary M. Rogers, condemned to death for the murder of her husband. Gov. Bell, however, announced that he would grant the woman another reprieve for a short time in order that her attorneys might have an opportunity to bring the matter before one of the justices of the United States supreme court. Justice Rowell declared that no federal question was involved.

Trouble for Coal Miners.

Victoria, B. C., special: John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, is said to be coming to Nanaimo in connection with the trouble which has arisen in the mines owing to the enforcement of the new legislation on curtailing the eight-hour law.

Buy Stock Transfer Stamps.

New York, dispatch: Brokers have begun to lay in a supply of the new stock transfer stamps, which will have to be fixed to all sales. Brokerage houses often sell 10,000 to 20,000 shares of stock for a customer, which will require 100 or 200 of the 32 stamps.

Health
Calumet makes light, digestible wholesome food.

Economy
Only one heaping teaspoonful is needed for one quart of flour.

Every housekeeper should know that if they will buy Defiance Cold Water Starch for laundry use they will save not only time, because it never sticks to the iron, but because each package contains 16 oz.—one full pound—while all other Cold Water Starches are put up in 4-pound packages, and the price is the same, 10 cents. Then again because Defiance Starch is free from all injurious chemicals. If your grocer tries to sell you a 12-oz. package it is because he has a stock on hand which he wishes to dispose of before he puts in Defiance. He knows that Defiance Starch has printed on every package in large letters and figures "16 oz." Demand Defiance and save much time and money and the annoyance of the iron sticking. Defiance never sticks.

Just Discrimination in Railway Rates.

All railroad men qualified to speak on the subject in a responsible way are likely to agree with President Samuel Spencer of the Southern Railway when he says: "There is no division of opinion as to the desirability of stopping all secret or unjustly discriminatory devices and practices of whatever character."

Mr. Spencer, in speaking of "unjustly discriminatory" rates and devices, makes a distinction which is at once apparent to common sense. There may be discrimination in freight rates which is just, reasonable and imperatively required by the complex commercial and geographical conditions with which expert rate makers have to deal. To abolish such open and honest discrimination might paralyze the industries of cities, states and whole sections of our national territory.

This distinction between just and unjust discrimination is clearly recognized in the conclusions of the International Railway Congress, published yesterday:

"Tariffs should be based on commercial principles, taking into account the special conditions which bear upon the commercial value of the services rendered. With the reservation that rates shall be charged without arbitrary discrimination to all shippers alike under like conditions, the making of rates should be as far as possible have all the elasticity necessary to permit the development of the traffic and to produce the greatest results to the public and to the railroads themselves."

The present proposal is, as Mr. Walker D. Hines of Louisville showed in his remarkable testimony the other day before the Senate Committee at Washington, to crystallize flexible and justly discriminatory rates into fixed government rates which cannot be changed except by the intervention of some government tribunal, and by this very process to increase "the temptation to depart from the published rate and the lawful rate in order to meet some overpowering and urgent commercial condition."—New York Sun.

"The Flower of Destiny," by William Dana Orcutt, is the love story of Napoleon III. and Eugenie, hero woven into a dramatic romance. Interest in this all-absorbing love affair seems to never lag. Mile. de Montijo is a most fascinating heroine and the love affair leading up to the crown of violets has many idyllic qualities. The book is written in a most charming manner, and is an ideal love tale. The illustrations and marginal decorations make it a work of high artistic merit. (A. C. McClurg & Co.)

The July issue of World's Work will be their annual "Uplift" number. Their readers will remember that once a year they turn from all the depressing things which are met with daily in regular course and dwell upon the side which is most encouraging. The number will tell of the really big things which are being done in the way of spiritual and mental uplift throughout the whole country.

When You Buy Starch buy Defiance and get the best, 16 oz. for 10 cents. Once used, always used.

CHAPTER XIX—Continued.

"I do not know," she said, and shook her head. "I am sorry if Martin annoys you, sir; he is restless today—I cannot quiet him," she added. "Poor devil!" I ejaculated, as holding my heavy head tightly between my hands I was able to follow what he was reciting.

"Oh, God! Oh, God!" "How weary, stale and unprofitable"—"Get thee to a nunnery"—"Alas, poor Yorick!"—"He poisons him in the garden." "Poor devil!" I repeated; "a mad Hamlet truly."

Turning to Alice I said courteously: "I see in some way unaccountable to me I have intruded upon your hospitality—I am waiting to know why?"

"I will tell you if you promise to talk no more, only listen," she added. I assured her of my willingness to listen, and she began:

"It is now going on the fifth day since Martin and I found you all unconscious—dead, I thought—but I will begin at the beginning. You see, Martin and I were coming into London—I know, sir, it is risky—but I did so long to see the town before I left it never to return, for you must know we are on our way to Bristol to sail for America. I thought I could easily stay hidden here for a few days."

"You mean to say that you will burden yourself with a daft person in a new land?" I found myself asking. "What else can I do, sir?" she queried; "I could not leave him here alone—he has no one else in the world save me—it would be cruel to leave him alone."

"Nothing else," I replied, not willing to spoil her fine charity.

"We had not come into London yet, when a fog closed in upon us—such a fog as London had not seen in many a day," she said. "We were had been struck upon the head and rendered unconscious. Before the miscreants had attempted the dastardly deed, however, they had made sure of the identity of their victim, for I remembered a light being swung before my face, and an unknown voice crying, 'It is he.' Who had struck the blow? What was the object? I had been searched—I saw from the wall where my clothes hung some of the pockets still lay turned out. For what? Not money, Alice was positive, for there was plenty in the pockets which had been left in their original position. For the paper given me by my father? I had told no one but the King of that. I bade Alice bring me my coat when I recollected that I had given the locket with the note still intact within it to Rosemary. For the other paper, perhaps? Well, I chuckled with satisfaction, if it was a paper they were after, they got not what they wished.

"I thank you, Alice," I said; "but for you and Martin I might be by now food for the worms. Again I thank you, for I honestly believe that I owe my life to you."

"Oh, sir," she cried, tears starting to her eyes—they seemed ever ready to flow upon the instant—"I am not worthy to take it. Did I not steal from you—and you so good to poor Martin and me?"

"That is past and done, my girl," I said. "And as it happened you did no harm." I grasped her hand. "From now on I am your friend," I added.

While speaking, for Alice, seeing that it made me more excited not to talk, had let me have my way, we had paid slight heed to Martin, who still spouted Shakespeare, now Hamlet, now another.

Suddenly he came toward us; he strode with the stage glide of the villain. As he neared us he pointed to "Enter the ghost—he comes, he comes!"

heavily laden. Each of us had a pack—our little belongings. I was fearful as we trudged along, groping our way from street to street, lest we be set upon and our few possessions taken from us. A fog in London's a fearful thing! Hardly a light anywhere save the few lanterns carried by provident wayfarers. You shrink from everyone and everyone shrinks from you. Gentlemen carry their naked swords in their hands. Men and women prey upon one another. All is fear! We had reached the end of Bow Street when Martin stumbled over something huddled in the road and fell. I lighted a taper—I recognized you!"

