Violated Confidence,

No one who follows the news of the day or reads political and diplomatic history can fail to note the frequent unpleasant situations which arise from violated confidence. Sometimes it is the spoken word which is made public without authority, but more often it is a letter, says Youth's Companion. The most careful writer, if he have thoughtless or unscrupulous suddenly embarrassed. Nor is it a sufficient answer to say that it serves him right; that he ought never to put his opinions on paper if he is unwilling that they should become known. | ceher useful pursuits. A public man may often say as a private citizen what propriety would not allow him to say in his official capacity. The fault lies in a fundamental misconception of the natura of a letter. Every letter not especially addressed to the public should be considered confidential until the writer gives permission for its publication. To treat it otherwise is to show a lack of sense, of honor, of courtesy, or of all three. The most despicable action of all is the publicaof vindicating, or trying to vindicate, ties are $11,297 and assets $27. oneself. This whole matter of confidences and the inviolability of letters is one which touches good taste and good breeding. The real gentleman will no more be gullty of a breach of honor in this direction than he will be guilty of using against an opponent a piece of information which was given to him in confidence, Yet-here is a curious thing-many a person who holds himself to a rigid rule in such matters as have been mentioned will regard the affair quite differently as soon as death steps in. "Blace the writer is no longer alive, there can be no harm, and so forth." is the common introduction to posthumous letters which ought never to have been made public. If the dead hand can keep its grip in the affairs of church and state and land, shall it loose it in matters of honor?

The United States every year expends about $140,000,000 in pensions for wars that are past and somewhere between $180,000,000 and $200,000,000 in being prepared against wars of the future. In the last fiscal year there was paid out for the naval establishment $122,000,000; for the support of the army and the military academy, $77,000,000. Taken altogether, pensions, the navy and the fleet called for $340,000,000. A comparison between the costs of the arts of war and the arts borne by the government is afforded by the fact that the agricultural appropriation for the last fiscal year was $5,942,040. The comparison is made even more striking when we realize that from 1839 to the present day, counting the present proposed appropriation, the aggregate appropriation for the department of agriculture are $65,737,272.12, or $12,000,000 less than was expended on the army last year. Yet we are a peaceful nation, depending largely on agriculture for our prosperity.

Dispatches from Pierre, S. D., tell of the high winds and dust storms. Sixteen Persons Are Killed and Many Others Injured by Fragments of Exploding Shell-Royal Pair, Unharmed, Return to Palace.

Madrid, June 1.- The public rejoicings over the marriage of King Alfonso and Princess Victoria had a terribly dramatic sequel at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon as a bomb thrown from an upper window exploded with deadly effect near the coach occupied by the kind and queen.

Providentially, King Alfonso and Queen Victoria escaped by an electric wire deflecting the bomb, but at least 16 persons, most of them being of the personal and military escort and the ither spectators, were killed. Many others were injured. The following are the killed:

Capt. Barrosa. Lieut. Rysient. Lieut Prendergast.

Six soldiers. The marquise of Golora.

Her daughter. Don Antonio Calvo.

If these cattle and hogs pass the inspectors and are sold to the consumer, the profit is proportionately large.

"Let me explain here that 'lumpy jaw' is a disease which cannot be communicated to man and does not spread to other parts of the animal, I would not hesitate to eat meat from an animal with 'lumpy jaw' if it was otherwise healthy and weil nourished. It is in the tuberculoses cattle and hogs that danger lies, and it is only through the most rigid inspection of meat after it gets into the killingroom that this danger can be met. It is the laxity of inspection service that is responsible for many of the conditions which have been described

"I was transferred from Wichita to Waterloo, Ia., August 10, 1903, and proceeded to install a method of inspection which consisted of marking with a slash on the leg the tubercular hogs. When I insisted upon the viscera being get aside for examination it was said that was trying to "do' my predecessor. In Chicago they Make Complaint to Salmon.

"Failing in their efforts to induce me to relax my inspection, the packers finally made complaints to Mr. the head of the bureau animal industry, who detailed Dr. Morris Wooden, of the Chicago force, to visit Waterloo and took into my methods. He made careful examination of 42 hogs that had been condemned, but held under orders from Washington, Dr. Salmon's explanation of this procedure was a desire to have methods all over the country uniform with those of Chicago.

