

LARGER CEMETERY CULVER MUST HAVE

Prompt Action Necessary to Provide Room for Future Burials---Nearly Every Lot in Present Cemetery has been Sold Off.

The need of additional cemetery room is so apparent and pressing that the local lodge of Knights of Pythias discussing the ways and means for either buying enough adjoining land to more than double the present capacity or securing a plot elsewhere for a new cemetery. It is said that there are but two or three unsold lots in the present cemetery, and it is evident that something must be done at once to provide more lots.

It is the purpose of the K. P.'s if the project receives the approval of the members to assume the full ownership and charge of the addition of the new cemetery and to sell lots at a reasonable price. It is also a part of the plan, if the present cemetery is made larger, to make desirable improvements in the way of walks and drives and to keep the cemetery in a clean tasteful condition. At present it is very much neglected. Weeds and wild growth of various kinds are rank and the spasmodic cleaning up that the little "city of the dead" gets at Memorial time is not sufficient to keep it in fit condition.

Should the K. P. lodge decide to undertake the project which it now has under discussion, the effort should have the hearty and sympathetic co-operation of the entire community.

The foregoing was put into type two weeks ago. Meantime the members of the K. P. lodge have been discussing the matter in a personal way, and at Tuesday evening's meeting the subject came up for formal consideration. The majority of the membership being in favor of lodge action, a committee consisting of Henry Speyer, Ezra Koontz and L. C. Wiseman was appointed to negotiate for a tract not to exceed five acres. This committee on Wednesday interviewed Ezra Blanchard who owns land adjoining the cemetery, and a Miss Postlewait who has 40 acres across the road. Mr. Blanchard wants $1,000 for an acre and a third, which puts the piece out of consideration, and Miss Postlewait will not sell a small tract at any price.

As the matter stands, it looks as if Culver will be compelled to acquire a plot in some other part of town and lay out a new cemetery.

BRILLIANT CONCLUSION

Final Days of Summer School a Season to be Remembered.

GALAXY OF ENTERTAINMENTS

Boat Races, Water Contests, Lawn Fete, Sham Battle, Ball.

Following a day of exciting racing under sails and oars by the fourteen cutters of the fleet the Summer Naval school signalized a social success in its lawn fete on Monday night. Notwithstanding the coolness of the evening there was a general turning out of the friends of the school from the hotels and cottages around the lake. The expansive lawn which stretches lakeward from the main buildings was illuminated by electric lamps and Japanese lanterns, and bordering one of the gravel walks was a row of tents in which were fortune-telling and other attractions, including a creche where two of the huskiest cadets simulated in a most touching manner infantile woes and distresses. Barkers called up the crowd in stentorian eloquence to test their skill at target shooting and throwing at the nigger babies, sleight-of-hand performers were plying their mysterious arts to amuse the passersby, and the elephant, nosing in his hay, was not the least factor in the ever-changing scenes of this clever representation of the Midway and Pike of world's fair memory. Meantime stereopticon views were being thrown on a broad stretch of canvas, and the united bands of the school and Culver were discoursing excellent music. The bullfight given by the Spanish cadets in the characteristic costume of the ring, was a keen replica of the real thing, and was received with shouts of appreciation. The White Swan double-deck barge, brilliantly illuminated, was moored at the end of the long pier and furnished a popular resort for those who cared for refreshments or desired a tete-a-tete. A free ride on the lake in the cutters was another of the many forms of entertainment offered to the guests.

On Tuesday the aquatic contests, which included high dives, long-distance and under-water swimming, water polo and other stunts, were among the most novel exhibitions of the finals. In the afternoon Congressman George E. Foss, chairman of the house committee on naval affairs, delivered an address, following the sham battle between the land and naval forces, and at 5:20 the final review and parade of the battalion was given. The final ball was held at night. This was a brilliant function, and was a fitting close of the most successful session the Summer school has had.

On Wednesday morning the medals were awarded, and the noon trains carried the majority of the cadets to their homes.

A MONSTER FISH.

A Buffalo Fish Weighing Seventy-Five Pounds Captured in Lake.