I thought (my head was clearer now) of Rosemary and our wild ride through the fog that night as contrasted with this poor woman's wanderings with her daft mate; of Rosemary as she stood at the door of the inn, her cloak half slipped from off her; of the petals which lay on her shoulder, shaken from the roses low in her hair, nestling against her neck. Ah, there was no one more beautiful than she! And so thinking, I lost the thread of her discourse. When I came back from soaring near to heaven I heard her say:

"I tied a bit of ribbon on one of the spikes of the gate, so that I should know the place, and because we had to hide our bundles beneath the hedge so as to be free to carry you. When I went back for them I learned who owned the place and who lived there, thinking that if you recovered you might wish to know. The house is on Bow Street surrounded by large grounds, enclosed by high brick walls, ivy grown."

"I know the place," I murmured. "We carried you between us," she continued. "Often we had to stop and I would leave Martin and you—a madman and a corpse—and go to inquire the way of the first passerby I could meet, my heart thumping in my breast for fear I should ask some evil inclined person and be directed wrong. Thus, after hours of wandering hither and thither within a radius of a few miles, we came to Mag's. She is a charwoman," she explained, "who used to clean at the old Drury when I acted there. I was once able to do her a slight service, and for the sake of those old days she took us in."

My brain was not idle—the night of the fog after I had left Rosemary I the window and said: "Enter the ghost—he comes, he comes—make way, ye slaves." A shadow spread itself upon the shade of the window and faded away. Alice put her finger upon her lips to silence Martin, while she went to the door without a sound and stood listening.

CHAPTER XX.

A Wager and What Came of It. A sword handle fell heavily upon the door, wielded by no slight hand. "Open, it is I—Gil Monte; open I say," cried a voice, and again there was a tremendous banging at the door.

"Open," I too cried—"It is Gil!" "Yes, yes," Alice answered, as she made haste to unhasp the latch, and Gil rushed in.

"At last! my lord, at last!" he cried, as he hastened to my side. From the break in his voice I understood plainer than words could have told me the anxiety he had passed through. "It is as I feared—you have been hurt!" he questioned.

"Not much, a crack on the back of the head," I replied, "and this cut."

"It is enough, from your looks," he said dryly.

"Tell me how you succeeded in finding this hiding place?" I asked anxiously. "For what you have done others may do—and so Alice's safety be imperiled."

"Ah! 'pretty Alice Lynson'—more petticoats," Gil said, laying his head upon his breast and bowing low before her.

"Poof! You!" Alice cried scornfully, and swung round on her foot, presenting her back to him.

He gave a perplexed look at her back and then turned to me.

"When you did not meet us at the marsh as agreed," he said, "I sent all the men on to Long Hunt, except Torrance and your linkman, Pat. We came back to London by separate ways and ever since have been searching high and low for you. It did not take us long to find that you had been hurt or killed, we knew not which, near the Bow Street mansion. Then what had become of you was a mystery—I could learn nothing. In despair I hung about the Duke's theater—"

"A risky thing to do," I interrupted him.

"Perhaps," he acknowledged; "but I kept my hat slouched over my face, and I put me on a wig, and long coat; you see it alters me somewhat!" I smiled—a babe could have seen through the trick. But no doubt my enemy, he who had been instrumental in my hurt, thinking me dead, did not care to molest him.

"At last, desperate, I asked the services of both Lady Felton and Mistress Gwyn—they could ferret out nothing new," he continued, "and I was about at my end, when—it is hardly an hour ago—I received a whispered word, 'Back alley, foot of Chune Street.' Although I was after her like a flash—it was a woman—she escaped me; hid herself among the wings or stage gim-cracks, where I came near to being lost. As soon as I found my way out I lost no time in coming here."

"It must have been Mag," Alice put in.

"Who is Mag?" questioned Gil.

"The woman who rents these rooms and lets us stay here with her," she replied rather tartly.

"That settles it," said he. "Did I not say that all the mischief was concocted by the petticoat army?"

"You did indeed," I could not help smiling at his manner. "But they also perform good services, witness what Alice did—and would you have been any the wiser as to my whereabouts if Mag had not informed you?"

"What did Alice do?" he quickly asked.

"She dragged me here from where she found me on Bow Street, and has since cared for me," I said. "If it had not been for her, instead of finding a quick man, you would have found a corpse, if anyone at all."

"Em!" he muttered. "I care not—they serve best where best paid. I must get you hence—I will send for Torrance and a stretcher. Who knows but it may be a trap?"

"Beast!" ejaculated Alice. "Know, sir, that Mag would do no one a mean trick," she added to me.

I reassured her with a smile.

The madman, Martin, whom she had taken care of as a mother her sick child, came out of his corner at her raised voice, and laid his hand timidly on her arm.

"Pretty Alice Lynson—pretty Alice Lynson," he murmured, "I know where violets grow the color of your eyes—rosemary, too, and fennel, and here's rue for you. Why do you cry? I will get you some." And he started for the door.

"No, no," she said, "Alice is not crying—you must stay with Alice." The madman hesitated and looked longingly at the door.

"Alice will cry, indeed, if you leave her," she said. Thereat he came back, and went into his corner, from whence the crooning began again.

Gil watched the couple with shamed eyes, but he was not satisfied and muttered:

"I think it best to go and call Torrance. I kept Pat and him with me, sir, for they could go into places that I dared not venture for fear of recognition. I will be back with a stretcher in a wink."

He would have gone, but I called him back.

"It is early yet, Gil, be in no haste," I entreated.

"My lord, I have much to tell you," he pleaded.

"Tell it here and now," I commanded.

He gave a sigh of resignation.

"Do you know where the locket is that you wore pinned upon your coat the night you left me?" he queried.

"Yes," I replied. Had I not given it myself to Rosemary?

"Where is it?" he demanded.

"It appears to me, Gil, that you are busying yourself about something which does not concern you. My God!" I started up only to fall back again. "How many days have I lain here?"

"Five days, sir," replied Alice and Gil in the same breath.

WEAR GEMS OF PHAROHS.

London Society Women Proud of Jewels From the Pyramids. Happy the woman of today who owns some gem worn by a princess of Egypt when the world was younger; joyous is she who adorns herself with any ornament taken from a mummy, for such jewels bring the best luck, women firmly believe at the moment, and they all yearn to wear them.

Mrs. Clarence Mackay of New York possesses a wondrous carnelian necklace that decked a daughter of the Pharaohs and Mrs. St. John Broderick rejoices over some quaint, priceless jewels that shone by the Nile. Many fashionables are wearing a little pendant or charm made of New Zealand jade, the Pounamu stone, which always bestows good fortune.