"According to Chicago methods, Dr. Wooden decided to condemn to lard and grease tanks 76 per cent. of the whole number. On the following morning Dr. Wooden came to the office and proceeded to revise his previous decision, going over his notes, with a result that, instead of the 76 the home consumer is concerned," said per cent, condemned to the tanks, 44 Dr. W. # CRIMINAL POLICY MUST END Rakers Are Told to Continue Their Work Until Evils Are Wiped Out-Speaks at Purdue University.

Lafayette, Ind.-In a Memorial day address Gov. Hanley, addressing a large crowd at Purdue university, dealt at length with public grafting. He said:

"The American people are at the beginning of a great revolution. As yet, there is in a literal sense no call to arms. There are no drum beats, no bugle blasts, no serried ranks, no marching columns, no battlefields strewn with the wounded and the dead, but the revolution is upon us and about us as certainly as though all these were present.

"Stupendous social, economic and political changes are involved. Deeply imbedded in the very core and center of this revolution, running like a thread of gold through all its shifting scenes and changing forms, are certain fundamental principles of human right and of human liberty, and unless we in our day, and especially you, in your day, possess a willingness to seek for these and the wisdom to find them, and the patriotism and the courage to proclaim them, to stand by them and save them when found, the call to arms, the drum beats, the bugle blasts, the serried ranks, the marching columns and the battlefields will come to us and to you as certainly as in the past they came to our fathers.

"The criminal aggressions of incorthe individual must be stayed by legal regulations and wholesome laws courageously enforced, or history will repeat itself in your day as it has in the past. # BUDDING FRUIT TREES.

Wherein the Process Differs from Grafting-The Proper Way of Doing the Work.

Bouding differs from grafting in that only a bud with a small piece of bark ettached is used in place of the scion. Budding can be done with the greatest success towards the close of the period of growth, but it should not be delayed until growth has stopped, as then the bark of the stock will be firmly attached to the wood, making it difficult or impossible to raise the barit so that the bud can be inserted. Stocks from one to three years old are best for budding.

The scion may be cut as soon as the buds have developed on the new growth, generally in July or August, and the leaves are cut off so that a little of the petiole remains as at 1. A T-shaped cut is made in the bark. Usually the vertical cut is made first and in making the transverse cut the

For most fruits, except the cherry, it will be found best to remove the wood from the bud, leaving only the bark. To do this, make a cross-cut one-half inch above the bud, taking pains to cut through the bark without cutting in the wood. fruit grown in the United States. It is assailed by many insects and fungour enemies, most of which can be controlled by spraying. Before the buds start, it is well to spray with strong Bordeaux mixture or with copper sulphate solution. The Bordeaux mixture is best. This is made by combining five pounds copper sulphate, five pounds fresh lime unslacked, 50 gallons of water. This is considered safe and effective. It is essential that the lime should be of good quality, well-Indianapolis. - Rudolph Donnelly, burned and fresh. Be sure and get pure copper sulphate, as some of the stuff sold on the market under that name is badly adulterated. Slack the time and dissolve the copper sulphate separately. The copper sulphate will alssolve much more quickly if hot water is used. The copper sulphate can be kept for a long time without deteriorating, and the lime can be kept for each stake fasten a piece of twine or about four weeks, if it is kept covered an untwisted strand of rope extending with water. The solutions must be well stirred before being used. Do not mix the solutions in concentrated form, cautions the Farmer's Review, but pour them into a barrel partly filled with water. It is necessary to strain the lime through a cloth or strainer, strained. This is to prevent the spraying nozzle from being clogged.

> The second application of the spray should be given as soon as the apple blossoms fall. Then two or three more sprayings should be given at intervals of two or three weeks.

He will set out some trees about a half mile from home and wishes to know if he can mulch them with stable manure so as to avoid cultivation. He intended to do this until he saw an article by the writer on cherry growing, asserting that mulching caused the roots to grow too close to the top of the ground. He wants to know if apple, pear and apricot trees will no affected the same way.

The position that roots take in the soil whether near the surface or deeper down depends to a considerable extent on the region, says the Prairie Farmer. Under shallow cultivation the oxygen of the air penetrates the soil. Oxygenation sets free latent plant food. At just the point in the soll where air and moisture come together to the best degree, there the feeding roots are more freely developed. A heavy mulch of straw shuts the air out of the soll, brings moisture to the surface and develops feeding rootlets on the surface. This happens when we mulch with straw to the depth of 12 to 20 inches. If it was fine straw and pretty well compacted a lesser depth would produce the same result.