George Davis has the credit of capturing the largest fish ever seen in Lake Maxinkuckee—a 75-pound buffalo. This king of the waters was dead and floating when he discovered it, and how or where it met its fate is a mystery. Mr. Davis, who was accompanied by J. O. Finch, found it near the outlet. It may have been a victim of some dynamite, or it may have died a natural death from old age. Whatever the cause it was an enormous specimen measuring 4 feet in length and 35 inches in circumference. Mr. Davis has stuffed the skin, and for a long time it will doubtless be looked upon as a curiosity.

Annual Picnic.

A crowd of goodly proportions enjoyed the annual picnic of the G. A. R. and I. O. O. F. at Peoples' grove on Saturday at an all-day picnic and reunion. Lawyer Foster of Knox spoke in the morning, and Rev. W. M. Nicely of Culver and Judge Hess of Plymouth in the afternoon. J. L. Mosher was president of the day. The K. O. T. M. band of Maxinkuckee furnished the music in an acceptable manner.

LOCAL ITEMS

—Two new brick crosswalks have been laid on South Main street during the past week.

—A new-born daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Walter Jones died on Monday and was buried Tuesday.

—Work on the public school building, which has been delayed pending the arrival of lumber, has been resumed.

—Rev. Harry Heinberger of Kewanee preached at the M. E. church last Sunday. Rev. W. M. Nicely holding services at Poplar Grove.

—A young lady living near Logansport has slept a whole month. You never hear of a married woman losing all that time from lecturing her other half.

—The newspapers have recently been telling of a young lady who jerked her head back to keep from being kissed and broke her neck. And it was so uncalled for!

—Next Sunday the East side will give an excursion on the lake. Tickets will be good on all the boat trips. The Maxinkuckee band will give an afternoon concert in the railroad park.

—A dog is taxable the day it becomes three months of age and if the owner does not have a receipt for the tax from the township trustee or from the assessor he is liable to arrest and fine for the non-payment of dog tax.

—A considerable number of Culverites will attend the ice cream social at Wm. Myers', near the Poplar Grove on church Friday evening, and all are pretty sure to have a good time as the Poplar Grove ladies know how to entertain.

—Sixteen cadets went to Chicago on a two-days' sight-seeing tour last week under the personal escort of Major Gignilliat. They saw all of the best things for boys to see, were housed at the Auditorium and had a royal time from start to finish.

—A "great bible scholar" named Stevens predicts the end of the world in 1982 as the result of earthquakes. This gives us 76 years to close up our office affairs and our wife time to sew on a suspender button that dropped off just before the Chicago world's fair.

—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cole last Friday welcomed a son to their home circle, and Landlord Lamson of the Ross House of Plymouth and the Palmer House of Culver is feeling proud of his new dignity of being grandfather to as fine a boy as Plymouth ever saw.

—Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady of Toledo, O., preached at the academy on Sunday. He is an Episcopal clergyman, a graduate of Annapolis and former chaplain in the navy. He is also a literary man of note, his name being familiar to the readers of magazine and fictional works.

—Dr. Rea is persistent in his efforts to secure a flowing well on the southeast corner of his lot, and will not abandon the work until he has reached a depth of 100 to 115 feet. Something over 70 feet is the record Wednesday morning, and the drill has just struck the blue clay under which it is expected to get artesian water.

—Every morning at 6 o'clock 30 gallons of Culver's artesian water are sent in cans to Logansport for drinking purposes in the Pennsylvania's offices. Last spring there was an epidemic of typhoid among the office employees, and it was attributed to the impure river water. Since that time the daily supply has been obtained at Culver.

HORSE THIEF CAUGHT.

Logansport Negro Boy Overtaken at Hibbard by Officers.

On Monday evening two men in a buggy drove into Hibbard on the trail of a horse and buggy which had been stolen from Plymouth an hour before. They were informed that a young negro driving the rig described had passed through the station, headed for Culver, less than five minutes before. The pursuers, who were Deputy Sheriff Head and Charles Inks, the owner of the property, overhauled the thief just outside the village, took him into custody and started him back to Plymouth where he had stolen the rig from a hitch rack near Leonard's furniture store a few minutes after Mr. Inks had arrived in town from his farm a short distance south. The thief is eighteen years of age, the son of a barber at the Murdock hotel in Logansport.