Sarah Bernhardt's favorite mascot is a necklace of gold nuggets which the admiring miners of California presented to her. An English actress, Miss Irene Van Brugh, pins her faith to a girldie of splendid turquoises.

In Lent.

Henry M. Flagler, at a dinner party at Palm Beach, said, apropos of Lent: "A clergyman told me one day in Lent how, the Sunday before, he had preached from the text, 'All flesh is grass.'"

"The next day he met a parishioner of his, a lowly laboring man to whom fasting was anything but congenial. This man said to the clergyman with a smile:

"I much enjoyed, sir, yesterday, yer sermon about all flesh being grass, and I wish to know whether, in this Lenten season, I couldn't be after havin' a small piece of pork by way of a salad?"

In Women's Interests

Summer Girldies.

A girldie that will be worn with many a summer silk is the wide ribbon girldie. Handsome pompadour ribbon, maybe twelve inches wide, is shirred in front and boned. This front is fastened with hooks, which are covered with tiny bows of narrow satin ribbon. In the back the girldie is slit open and laced with ribbons, which are tied in little knots. The effect is as pretty as can be.

"One should make half a dozen of these laced girldies," said a girldie maker, "for they are so necessary this summer. One must have a cream colored one, trimmed with pale pink satin bows, and one must have a black one, and, of course, an all white one. Then there come the big flowered ribbons, the plaid ribbons and the marvelous novelties which are worn this year. They cost a great deal of money, but they make the most attractive girldies."

Season of Lace.

It will be a veritable season of lace, from the spun silk under wear with the pretty valenciennes lace and silk trimmings and cache corsets made entirely of broderie anglaise and edged with valenciennes to the elaborate lace creations which are designated reception toilettes. Even the tailor-mades emanating from the best houses have quickly slashed three-quarter sleeves, and fronts cut low so as to demand a lace blouse beneath for their successful completion; and these shorter sleeves of necessity require either a long lace cuff or double frills as a finish. Again, for the decoration of both day and evening corsages some lace arrangement is a sine qua non, and there is quite a revival of schuss and braces as instanced at a recent important wedding in Paris.

Two Quaint Ideas.

A quaint idea is the fashioning of a little silk bag, embroidered to match gown and parasol, this slung over the arm with knotted silk ribbons.

We have the lingerie waist, the lingerie gown, the lingerie hat, and now it is the lingerie parasol, made to match all the rest of the lingerie possessions. Tucks, braiding, lace insertions, and appliques abound upon this smart sunshade, and the wires of the frame are all twisted around with a white floss silk which gives them the appearance of having been enameled. The tips, too, are enameled, or else they are of brass and a goodly size, too.

The Newest Buttons.

In the trimming world one of the most striking novelties is a button of shaded chenille and metal. The center of the button is of chenille thread running round in circles, and shading from dark at the corner to light at the outer edge.

This chenille disc, which is usually concave, and has a tiny point of gleaming metal at its center, is framed in a wrought metal circle of shaded gold, copper, or silver, according to the color with which the metal is to harmonize. In greens and in browns these buttons are particularly good.

Delightful shadings and designs in enamel, metal and in cut work metal tinted to dull yet delicate metallic colorings, are greatly liked; and it is possible to find in these buttons almost any color combination desired. Ivory and imitation jewels set in metal open work are among the button novelties.

Shirt Blouse for Summer.

An unusual and pretty result has been effected in this model by combining tucks in two widths. Both are stitched to yoke depth, the narrow cluster giving a becoming fullness and the wider ones broadening the shoulder line. Silk poplin has replaced brilliantine to a great extent this season, as it is softer and more lustrous, while equally desirable and inexpensive. This material in a shade of gray would make a charming waist for spring and summer after the pattern illustrated.

Details in Dress.

Great attention is paid to the small details in dress such as belts, buckles, collars and neck accessories. There is nothing startlingly new in belts, the latest novelty, however, being that made of striped patent leather such as red and white and blue and white, the stripes being about a quarter-inch in width and the buckles quite plain and generally of dull gold. These belts and those of soft plain patent leather which are fashionable are two inches wide, and the fancy ones of galon or elastic are the same width, but the buckles which fasten them are veritable works of art, figures in dull gold and oxidized silver being wrought with a master hand. Many ladies are utilizing family relics for their belts, large old buttons in gold and enamel as well as buckles being requisitioned to fasten them.

Attractive Frock for a Girl.

The illustration here shows a pretty dress for a girl that can be developed without lace or embroidery into a generally useful dress, or, if desired, the deep-pointed collar can be so trimmed as to give the frock a very dressy appearance. The three tucks on skirt, waist and sleeves give a very stylish look to this frock, which can also be finished with round neck and elbow puff sleeves.

For the Little Ones.

One of the prettiest styles for little girls, and (it must be confessed) one far more becoming to them than their older sisters and mothers who strive to imitate it, is the suspender frock. These were worn a good deal last season and through the winter, and so thoroughly satisfactory have they proved that their popularity is on the increase for the summer months. Scotch plaids or tiny checked gingham, piped in green, white, blue or red, worn with white muslin or linen blouses, are most suitable for morning and form a little change from the ubiquitous sailor suit, while even for afternoon, in silk, pongee and delicately tinted linens, they will be fashionable with the sheerest of dainty lingerie and embroidered blouses.

Wash Negligees.

For the home-making of the simple wash negligees, which contribute so much toward summer rest and pleasure, let the maid clever at her needle not forget the French batistes. These delicate textiles, as palely colored as the first spring flowers, wash like longcloth, besides affording a matchless daintiness.

Narrow stripes and the finer patterns are more effective than the larger designs, and valenciennes lace, both the French and German sorts, are durable and beautifying trimmings. Some corded batistes keep, with pale pink and blue stripes, were most charming, and for hot weather use the more delicate the color the better.

Pongees Remain Popular.

The pongees are more in evidence as the season advances, and though they have no such vogue as taffeta, they are the material employed in a goodly number of the smart silk street frocks. A deep ecrû shantung, with a dash of amber in its tone, made quite simply with revers of the silk embroidered in self tone and bordered by stitched bands of the silk, and with soft searls of the silk to fasten the coat at the bust, is one of the frocks we have chosen for illustration; and in the same shop was a most delightful soft dull blue shantung made with a plain full skirt plaited on the hips and a short loose bolero, whose collar and pocket flaps showed glimpses of orange in their blue embroidery.

Flower Pots.

Do not empty pots and put them away dirty, for the chances are that they never will get cleaned, and when cold weather comes plants will be hustled into them, with all their pores clogged with old dirt, and absolutely unfit for use. When the plants are boded out, put the empty pots in a tub of water, let soak a few hours, scrub with an old white broom and drain dry. It takes but a little time, and the plants do enough better in them to pay for the trouble.—National Magazine.

Preparation of Spinach.