Under such conditions the writer has seen tree roots as large as your finger on the surface of the ground. As long as the heavy mulch was kept up no harm resulted from this surface rooting. When however the strawy litter rots away exposing this root system, then the tree suffers. Where the soil can be cultivated once a week or oftener if crusted by rainfall, then a soil mulch is the best of all because aeration of the soil and the development of latent plant food can go forward while conserving moisture. A mulch of two or three inches of stable litter loose upon the surface would not be likely to bring the root system to the surface in one season. An occasional working of the disk or cultivator running through this mulch would combine the best features of both methods.

As the trees get larger with a spread of branches of six to eight feet or more it becomes more difficult to cultivate close to the trunk of the tree, We have secured excellent results by mulching the row of fruit trees to the width of six to eight feet from end to end one way and keep the remaining portion of the orchard open with plow, disk, harrow or cultivator. We have had most excellent results in orchards with this method. The mulching of stable litter conserved some degree of moisture, increased the fertillty of the soil and kept the weeds In the case of a few varieties of down on the ground that could not

May Change Date.

It is possible that the national encampment of the G. A. R. may change the date of Memorial day and their wives, residents of this from May 30 to the last Sunday county. The cost will be about in May. There seems to be at least one good reason for doing this. The day is now given over largely to sports, and the young people especially are in danger of forgetting the significance which its promoters had in view. The old soldiers have vainly protested against what seems to them and to many others a desceration of the day-particularly in the larger cities. Changing the day to Sunday would necessarily prevent much of the interference with the solemn ceremonies which is now experienced.

He held the advantage, for his foes numbering at least four, could not be sure that their fire was directed at the daring Federal, while all John had to do was to make his shots count when he could.

This singular duel in the dark was kept up for the space of several min-Shouls prose, shouls that were significant of rage and pain, for Colonel John was not doing all this work without some result, and the satellites of the major, perhaps even that worthy himself, had ore this tasted of his lend:

Such a mimic battle within the Confederate lines was apt to draw attention, and John had especial reasons for desiring to make a speedy exit from the room before a squad of fresh enemies arrived on the scene.

His later efforts were therefore directed toward discovering the posttion of the door.

As eyesight was of little avail in So saying the major wheeled and that smoky atmosphere be found himself compelled to depend upon his sense of touch.

Groping along the walt he presently came to contact with the object of his solichinde.

To open was but the work of a second, and slipping through the narrow space be found bimself breathing the pure air. It was a relief from the smoke of the interior.

The last sounds he heard were the grouns of those who nursed their wounds, and the loud though husky voice of the doughty major calling for scheme that had flashed into his mind

> Once free from the building Colonel John made his way to the road. He could hear the voices of men who were running in the direction of the house, and found it a difficult maiter to avoid the detachment of Confederates from a neighboring camp.

They were drawn in that direction by the loud cries, accompanied by the quick percussion of revolver-shots that throbbed upon the air, for such things do not occur without a meaning, and in war times that meaning can be readily understood.

Colonel John had already been through a considerable experience during this night.

To few men in a year's time do alcentures come such as had been his portion since old Phoebus dropped his glowing face behind the hills that lay to the west of Atlanta.

His was a warrior nature, however, and one that could not be overwhelm-

Missfortunes might come thick and fast by fair means and foul, but John Ridgeway would never yield himself a prisoner until every endeavor that lay in his power had been made. So, when he heard these Confeder-

He desired no encounter.

No Mystery at All.

"Speaking of strange and unaccountable experiences," remarked the man with the bulbous nose, "I am reminded of one that happened to a friend of mine in the summer of '93, while he was at the Columbian exposition. He was in the Fine Arts building, looking at the picture called 'Breaking Home Ties,' when he heard a voice behind him say distinctly, 'That's what is happening at your house, over on the west side. He turned and looked to see who it was that spoke, and there was nobody near him."

"Is that all?" asked the man with the fishy eye. "No: the strangest part is to come. When he went home in the evening he found that his youngest brother had eloped with the hired girl and gone to St. Louis. It had taken place, too, at the exact moment when he heard the voice. How do you explain that, I'd like to know? Was it telepathy? Or what was it?" "H'mph! Who tells that story?"

A Cake-Guessing Contest-An Attractive Lily Luncheon - A Flower Party for the Children-Choosing Partners,

This is a clever little skit to fill in a few moments that might lag. Write give a prettily decorated cake. What kind of cake should a jeweler

A Lily Luncheon.