A Social Item.

Misses Lillian Weiss and Jennie Keen delightfully entertained about thirty guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Weiss last Friday evening. Games and contests furnished amusement until a late hour. Prizes were won by Misses Lucretia Rea and Olive Hayes. Refreshments were served by little Edith Weiss and cousin, Fay Landeman of Rochester. Miss Weiss leaves today with her parents for their new home in Naperville, Ill., where she expects to take a post-graduate course at Northwestern college.

Republican County Convention.

The republican voters of Marshall county are requested to meet in mass convention in Plymouth, on Saturday, Sept. 15, 1906, at 2:30 p. m. for the purpose of nominating a full county ticket.

WATERWORKS CANVASS

The soliciting committee—Messrs. T. E. Slattery, S. C. Shilling, H. M. Speyer, S. E. Medbourn, John Osborn—are circulating the subscription papers for the $4,000 preferred stock which must be sold in order to insure the building of the plant. With the amounts already signed and those which the committee feel reasonably sure of getting, $2,000 of the stock ought to be regarded as secured, leaving an equal amount as an uncertain factor. The committee will endeavor to see every man whom they think will be a possible subscriber to even a single $10 share of stock.

The investment is a good one in point of safety and liberal returns. The preferred stock is guaranteed to pay 3 per cent semi-annually. This ought to bring out every spare dollar in town.

The business men and the most progressive citizens generally are all in favor of giving Culver the fire protection that it needs, and the prestige which will accrue from having a system of waterworks. Those who want the town to grow are the supporters of the project.

Be a booster when it comes to advancing the interests of your town. It pays every time. That is the experience of all towns when questions of public improvement are under consideration.

THE CULVER CITIZEN.

CULVER, INDIANA.

Denatured Alcohol.
Many inquiries show at the same time interest in and ignorance of denatured alcohol. In a word, denatured alcohol is alcohol, so changed by the addition of some other substance as to prevent its use as a beverage. Commissioner Yorkes is in Europe investigating methods there. The commissioner, under the law, must see that sufficient wood alcohol is added. Twenty per cent. was mentioned in congress as the proper quantity, but in Germany ten per cent. is considered sufficient. In Great Britain five per cent. of wood alcohol and a still smaller proportion of naphtha are used. Dr. Willey recommends ten per cent. of wood alcohol and one per cent. of pyridine. The tax on alcohol is now $1.10 a gallon. This makes its use for mechanical purposes impossible. But free from tax and denatured it is thought that alcohol can be made for less than ten cents a gallon, and could be sold at a profit for a few cents more than that. In that event its use in place of gasoline and kerosene as a power producer and for light will undoubtedly be very great, as in Germany. It will be a boon, says the Indianapolis News, especially to the farmer and small mechanic for small power engines. With a mantle, its use for light is economical. Alcohol can be distilled from any number of things, as potatoes, beets, corn—the stalks as well as the grain—the waste of molasses factories, etc. The agricultural department thinks that potatoes will be a chief source of our supply. A yield of 300 bushels of potatoes to the acre will produce 255 gallons of alcohol. In Europe, a kind of potatoes grown for cattle will yield nearly 500 gallons to the acre.

Curability of Leprosy.
Unna, of Hamburg, like many other conspicuous dermatologists, is of the opinion that there is a possibility of curing leprosy. In his report read before the International Medical congress at Lisbon he states that he has been successful in attacking cutaneous leprosy, not macular or anesthetic leprosy, and gives his experience, gained from treating 60 lepers during a period of 22 years. His sufferers were private patients, more or less well to do, all leading a useful life and wishing most emphatically to be cured so that they could again take up their several occupations. This fact is important, Unna thinks, in contrast to what is observed in the patients of leper hospitals, for example, in Norway, who are very poor people, coming from the worst surroundings, shunned by their neighbors and finding in the hospital an asylum with all possible comforts—cleanliness, sympathy and freedom from the cares of poverty and the daily fight against hardships. Externally, Unna advises hot baths of natural waters containing sulphur and sodium or potassium, but especially his so-called ink bath (Dintens bath), containing ferrous sulphate and tannic acid; the washing with carbolic acid or green soap; massage and pressure upon the skin; the use of pyrogallol and resocin, chrysarobin and ichthyol, and later the use of Paquin's canthar. Internally, the author uses ichthyol, camphor, salicylic acid and chaulmoogra oil, which he calls the specific par excellence for cutaneous leprosy.