Wash two pounds of spinach and boil it till tender, with just a little water in the bottom of the saucepan; then press out the water and rub it through a sieve.

Dissolve an ounce of butter in a saucepan and fry it in one onion minced finely, a dessert spoonful of flour and then rub into it the same quantity of curry powder. Stir well; then add the spinach, two dessert spoonfuls of cream, some poked shrimps, a little salt, and, if too thick, a little gravy. Cook the mixture all together for a few minutes and serve very hot on squares of buttered toast.

THE PRESIDENT MOVES FOR PEACE

Mr. Roosevelt Urges Russia to End the War in the Far East.

BOTH NATIONS OUR FRIENDS

Chief Executive, as a Disinterested Third Party, Confers With Count Cassini on Advisability of Cessation of Hostilities.

Washington dispatch: The president Friday struck a blow for peace in the far east. In a conference at the White House with Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, he expressed the earnest hope that Russia would forthwith conclude peace with Japan. Prolongation of the war, he believes, will not result in victory for the Russian arms and can only serve to increase Japan's demands and render more difficult the drafting of a treaty of peace which the czar, as well as the mikado, can sign.

The president spoke, he said, as the friend of Russia, no less than of Japan, and on behalf not only of the Washington government, but in the interest of humanity.

Until his words have reached Tsar-koe Solo and have been communicated to Emperor Nicholas in the friendly spirit in which they were uttered, their effect cannot be estimated. Soon after reaching his embassy Count Cassini began the preparation of a dispatch to his government.

Cassini Gives His Views.

Count Cassini was unable to do more than to give the president his own personal opinions on the situation. He could not see, however, that there was anything in the present situation, unfortunate as it undoubtedly was for his government, which necessitated Russia's suing for peace. As to territory, he pointed out that China and not Russia had been the loser, for even Port Arthur was held only under lease. On the sea, Russia had nothing more to lose, he said.

It was the ambassador's firm opinion that this was not "the psychological moment" in which to discuss peace with Japan. Whatever might be the ultimate decision of his government, he took the ground that Russia could lose nothing either by waiting or by continuing the war on land. There was hope yet of a victory for the Russian arms, and in any event Russia had not yet lost one foot of territory nor was the Russian frontier endangered.

Japan's Terms too Severe.

The ambassador pointed out that there was no slight official information from any source, as to Japan's probable terms, and that these demands as stated unofficially were "altogether impossible." If Japan's terms should prove anything like as severe as they have been reported it was the ambassador's opinion that Russia could advantageously continue the war indefinitely and eventually win a victory on land. That his government would so decide he did not wish to predict, but at last accounts the emperor was for a continuation of the war.

Thus the conversation continued for more than half an hour, being characterized throughout by frankness and friendliness. Later on when the ambassador has heard from his government, after communicating the president's views and the president's willingness to render Russia any service possible in initiating peace negotiations with Japan, he will have another talk with the president.

CHAPLAIN OF THE SENATE DEAD

The Rev. Albert G. Goodspeed Passes Away in His 84th Year.

Minook, Ill., dispatch: The Rev. Albert G. Goodspeed died at his residence here Wednesday in the 84th year of his age. He served twice in the Illinois house of representatives, was twice a chaplain and was three times chaplain of the senate, filling that office at the late session. He was a member of the steering committee of the house during the memorable contest ending in John A. Logan's election to the United States senate.

MUST SURRENDER ALL PASSES

Indiana Officials, Governor Says, Shall Accept No Railroad Favors.

Tapscott, Ind., special: Jail is yawning for public officials of this state if they do not return their railroad passes before July 1. Gov. Hanly has started the crusade and says he is determined to have passholders after the date specified prosecuted by the new railroad commission, which takes office next month. All state, county and township officers are affected by the governor's order.

Nearly Asphyxiated.

New York special: Lewis Cohn, 46 years old, a retired merchant, who came to New York a year ago from California, where he is said to have made a fortune, was found half suffocated by illuminating gas in his apartments in the Hotel Highland.

Old-Time Robber Is Dead.

New York dispatch: James Hope, otherwise known as "Jimmy" Hope, leader of the band which robbed the Manhattan bank in this city of nearly $3,000,000 in money and securities nearly thirty years ago, is dead at his home here.

SPLIT OVER SALOON.

VIRGINIA LEADER REPLIES POINTED-LY TO HIS OWN PARTY PAPER.

Prohibition Sentiment in a Southern State Wasas Dominant Party That the Saloon is Not Wanted—Is Local Option Fate to Everybody?

[Special Correspondence.]

Richmond, Va.—A pretty fight is now going on in this state between the Prohibition and saloon wings of the old Democratic party. The Prohibitionists have within the last three years driven the saloon from practically half of this great state through the Mann local option law, and there is an irresistible movement on foot for state prohibition.

Democratic Press Stirred.

Most of the leading Democratic papers are unfriendly to the Prohibition movement, but the sentiment in its favor is growing so rapidly that it threatens a party split in case the liquor men get into the saddle. The Prohibition party is also organized and is well generalized. The next few months will be interesting to Prohibitionists as well as Democrats. The Richmond and Manchester News-Leader has often opposed prohibition and attempts to belittle every phase of the movement, but many of its readers disagree with this attitude and have forced it to admit to its columns many letters to that effect.

The News-Leader's View.

One of the best of these is from F. A.
Hodge of Lynchburg. In a letter entitled "Prohibition and Quarantine" Mr.
Hodge writes as follows to the News-
Leader:

Editor the News-Leader—In your issue of Wednesday, March 22, an editorial appeared under the caption "Another 'Dry' County." The article referred to the refusal by Judge White to grant liquor licenses on applications made at the March term of the circuit court in that county.

"Here is a case of Prohibition forced on a county, so far as the record shows, by about a dozen people and in one district at least forced against the expressed will of the majority of the voters. But it is a serious question whether there is any case, flavor or suggestion of Democracy or Democratic principles in a law which gives to any small minority in a county a right to determine the county's policy on one of the most important and complicated of all issues."

What About Quarantine?

So you think it is not good Democratic principle to force Prohibition upon a district when they do not want it, and this without reference to what the will of surrounding districts is. And yet I suppose that few if any good Democrats would object to quarantining a town infected with smallpox without any regard to the wish of the people in the infected place.

If every man, woman and child in Goehland had wanted the saloons to stay, should not the surrounding counties, all of which, I believe, have abolished the saloon from their own borders, have something to say about it?

Who Is Affected?

The one point that will solve the matter of restriction is simply the question of the majority. If the majority of the people in the business district of the man who sells, then it would be both wrong and undemocratic to restrict it. If it affects only the districts of counties where it is sold, then it must be decided by the will of the majority of voters in that district or county. But we know that this is not true. The saloons in Goehland affected Louisa, Hanover, Rockingham, Shenandoah and other counties. In the trial of one of the cases above referred to it was brought out that a large amount of hauling was done from Louisa county that had to pass the saloon in question. Is it right, Mr. Editor, to force the evil results of the liquor traffic upon Louisa simply because two-thirds of the voters in one district of Goehland want it in their territory?