This affair is most attractive. For the center piece use a large bunch of white Illies with the natural foliage: shade the candles with white; use glass holders, winding them with smilax. The place cards are in shape of lilles with the lettering in gold.

Of course the hostess will wear white, and if there is any color it must be yellow. Serve the regulation luncheon menu, but the ice or cream may be frozen in "lily" forms or served in a real calla lily. This is a decided novelty, but is a practical one. White candles should be the only artificial light in the dining room and they make the proper setting for this unusually pretty affair.

Party for Children.

A mother I know has planned such a unique afternoon party for her two children, aged eight and ten. If the weather is fair there will be games out of doors, and the hunt for flowers (artificial ones) will be most realistic. Each child is to be given a basket with a bow of ribbon on the handle.

The one who finds the most blossoms will be given a box of marshmallows or butterenp candles, which is not to ue opened until the child gets home.

After the hunt a wreath of flowers is to adorn each child's head, and for the remainder of the time the guests will be called by the name of the flower composing the wreath. If anyone forgets and calls the real name, a forfelt is to be paid of a flower from their wreath. At the end of a half hour a count is taken and the one who has paid the fewest forfeits is permitted to choose the games to be played for the space of 15 minutes,

The dining room is going to be very pretty with a large gilded basket for the centerpiece, pink ribbons from it leading to the places for the little basket will contain a flower for each with a tiny gift tled to it. A simple menu is to be served, consisting of clam boulllon, wafers, lettnee, sandwiches, ice cream in tiny baskets, with a flower tied on the handle, lady fingers and maccaroons so dear to childish hearts.

To Choose Partners.

The nickname of states provide a good way to select partners. Write the names of the states for the girls and the nicknames for the men, and then let them find each other. A lively time is likely to ensue. To save the hostess from wracking her brains the list follows: North Carolina-"Old North."

New York-"Empire State." South Carolina-"Palmetto State." Rhode Island-"Little Rhody." Ohlo-"Buckeye." Connecticut-"Nutmeg State," Delaware-"Blue Hen." New Hampshire-"Granite State." Pennsylvania-"Keystone State." Louisiana-"Creole State," Illinois-"Sucker State." Indiana-"Hoosier State." Massachusetts-"Bay State." Texas-"Lone Star State." Maine-"Pine Tree State." Virginia-"Old Dominion."

Other coal fields lie in the desert west of Green river. At two places near iributaries of the Fremont river the coals are burning, and have been without cessation since they were discovered by the earliest explorer. The origin of those fires has been the subject of much speculation.

Three explanations are commonly heard among the Mormons, who inhabit this peculiar country where the mountains burn.

One explanation is that lightning has by chance struck the edges of these coal beds at various times since these mountains were lifted up.

Another is that forest fires raying in the mountains came in contact with exout that the forests in this desolate region are too sparse for forest fires to

Still another and more common explanation is that the Indians built ledges of the mountains against the

Out of the Toils.

Both Parted Their Hair in the Middle, But One's Part Was Much the Wider.

One of the veteran lawyers of Burlington, Vt., is A. V. Spalding, writes F. H. Kelsey of Lowell, in the Boston Globe. One day when he was trying a case in the Chittenden county court he called as a witness a stylishly dressed young man who parted his hair in the middle, a practice that used to be regarded as indicative of a "dude." The young man, however, gave his testimony in a plain, straightforward manner and resumed his seat.

When the argument came to be made by the counsel opposed to Mr. Spalding, reference was made in a peculiarly cutting manner to the toppish looking witness who parted his hair in The middle.

On rising to reply, Mr. Spalding said: "I fail to see how the fact that this young man parts his hair in the middle has any bearing in this case. He certainly has a right to part his hair in the middle, and he parts it exactly as my brother on the other side does his, only," he added, pointing to the perfectly bald head of the opposing lawyer, "he doesn't part it quite so wide."

OIL INVESTIGATION GLOSED

RANK INJUSTICE IS SHOWN BY TESTIMONY ADDUCED.

Report and Recommendations of Interstate Commerce Commission Looked for with Interest.

Cleveland, O., May 58 .- The Standard Oil Investigation has closed. Congress and the country will wait with interest the report of the interstate commerce commission and its recommendations of measures to be taken and legislation required to regulate this gigantic corporation and to force it to conform to decent business rules and morai principles in its operations.