Do Englishmen Dislike Us?
As to the English, however, the facts would seem to show that they have more liking for Americans than dislike of them. Or, in other words, more English are friendly to Americans than otherwise. During the civil war enough of them were friendly to prevent their government from interfering in that contest and from breaking our blockade. During the Spanish war, while the benevolent attitude of Lord Salisbury was undoubtedly a matter of wise policy, the cordial approval which it received from the British people as a whole was significant of much. Since that time nothing has occurred to change this feeling. Many Englishmen, says The Bookman, no doubt, detest us. But in a general way, Americanism has become something of a passport to British liking. Our cousins may be a little jealous of our astonishing prosperity, they may not think our manners very good; they are convinced that we are most eccentric. But when all is said, they recognize in us, as in no other people, a kinship which is very real.

OUR SERIAL

Lavender Creighton's Lovers

By OLIVIA B. STROHM

(Copyright, 1905, by Olivia B. Strohm.)

CHAPTER VII.
A few days later, attended by a small military escort, the party left the fort.

Winslow explained to the commandant that there was double reason for haste—in their unwillingness to further trespass on his hospitality, no less than in the impatience of the ladies to join their relatives. Reasons which, though with all hospitable intent, the colonel supplemented by the practical suggestion that they take advantage of the present frosty condition of the trail. A little later, when the spring thaw had set in, the swamp lands would be well nigh impassable.

There being no available guides at the fort, it was decided that the soldiers accompany them to the nearest Indian village, a half day's march away, where they could obtain ponies and a guide for the journey north.

The little party arrived at nightfall within the Indian settlement, and the soldiers returned to the fort, having made arrangements with the chief of the village for their safe conduct.

Left to themselves in the gloomy wigwam, the travelers had much ado to be cheerful. The place was ill-smelling and close, and the flickering freight but served to bring into bolder relief the grotesque shadows that flouted them from every corner.

The loose-fitting skins of which the walls were made, creaked and flapped dismally. The brush of a fox and the head of a deer hung over the doorway; stray feathers blew over the floor as the wind stole in. Mrs. Creighton gave a shiver of disgust.

"How gruesome this place is. Trophies of dead things everywhere! I feel as though we were entertaining ghosts."

Lavender laughed low—uneasily. "Hush, and she lifted a warning finger. 'Somebody is outside.'"

Winslow lifted the heavy flap that curtained the threshold. A rush of air made the torch burn low, and in the darkness they could dimly discern the figure of a man—tall, with a waving eagle plume above a bearded head.

In friend, said Winslow. "Come stranger made no move to but the 'is the white maiden here?' His speech was guttural, but not harsh. 'Where is the maid who is not afraid of an Osage arrow? Owatoga would speak with her.'"

Owatoga! Then he had followed them. Was it as friend or foe? Lavender rose and went to the opening. "I am here, Owatoga."

There was a nervous quiver in her voice, and she grasped Winslow's arm, but the gigantic figure outside made no move nearer.

"You will need a guide—Owatoga knows the forest," he said.

Winslow dropped the curtain, and stood outside in the darkness, keeping close to Lavender as he addressed the Indian.

"You are a friend to this white maid?"

For answer, the other said, with irrelevance: "The arrow was taken out quick; Owatoga was not left to die."

"Then you are better? I am so glad," Lavender said, and the Indian responded, gravely: "Owatoga is well; he will be the guide for the white people tomorrow."

Without waiting for thanks, without further explanation, he disappeared, and Lavender whispered, triumphantly, as they reentered the wigwam: "I knew we could trust him!"

Next day they left the village, led only by their self-appointed guide. The ponies and other equipment had been bought of the Indians. Part of their route was to be that known as the Clara trail. The town of New Madrid was their first destination—there they would await the earliest boat north.

On stout Indian ponies they rode; sometimes over damp and slippery paths, but oftener where the hoofs beat rhythmic measure on the frozen way. Occasionally they crossed wandering bands of Indians, meeting with solid indifference or friendly grunts, but never a hostile show. By night camp fires kept off the cold, and sterner foes, whose hungry howling was a mocking lullaby.