Is Prohibition Democratic?

You seem to think also that the idea of Prohibition of the liquor traffic is undemocratic. I knew from childhood that the Democratic party sanctioned the prohibition of murder, robbery, incest and many other things, and I have long characterized the hope that if Democracy was bold enough to prohibit these children the might some day be induced to wipe out of existence the liquor saloon, the mother of thieves and cherishes this ville brood in her bosom. I cannot see anything in the prohibition of the mother that is any more undemocratic than the prohibition of the children, and there is a host of good Democrats in Virginia who think the same thing. F. A. HODGE

OLD LONDON WAKENING.

New Movement Against Alcohol
Spreading in Metropolis.

London, England.—The Daily Mail declares there are distinct signs that point to the possibility of the city of London becoming the center of a great temperance movement in the near future.

"The day when men found it necessary to retire to bars to transact business is over," is the view held by the most successful merchants, bankers, stockbrokers and financiers in the city of London today.

"There can be no two opinions that the use of alcohol interferes generally with efficiency," was the uncompromising view expressed by Felix Schuster, the chairman of the Union of London and Smith's bank.

"I heartily sympathize with the movement for bringing this fact home," he added, "although I would not go so far as to prohibit alcohol altogether. A man is decidedly better and can undoubtedly work better without alcohol.
However small a quantity a man takes in business hours, it does to some extent interfere with his work."

The Deserted House

[Original.]

My automobile was powerful, but the snow was falling fast, and the wind was hurling it about wildly. I passed through a village where the lamps shone dimly through the circling flakes, but they were bright compared with the black road into which I plunged beyond the town limits. My four acetylene lamps forced a circular hole in the darkness, and there would have been no difficulty in my getting on had not the snow increased, while the wind, rising to fury, blew it into drifts. My pace grew slower, and with each drift I was in danger of being stalled. The cold was intense, and I began to grow sleepy.

At last I was stalled. My lamps showed me, not fifty yards ahead, a stone bridge, beyond which the road forked at the foot of a large tree. Beyond on the left fork I thought I saw a light. Putting on all the force there was in my machine, I plowed through the snow and drew up in front of a massive stone house, with pillars rising the whole height of the building, such a house as was in vogue about 1840.

I rapped with the brass knocker, and a man opened the door. He was not a servant, but a well to do looking person of the country class.

I told him my story, and he invited me to take my automobile around to a shed in the rear and to spend the night in his house. When I returned from the shed, he met me at a back door, brushed the snow off me and led me into the living room, where his wife and children were sitting about a blazing wood fire.

There was something uncanny about these people, and for my life I couldn't tell what it was. They were all as white as if they had been long ill and seemed hungry, not for food, for they gave me a supper, never touching a morsel themselves, but for something the nature of which I could not guess.
The wife and mother spread her hands before the fire to warm them, and I could see the flame behind, not through red blood, but white flesh. The children, too, had a blue-white look about them that made me cold. I attempted to caress a little girl of six years, seizing her hand, but she quickly drew it away, and I was glad she did, for it was cold and stiff, not the least of that warm softness in it usual to childhood.
I was glad when my host showed me
to a sleeping room.

In the night I awoke suddenly with suffocation. A mouth was glued to mine, and some one was drawing my breath from my body. I was just in time to place my hands upon a pair of shoulders and hurl the figure away.
In another moment I would have been powerless. Gasping, I awaited the person's return, but when no one came I listened. There was no sound, and after a time I wondered if I had not had a spasmodic closing at the mouth of the windpipe and dreamed the rest. I was all in a tremor and resolved to remain awake for the rest of the night. Nevertheless I became drowsy, and the last
I remember was struggling with sleep.

I was awakened by some one shaking me, the mouth of a flask put between my lips and liquor in my mouth.
I swallowed a considerable draft, after which I opened my eyes to be blinded by a powerful light, the light from an automobile. Two men were chafing me. When assured that I was alive they told me that they were passing in their automobile and had found me in mine apparently frozen. They had reached me just in time to save me.

Ahead of me was the stone bridge I had seen, beyond which the road forked at the foot of the oak tree. I was still stuck in the drift from which I thought I had gone to the house farther on. I said nothing to my rescuers about this, and after they had turned my machine I went with them back to the village, where I spent the remainder of the night.

The next morning was bright, cold and still, and after a hot breakfast I proceeded on my way, passed the point where I had been stalled and pushed on by the left fork. What was my astonishment to see that the house at which I had stayed the night before was where I thought it. But instead of being occupied it was deserted.

I was paralyzed with a frightful dread. Fortunately I had nothing to do but hold the steering wheel to put the horrible place behind me. Reaching a farm house a short distance beyond,
I stopped and, leaving my automobile, knocked. A woman came to the door.

"You know the house half a mile back on this side of the road—stone house, big pillars?"

"Yes."

"Any one lived there lately?"

"Not since a few years after it was built."

"How so?"

"I've heard the family that lived in it all died of cholera somewhere in the fifties."

I caught at the railing of the porch.

"Ever heard anything—strange—about the place?"

"Oh, yes. There's lots of talk. I don't believe any of it, but I can't get any of my children to go past it to the dark.
One story is that the dead sometimes try to suck the life out of the living, and this family—"

I waited to hear no more. Staggering to my automobile, I pulled myself in, managed to turn the starting gear and went flying away, bent only on putting miles between me and the house where I did not doubt the dead had taken me for the purpose of appropriating a life that was on the eve of leaving its body.

Cuban Diarrhoea.

U. S. Soldiers who served in Cuba during the Spanish war know what this disease is, and that ordinary remedies have little more effect than so much water. Cuban diarrhoea is almost as severe and dangerous as a mild attack of cholera. There is one remedy, however, that can always be depended upon as will be seen by the following certificate from Mrs. Minnie Jacobs of Houston, Texas: "I hereby certify that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy cured my husband of a severe attack of Cuban diarrhoea, which he brought home from Cuba. We had several doctors but they did him no good. One bottle of this remedy cured him, as our neighbors will testify. I thank God for so valuable a medicine." For sale by T. E. Slattery.

Old Vets May Take Wives.

Judge H. J. Paulus, of the circuit court, has ruled that members of the National Military Home are not indigent, and that they are entitled to marriage license under the new law. M. M. Wall, county clerk, refused to issue a marriage license to Wm. Cobolt, a member of the Marion Soldier's Home, until the court had passed on the point embodied in section 3 of the new state law.

Judge Paulus said in making his ruling that the soldiers have all the rights of citizens; that they are not paupers, but defenders of our country who have lost their health and are temporary members of the home for treatment and rest.

A Railroad Builder.