It is known that, while the commissioners will recommend some legisiation directed against the Standard Oil company and other octopus-like corporations, they also will use much of the evidence gathered during this investigation to proceed against the railroads for rank injustices done to other shippers in their discriminations in favor of the Standard Oil.

From evidence given in the Investigation it can be stated positively that every one of the important railroad systems of the country truckles to the Standard, buying from it lubricating oils at exorbitantly high prices, granting discriminatory rates to all parts of the country, wherever they can be used to the advantage of the oil trust as against its competitors, giving excessive mileage allowances on its tank cars, manipulating rates so that practically Standard Oil has the benefit of secret low rates which other oil shippers do not know about, and finally, in alding the Standard Oil to obtain information regarding shipments of their competitors to be used in killing business of independent dealers.

HOMELY PHILOSOPHY.

It isn't always lucky to trust people who trust to luck.

Romance is sweet sixteen, religion is sixty if she's a day.

Happy is he who never knows when he gets the worst of it. A great achievement doesn't need a brass band accompaniment. Most of us expect better oblivary notices than are coming to us. Those who yield to temptation are generally looking for a chance. The optimist looks forward to tomorrow, the pessimist sighs for yes-

There might not be so much room at the top if there were fewer cushions at the bottom.

Most of us are dissatisfied, some with what we have and some with what we haven't.

The present gets away from a lot of people while they sit on park benches worrying about the future.

NO KOWTOWING FOR HIM. A WOMAN'S ORDEAL

Hotel Man Who Was Not to Be Overawed by Dignitaries of State.

They tell this one on former Gov.

George Hoadly of Ohio: Once upon a time, in the midst of a suffered twenty campaign, Mr. Hoadly was to deliver a speech at a little town in the great and glorious Buckeye State. When he reached the one hotel the town boasted he walked up to the register and wrote his name. The proprietor-headporter-steward-headwaiter-depot - runner was behind the desk in his shirt sleeves, his hat on the back of his head, and a cigar stump held between his teeth. When the visitor had put down his John Hancock, the factotum turned the register around, read without the flicker of an eyelid the name there written, wrote "10" beside it with a lead pencil, and said: "You kin jest take yer grip right up that stairway there an' back down the hall clean to th' end. Yer room's right on th' left hand side of th' hall, in th' corner-number 10,"

With considerable astonishment and not a little injured dignity Ohio's chief executive pointed to his name, smiled faintly, and said:

"I am George Hondly." "Yep: I notice," said the rustic without turning a hair. "An' yer room's right there at th' end of th' hall-number 10. Can't miss it."

With more hauteur, and almost quivering with outraged importance, the guest said impressively:

"I am George Hoadly, governor of the state of Ohlo!"

Turning, then, with a look of exasperated impatience on his face, the hotel man exclaimed: "Well, what d'ye expect me t' do-klas ye?"-Judge. Laconic.

DREADS DOCTOR'S QUESTIONS

Thousands Write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and Receive Valuable Advice Absolutely Confidential and Free

There can be no more terrible ordeal to a delicate, sensitive, refined woman than to be obliged to answer certain questions in regard to her private ills, even when those questions are asked by her family physician, and many continue to suffer rather than submit to examinations which so many physicians propose in order to intelligently trent the disease; and this is the reason why so many physicians fall to cure female disease.

This is also the reason why thousands upon thousands of women are corresponding with Mrs Pinkhum, daughtern-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. To her they can coulide every detail of their illness, and from her great knowledge, obtained from years of experience in treating female ills, Mrs. Pinkham can advise siek women more wisely than the local physician. Read how Mrs. Pinkham helped Mrs. T. C. Willadsen of Manning, Ia, She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkbaou: "I can truly say that you have saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude in words. Refore I wrote to you telling you how I felt, I had declared for over two years steady, and spent lots of money in medicines besides, but it all failed to do me any good. I had female trouble and would daily have faint-ing spells, backache, bearing-nown pains, and my mouthly periods were very irregular and finally ceases. I wrote to you for your ad-vice and resolved a letter full of instructions just what to do, and also commenced to take Lydia E. Finkham's Veretable Compound, and I have been restored to perfect health. Had it not been for you I would have been in my grave to-day."

Mountains of proof establish the fact that no medicine in the world equals Lydia E, Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for restoring women's health.