Owatoga rode ahead, rigid—silent as a slain chieftain on his horse awaiting burial—the quick and the dead together.

Winslow's spirits rose with the occasion, and he beguiled with cheerful talk and unwearied attentions the "outing," as he laughingly called it.

Mrs. Creighton, too, rallied all her physical forces, and bore without flinching the discomforts of the hard travel.

America, alone, was miserable—the picture of comic distress.

Lavender was her buoyant self, and for the first time appealed to Charles in a purely personal way. Heretofore he had regarded her merely as a beautiful, but unessential factor in the situation—gradually she had come to be the sum of it.

Bent upon ambitious hopes, his future late in carving, love was in Winslow's mind an unwelcome guest; an intruder whose visit was to be deferred as long as possible. But there were signs of its coming; as Winslow watched Lavender—observed her tender thoughtfulness toward her mother—her regard for the welfare of all. He remembered the picture she made when seated in the wood with the Indian's head on her lap. Bare-headed, her hood the wounded man's pillow, the dying sun tipping her hair with arrow-points of bronze, she had seemed a wraith of daylight in the gathering shades. This revelation of the softer side of the girl's nature, of her ministrant care and dauntlessness in danger, touched him where ball-room blandishments or mere blithe maidenhood had failed.

She rode in advance, often turning for a word or smile. Often there were scarlet berries at her throat, or leaves twisted in mocking imitation of Owatoga's headdress.

Winslow's pleasure in the sight—his growing joy in her company, was dampened by self-reproach. Had all his hopes, his ambition for a career in the land of promise, come to this? That he could find content and satisfying happiness in the mere presence of a woman?

At last they came in sight of the Mississippi; dark, silent, the waters rolled, a vast moat; beyond it, steep and sheer, a wall of rock. To the travelers, ignorant of all that lay behind, that rocky wall might have been the fortress of the setting sun.

The spring was early, and ice drifted helplessly under its torn cerements of snow. They were not far from the settlement of New Madrid, and it was determined to follow the course of the river until the town was reached. Slowly northward, for the spring rains had begun, and the fens and marshes were slimy underfoot, and foggy overhead.

The river, bearing its icy burden away to the south, served them in guidance grim, but true.

At last they reached the point directly opposite New Madrid. The squat stone cabins of the settlement were huddled together on the farther bank like great cakes of ice thrown from the river.

The day was gloomy; the blustering wind, hug-ridden, hurled snow and rain in their faces with alternate spite. "This is not exactly a welcome, warm and heartfelt, is it?" laughed

Winslow, as they dismounted and stood on the bank of the gray river under a scowling sky.

Out of the dusk loomed a group of wigwams, and Owatoga went forward to reconnoiter. He returned in company with another Indian whom he had engaged to ferry them over. Their few household goods had been carried in crates, bound with deer skin to the backs of ponies, and these were transferred to one pirogue. Two others were reserved for the passengers.

They arranged for the sale of the ponies and hospitality for the night, but with the first dawn the party embarked on the river.

One Indian stood in the prow, pushing aside with a long pole the cakes of ice which drifted like inquisitive monsters, close to the driving keel.

America cowered in abject fear in the stern; alternately invoking the wrath of Heaven upon the rash undertaking, and beseeching Divine aid in its outcome.

The other women bore the discomfort and danger with fortitude, even pleasure. In both was a strong sense of the dramatic, the picturesque. To Lavender, especially, this was as a draught of wine—this race with the swirling ice on the dark water in the cold gray dawn. Here and there a vain star yet dallied for a last look at herself in the watery mirror.

All was quiet in the village as they neared the shore, and the boats rubbing their sides together in friendly fashion as they grated on the sand, was the only sound.

There was no tavern then in the town, but every cabin had a spare bed and seat at table where strangers were allowed to stay. For it was scarcely a welcome which these frontier folk extended—it was rather a tolerant sufferance. Such a return in money or trade as the guest saw fit to make, was accepted, but none was ever demanded. Their doors were open, and with the opening of the door they considered duty done; the stranger could make shift to find his own nook in the chimney corner.