Mrs. Theodosia Beacham, a native of Massachusetts and a resident of Michigan, the contractor in charge of the grading of the old Dominion Railroad, is said to be the only woman in America engaged in such work. According to the Pilgrim for May, Mrs. Beacham took up the work when her husband became an invalid. With her two sons she lives near the work she is engaged upon, and her force of 50 men camp near by with their mules and equipment. She has done some of the hardest work on one of the costliest electric railroad beds ever constructed—red rock cut and filling. She superintends the work personally, and is held in high esteem by officials of the various railroads with which she has had dealings.

Johnny on Twins.

When asked to write a short composition on some interesting experience, Johnny after much labor, handed his teacher the following: "Twins is a baby, only its double. It usually arrives about 4:37 in the morning when a fellow is getting in his best licks sleepin'. Twins is accompanied with excitement and a doctor. When twins do anything wrong their mother can't tell which one to lick, so she gives it to both of 'em so as to make sure. We've got twins to our house, and I'd swap 'em any day for a billiard or mos' anything.—Success.

The Small Boy in the Country.

A Perry mother sent her small boy to the country, and after a week of anxiety received this letter: "I got here all right, but I forgot to write before. A feller and I went out in a boat and the boat tipped over and a man got me out. I was so full of water that I didn't know anything for a long time. The other boy will have to be buried after they find him. A horse kicked me over and I've got to have some money for fixin' my head. We are going to set a barn on fire tonight and I should smile if I do not have some bully fun. I am going to bring home a tame woodchuck if I can get him in my my trunk."—Kansas City Journal.

No Secret About It.

It is no secret that for cuts, ulcers, fever sores, sore eyes, boils, etc., nothing is so effective as Bucklen's Arnica Salve. "It did not take long to cure a bad sore I had, and it is all O. K. for sore eyes," writes D. L. Gregory, of Hope, Texas. 25c at T. E. Slattery's drug store.

Grandfather's Good Service. "Yes," said the indolent youth, "we have decided that grandfather is entitled to some consideration."

"Really?"

"Oh, yes. Of course we can't afford to say much about him because he was in trade, but we have given a lot of thought to the matter, and we can see extenuating circumstances."

"Perhaps he couldn't help it."

"We consider that, but it's not the main thing."

"He left you a big fortune?"

"Oh, yes; but that is of trifling importance, except as it is associated with the one really great boon."

"Which is?"

"Why, if he hadn't been in trade, we would be, don't you know. He saved us that humiliation."

MEN WHO HAVE FIGURED PROMINENTLY IN EVENTS OF THE PAST FEW DAYS

Charles J. Bonaparte, of Baltimore, Md., who will succeed Paul Morton as secretary of the navy, is a grand nephew of the great Napoleon. He never figured as an aspirant for office, and what honors he has accepted have been forced on him in recognition of his high ideals of public administration.

An attempt to assassinate King Alfonso, of Spain, who is in Paris for a week's visit, and President Loubet, of France, was made at midnight June 1 by an anarchist, who hurled a bomb beneath the carriage containing the two rulers as they were leaving the opera.

As if by a miracle, both the King and President escaped unharmed, but fragments of the missile seriously injured five persons, killed or maimed a number of cavalry horses forming the escort, and knocked out a child's eye.

Alfonso XIII, King of Spain, is just past 19 years of age. He was born at the palace in Madrid, May 17, 1886. All through childhood he was delicate almost to feebleness, but has grown rugged and strong as he approached manhood, and the quiet manner of an effeminate youth has given place to a positive and forceful habit. He has developed a will of his own, and a brain power strong enough to win his way with the courtiers and counselors about the palace. He has looked forward with the greatest eagerness to this Parisian visit, his first excursion into the world "away from home." His betrothal to the little Archduchess Gabrielle of Austria, two years younger than himself, was rumored last March, and is regarded as assured.

LYOYD GRISCOM

Lloyd C. Griscom, who may be called back from Japan to become assistant secretary of state at Washington to succeed Loomis, is a son of

KING ALFONSO XIII

Clement A. Griscom, president of the International Navigation Company. He has been in the diplomatic service since 1899, when he was appointed secretary of the legation at Constantinople, and has been minister to Japan since December, 1902.

James Dalrymple, traction expert from Glasgow, Scotland, is now in Chicago to aid the authorities in that city in their efforts toward the municipalization of the street railways.

"TWELFTH NIGHT" AT VASSAR.

More Than 1,000 People Saw a Shakespeare Production.

Sunset hill, Vassar college, was the scene recently of a beautiful out-of-door production of "Twelfth Night," under the auspices of Philaethia, the students' association, which promotes the study of the drama and directs all the theatrical enterprises at the college. It was a fitting close to a very successful season, the plays heretofore presented being "Heddelberg," "An American Citizen" and "The Little Minister."

A broad greenward at the foot of Sunset hill served as a stage, the players making their entrances from a clump of dark pines and blossoming apple trees, which formed a beautiful setting. The side of the hill was a natural amphitheater, affording seats for the thousand or more students, alumnae and professors who made up the audience. Electric lights and Japanese lanterns illuminated the scene.

All the characters were taken by girls and the costumes included tight-fitting dresses similar to those used for the play on the professional stage, a costume from New York being employed to equip the hundred members in the cast.

Thought She Couldn't Live.

Moravia, N. Y., June 5.—Mr. Benjamin Wilson, a highly respected resident of this place, came very near losing his wife and now that she is cured and restored to good health his gratitude knows no bounds. He says:

"My wife has suffered everything with Sugar Diabetes. She has been sick four years. She doctored with two good doctors but kept growing worse. The doctors said she could not live. She failed from 200 pounds down to 130 pounds. This was her weight when she began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and now she weighs 190, is well and feeling stronger every day."

"She used to have rheumatism so bad that it would raise great bumps all over her body and this is all gone too."

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are a God-send to those who suffer as my wife did. They are all that saved her. We can't praise them enough."

Justice Seeks Information.

A justice of the peace living near here has addressed the following inquiry to me: "Please let me know if there's bin any changes in the code of Kansas since I got mine, as some of these triflin' lawyers tries to make out that my rulin' ain't accordin' to the code, an' if I'm right, an' they ain't, I want to disbar 'em an' fine 'em for contempt an' show 'em what's law. All I want to do is to do right."—Osage (Kas.) Free Press.

Bad Odor.

A bad odor from a person's breath may be caused by many different forms of dyspepsia. It may be due to stomach catarrh, biliousness, constipation, or a case of ordinary indigestion. Whatever may be the cause, there is just one reliable cure, and that is Dr. Caldwell's (Laxative) Syrup Pepsin. It clears all the impurities out of your body and makes your breath as sweet as the June morning. Safe, pleasant and effective. Sold by all druggists at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails.

Letters from Prominent Men.

In a list of unclaimed letters published by the New York postoffice a few days ago were missives addressed to Harry Thaw, the young Pittsburgher, whose marriage caused a sensation recently; Rider Haggard, the English novelist; Marconi, the wireless telegraph man; and Craig Wadsworth, secretary of the American embassy in London.

REJECT REPORT BY FRICK ET AL

Hyde and Alexander Forces
Join to Defeat Committee Recommendations.

URGE HYDE TO SELL HIS STOCK

President Is to Step Down, Relinquishing Authority and Place to the Chairman of the Board of Directors With Full Power.

New York dispatch: By a coalition of the Hyde and Alexander factions in the directorate of the Equitable Life Assurance society the report of the Frick investigating committee was rejected, and three of the members of the committee angered by the turn affairs have taken, resigned as officers of the society.

Those directors who resigned were Henry C. Frick, Cornelius N. Bliss and E. H. Harriman. The remaining members of the Frick committee, Melville K. Ingalls and Drayton Ives, both of whom were fiercely attacked by Mr. Hyde during the meeting, are also expected to quit the Equitable directorate.

The meeting was stormy and at times the talk was so plain that it verged on accusations of criminality. Mr. Harriman, in particular, was singled out by Mr. Hyde as the target for attack.

Hyde and Alexander Hit.

While the combined Hyde and Alexander forces were able to dispose of the Frick report, because it recommended that the "deferred dividend" system of doing business be abolished, they were compelled to submit to the adoption of resolutions which strip President James W. Alexander of authority and place the chairman of the board of directors in full power over the affairs of the society. James H. Hyde also is requested formally by the resolutions to dispose of the stock he controls within the next three months.

The resolutions were adopted by an overwhelming majority, and are embodied in the following statement given out by the directors after final adjournment:

Board's Official Report.

"The board, after full discussion and after replies on their own behalf to the committee by President Alexander, Vice President Hyde and Vice President Tarbell, on motion of Mr. Schiff, adopted the following resolutions:

"(1) That a chairman of the board be created with plenary powers over all departments and affairs of the society.

"(2) That a nominating committee consisting of D. O. Mills, John A. Stewart, A. J. Cassatt, T. Jefferson Coolidge, August Belmont, J. B. Forgan and Robert T. Lincoln be requested to report at a meeting of the board, to be called on Wednesday next, a candidate for chairman.

"(3) That at that meeting of the board the executive committee be reorganized and that appropriate amendments to the by-laws should be prepared for submission to that meeting for the purpose of carrying out these resolutions.

Is Urged to Sell Stock.

"(4) That James H. Hyde be requested, within three months, to divest himself of the control of the stock of the society, on such terms and conditions as shall be satisfactory to him and to the board."

The action of the directors is intended to mean that the directors would have the "one-man control" dispensed with, but no one appears to be in a position to tell how this stock is to be purchased or at what figure. Mr. Hyde has had an offer of several million dollars for his holdings.

In the meantime it would appear that neither Alexander, Hyde nor Gage E. Tarbell is to be disturbed as an office-holder.

SEEK LIGHT ON WHEAT DEAL

Court Restrains Disposal of Papers in the E. L. Harper Case.

Cincinnati, Ohio, dispatch: United States Judge Thompson has issued a temporary injunction forbidding William and Amanda Silchenoth from disposing of certain memoranda in the E. L. Harper matter, the proceeding being instituted by Irwin Green & Co., of Chicago, who have a judgment for nearly $1,000,000 against Harper in connection with the wheat deal which resulted in the wrecking of the old Fidelity National bank. The suit is brought for the purpose of discovering the facts in connection with an agreement which was alleged to have been entered into by certain capitalists in relation to financing the famous wheat deal.

WOULD STOP GRAIN CORNERS

F. O. Paddock Suggests Commercial Be Made Contract Grade.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., special: At the first session of the annual convention of the National Grain Dealers' association F. O. Paddock of Toledo suggested that as a preventive of grain corners that the commercial grade of grain should be made the contract grade. Grain that is good enough for millers and consumers, he said, should be good enough for any man buying grain for future delivery, whether for

HER WEAKNESS GONE

NOT FLASHES AND BINKING SPELLS CONQUERED AT LAST.

Mrs. Murphy Tells Her Fellow-Sufferers How She Got Rid of Serious Troubles by Simple Home Treatment.

"I had been bothered for several years," said Mrs. Murphy, "by stomach disorder, and finally I became very weak and nervous. Flashes of heat would pass over me, and I would feel as if I was sinking down. At such times I could not do any household work, but would have to lie down, and afterwards I would have very trying nervous spells. 'Didn't you have a doctor?' she was asked.

"Yes, I consulted several doctors but my health did not improve. One day a friend asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She assured me that they had proved of the greatest benefit in the case of her daughter. In fact, she praised them so enthusiastically that my husband got me a box."

"And what was the result?" "Before I had taken half of the first box my condition was greatly improved. The quickness with which they reached and relieved all my troubles was really surprising. After I had used only three boxes I had no more heat-flashes or weak spells. Thanks to them, I have become a well woman."

Mrs. Mary D. Murphy lives at No. 1903 Force street, Fort Wayne, Indiana. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the remedy which she found so satisfactory, furnish directly to the blood the elements that give vigor to every tissue of the body. They can be depended on to revive failing strength, and to banish nervousness. Their tonic properties are absolutely unsurpassed.

As soon as there is drag, or dizziness, or pallor, or poor circulation, or disordered digestion, or restlessness, or pains, or irregularities of any kind these famous pills should be used. They have cured the most obstinate cases of anemia, dyspepsia, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous prostration and even partial paralysis.

If you desire information specially suited to your own case write directly to the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. Every woman should have a copy of Dr. Williams' "Plain Talks to Women," which will be mailed free to any address on request. Any druggist can supply the pills.

MAN UNFIT TO BE A HERMIT.

Cannot Live Happily Alone with Nature, Independent of Race.

When he abandoned his hermitage he did it, says the National Magazine, in this fashion: "I had imagined I could live happily alone with nature, and largely independent of the rest of the human race. I couldn't. I don't believe anybody can. Nature has taught me better. I found that the birds went in pairs and in flocks; that plants and trees grew in families; that ants live in colonies and that everything of its kind had a tendency to live and grow together. But here I was, a single bit of the human race, trying to live alone and away from my kind. The birds and trees were possibly glad of my admiration for them, but they said: 'You don't belong to us. You shouldn't try to belong to us. You belong to your own race; go, join them again; cultivate them. We live our own lives; you can't get wholly into our lives. You're not a bird, that you can live in a nest and on uncultivated seeds; or a squirrel, that can live in a hole in a tree; or a tree, that can root itself in one place and stay there, as you've been trying to do. A hermit is one who tries to be a tree and draw nourishment from one spot, when he is really a great deal more than a tree and must draw life and recreation from many persons and places. A bear is not so foolish as to try to live among foxes; neither should a man try to live entirely among trees, because they cannot give him all that he must have to get the most out of life.' So I left my hermitage, I presume, forever, and carted my bed and pots and pans to the house of a friend perched on the brink of the Palisades opposite Tinker's."