Such fare the travelers found, and for Lavender the style held a quaint, attractive interest.

"I like this kind of hospitality," she said one day. "I like their independent attitude. What they give is freely given, and one feels that it is without effort."

"Entirely so," Winslow agreed, dryly, "and I don't like it. 'Pot luck,' as they call it, never appealed to me. I rather enjoy being made over."

CHAPTER VIII.

Suddenly, as if to surprise them, came the spring.

The winter carpet of sodden leaves was changed to one of bright young grass. Pussy-willows, like molting birds, dotted the marshy land with their yellow feathers, and every shady nook was dappled with pale and drooping wild-flowers.

On an afternoon in early March, Winslow and Lavender strolled to the water's edge to look for the boat which was hourly expected. A skiff was moored on the beach, and Lavender jumped to its prow, and, shading her eyes from the dancing sunlight, gazed down the river.

"In faith, a fine figure-head," Winslow called, then stood, with the malicious enjoyment sometimes felt in defying conscience, watching her with every sense alive to the poise of her head and delicate wrist—to the curves of the slender figure in the homespun gown, as it swayed unsteadily in the rocking boat.

From her belt dangled a bunch of dogwood blossoms—the first trophy of the season.

"See, look! they are coming!" and prodding joyously, she shook the frail skiff until the oarlocks rattled. Winslow sprang into the boat with her, his arm steadying her swaying figure, his hand in hers.

The black hulk of the unwieldy keel-boat was plainly visible—a dark line in the agate of river and sky.

Soon they could distinguish the forms of men on shore as they walked with bent head, and arms straining at the long cordelle, and there was a chorus of greeting.

It was indeed a cosmopolitan cry. The foreign twang of Spaniard and Frenchman joined to the lusty call of the American pioneer, while here and there an Indian gave a whoop of welcome, and even America added her unctuous dialect to the greeting that sounded over the water.

On came the men, and after them the boat, drawn like the carcass of some huge thing of the sea.

A landing was soon made, and the captain came ashore—a swaggering, ill-conditioned fellow, whose ox-like strength and ferocity of temper held his little world in check.

There was clamorous outcry for goods expected or space for new cargo, but it consumed little time, since a large dry goods box carried the average shipment.

The appearance of the boat—her crew and passengers, was anything but prepossessing. Rough, uncouth, and, for the most part, depraved, the prospect of a journey with such men was disheartening.

But Winslow and his party resolved to make the best of it, keeping themselves and their inopportune refinement as much in the background as possible. Cramped quarters were provided them, and when the boat was ready they took leave of the settlement, "with surprisingly little regret, considering your fondness for 'pot luck,'" Winslow said, laughingly to Lavender.

The boat made slow progress, but they found ample entertainment in the beauties of the view. The sky and water, the now verdant banks on either side, were constant food for thought or converse. But to the majority of their fellow-voyagers, blind to shifting cloud and changing shadow, to ice-seamed bluff and towering pine, the hours dragged wearily.

Gambling was the chief diversion, and most of the men were inveterate players. Among these was a once wealthy planter journeying in company with an octoroon slave. He had lost a fortune at the gaming table, but was possessed with a fever to win it back at a like hazard. The woman usually watched his play, and her influence alone had thus far prevented his utter ruin. Over his shoulder she often hung, and her dark comeliness would attract him from the dice or cards.

Toward the close of the second day's travel Winslow walked into the forward cabin, where the planter sat at cards with two men. One of them, Pat Finch, the captain, shouted as Winslow entered: "Take a hand?"

"No, thanks, I'll look on."

There was silence, broken only by the rattle of coin, and the oaths of the players.

The air was stifling with the fumes of drink and tobacco, but Winslow remained, fascinated by the tense attitude of the gamblers. Evidently some untoward excitement was pending—the stakes were high.

Suddenly there was a gurgling cry of "Lost, by God!" and the planter fell face downward on the table, scattering cards and money in blind confusion.

Another pause, then Finch, the captain, spoke: "It was a fair game, and, damme, if she ain't mine!"