FEED YOU MONEY.

Feed Your Brain, and It Will Feed You Money and Fame.

"Ever since boyhood I have been especially fond of meats, and I am convinced I ate too rapidly, and failed to masticate my food properly.

"The result was that I found myself, a few years ago, afflicted with ailments of the stomach and kidneys, which interfered seriously with my business.

"At last I took the advice of friends and began to eat Grape-Nuts instead of the heavy meats, etc., that had constituted my former diet.

"I found that I was at once benefited by the change, that I was soon relieved from the heart-burn and the indigestion that used to follow my meals, that the pains in my back from my kidney affection had ceased, showing that those organs had been healed, and that my nerves, which used to be unsteady, and my brain, which was slow and lethargic from a heavy diet of meats and greasy foods, had, not in a moment, but gradually, and none the less surely, been restored to normal efficiency. Now every nerve is steady and my brain and thinking faculties are quicker and more acute than for years past.

"After my old style breakfasts I used to suffer during the forenoon from a feeling of weakness which hindered me seriously in my work, but since I have begun to use Grape-Nuts food I can work till dinner time with all ease and comfort." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

HOW RUSSIAN FLAGSHIP WAS SUNK

Japanese Officers Tell of Havoc Wrought by Japanese on the Kniaz Souvaroff and of Flight and Capture of Rojestvensky

The first detailed stories of the sinking of the Russian flagship and the capture of Admiral Rojestvensky have been obtained from Japanese officers. The captain of the torpedo boat destroyer Murasame, which attacked the flagship, said:

"At daybreak of May 27 we received a wireless message of warning that the enemy's fleet was approaching and had arrived near Quelpart island. The carrying out of our preconcerted plan then began. Our duty was to guard a certain roadstead. The main strength of the third squadron and a destroyer flotilla to which we were attached enticed the enemy to the waters of Iki and then checked him north toward Genkaimada.

Russians Fall Upon Decoy. "Our fleet, headed by the Matsushima, opened fire from a certain concealed place which the Russian guns could not possibly reach. We merely threatened them, and they, without suspecting, promptly returned the fire. At this juncture the Japanese main fleet pressed the enemy from the north and the great battle began.

"My destroyer was in a position outside the battle circle, watching the movements of the Russians, whose firing was lamentable. Many of their shells passed over the Japanese fleet and dropped in the waters beyond. One of these, having missed its real object, hit us astern.

"At the same time the order came to us to attack the enemy's flagship, the Kniaz Souvaroff. We dashed through the heavy seas toward the enemy's ship to within a distance of 100 meters, when we fired our first torpedo, a fish-shaped 18-inch Whitehead. We saw it strike the Kniaz Souvaroff astern and soon realized that it had smashed her steering gear.

Flagship Scene of Terror.

"From this moment the whole of the shell fire of the Japanese fleet was concentrated upon Rojestvensky's flagship. Her funnels were shot into itself. Her masts, with one exception, collapsed with a terrific noise. The officers and sailors crowded around the one remaining mast, as if they were demented. It was really an awful sight, even for men who in war have witnessed many incidents of a terrible nature.

"When we fired our second torpedo, it struck the engine compartment, and the flagship immediately listed nearly to the water's edge.

"Meanwhile the cannonading of the whole of the Japanese fleet, as if controlled by one automatic switch, was concentrated upon the crowd of officers and men standing beneath the solitary mast, and within a few seconds they were scattered into fragments in the air like dry leaves before the wind.

"Almost simultaneously the flagship reared up as perpendicular as a pole imbedded in the ground and plunged to the bottom of the sea."

Rojestvensky Forced to Flee. The circumstances under which Admiral Rojestvensky was captured are related as follows:

The Russian commander was at first on board his fighting ship, the Kniaz Souvaroff. From the beginning of the battle on May 27 he fought with magnificent courage, but on May 28 his flagship became separated from the remainder of the fleet. It was isolated, but kept on firing all its guns one battle ship against such overwhelming odds.

For a time she was the solitary target of the Japanese fleet. Shells swept her decks like a cyclone and it was soon evident she must speedily sink. Therefore the admiral, with eight of his staff officers, was removed to the destroyer Bledovy.

All the while the Japanese continued to pour in their storm of shells. Rojestvensky, having fled from his flagship, was now the target of the combined fleet.

The destroyer, now the admiral's flagship, attempted to break away, first pointing her head one way, then another, in her efforts to find a gap in the ring of ships and guns.

Destroyers in Deadly Duel. The Japanese destroyer Sazanami advanced from the lines to meet the admiral's destroyer, and she glided through the water, pouring in a terrible and close fire. The Bledovy became disabled and was unable to use her steering gear, which had been shattered.

It was now that Rojestvensky and his chief of staff were wounded again, and this time the admiral was seriously injured. The Bledovy was boarded by the crew of the Sazanami.

The Japanese searched high and low. All the Russians on the Bledovy were made prisoners, and Rojestvensky was the last man on board to be discovered. He was found hiding in the bottom of the destroyer, bleeding freely from many wounds.

The admiral, who arrived here on May 30, had the forehead bone broken by a splinter of shell. His chest and left thigh also were slightly wounded. He received medical treatment at the naval hospital and is now out of danger.

Japanese Shots Hit Mark. Their torpedo attack in high winds and heavy seas was perfect. Every torpedo that was fired, with rare exceptions, struck. One torpedo resulted in a Russian battleship turning turtle completely.

In the course of twenty hours the torpedo boats sent seven Russian war ships to the bottom. Many of the guns of the Russian fleet were rusty and some of them burst during action.

Furthermore, the Russian warships were in a filthy condition inside and out, and seaweed had grown below their water line.

Admiral Togo on the night before the battle, when he knew from his scouts that the Russians would be off Tsu Island the following morning, slept soundly.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Sick Headache

When your head aches, there is a storm in the nervous system, centering in the brain.

This irritation produces pain in the head, and the turbulent nerve current sent to the stomach causes nausea, vomiting.

This is sick headache, and is dangerous, as frequent and prolonged attacks weaken the brain, resulting in loss of memory, inflammation, epilepsy, fits, dizziness, etc.

Alay this stormy, irritated, aching condition by taking Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills.

They stop the pain by soothing, strengthening and relieving the tension upon the nerves—not by paralyzing them, as do most headache remedies.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do not contain opium, morphine, chloral, cocaine or similar drugs.

"Sick headache is hereditary in my family. My father suffered a great deal, and for many years I have had spells that were so severe that I was unable to attend to my business affairs for a day or so at a time. During a very severe attack of headache, I took Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and they relieved me almost immediately. Since then I take them when I feel the spell coming on and it stops it at once."