At the brutal words, the prostrate man rose, and shot a look of mingled hatred and pleading as would have touched a heart not mailed and proof. Suspicion of the frightful barter came over Winslow, but controlling a sickening sense of disgust, he asked, calmly: "Then the stakes were high, gentlemen?"

The planter groaned and dropped his head again to the table.

With a devil-may-care fling of his great shoulders, the captain rose. "High?" he repeated, "well, if there's a finer wench in the Louisiana territory, I'd like to have her, that's all."

At this the stricken player sprang to his feet, and with the grasp of a tiger was at the speaker's throat.

The door was suddenly opened, and the octoroon's wide, frightened eyes peered over the threshold.

Instantly the clinched men relaxed their hold, and the planter sank to his seat again.

With wondering anxiety the woman scanned each face, then timidly approached the gamester: "William, master, speak to me—what is it?"

A groan was the only response; then roughly Finch, spoke: "We played until he lost everything he had—but you. Then, well, then he staked—and lost again."

The woman stood rigid. Over her eyes a horrid comprehension grew, darkening them like a film shutting out the light.

Finch grasped her with half scowl, half leer on his cruel face. "One man's meat is another man's pizen, you know, my girl."

With a shriek she turned from him to sink at the feet of her master. "Not me? You have not sold me?" and she murmured broken words of anguish, groveling on the floor, her head on his knee.

"We are intruding, senior."

It was the third player who spoke—a tall, heavy-browed Spaniard, his massive head covered with black curls on which was carelessly tilted a wide-brimmed hat. This he pulled lower, as if to hide the womanish pity in his eyes.

"Let us go," he said, "this is not the first time men have fought for a woman," and he turned away.

Winslow was tempted to follow—both from personal unwillingness to witness the harrowing scene, and from innate respect for the sanctity of sorrow. But just then he met the agonized gaze of the octoroon. All a woman's soul flashed from the eyes of this helpless chattel.

Rapidly his mind searched every avenue of escape for her. There was a way—he would try it.

"Will you tarry a moment?" and he closed the door as he spoke, "I have a suggestion to make."

There was a compelling power in his quiet words which made the crushed man raise his head with sudden hungry hope in the bloodshot eyes. The woman staggered to her feet. Capt. Finch rewarded the speaker with a glare of malignant questioning.

EARLY TOBACCO HISTORY.

Passage in an Ancient Book Describes the Weed in Quaint Fashion.

The antiquary took down a little brown book dated 1573.

"This little book," he said, "describes English life in Shakespeare's youth. It has a passage on tobacco that should interest you. A pipe, in this passage, is said to resemble in form a ladle. It does resemble a ladle, doesn't it?"

The passage in the old book ran: "In these dates the taking in of the smoke of the Indian herbe called Tobacco by an instrument formed like a little ladle, whereby it passeth from the mouth into the bed and stomach, is grette taken up and used in England against Rheumes and some other diseases ingendered in the lungs and other parts, and not without effect."

The herbe Tobacco is commonly of the height of a man, with grete long leaves; the colour of the floure is carnation, resembling that of the lemmon in form, the roote yellow with many filletes.

"The first taste of Tobacco smoke is vile, but aromatick and swete enough it becomes with usage, so as to make men its slaves. It is best taken with wine or beere."

No Reason for Two Trips.

Patrick's wife was "ailing," and Patrick put on his Sunday best and walked four miles to the doctor's house to tell him about her.

"Now," said the doctor, when he had heard all Patrick had to say, and had prepared some medicine, "here is something for your wife. I've written the directions on the bottle, and I want her to try it faithfully for a fortnight. Then, if it doesn't relieve her, come to me again and I will give you another prescription."

"Now, docther, see here," said Patrick, standing straight and looking grimly at the physician. "If you have your doubts of this curin' Mary, as its ivident you have by the way you spake, why don't you give me first what you're goin' to give me last?"—Youth's Companion.

She Was in Training.

"We're going to have such a jolly time," said the girl in blue. "A dinner first, you know, and then a theater party. Of course you'll come?"

"I should like to above all things," returned the girl in gray, "but I fear it isn't possible."

"Isn't possible! Why not?"

"I'm not allowed to eat much of anything just now, and I fear such a dinner would be too great a temptation," explained the girl in gray, sadly.

"Dieting?" queried the girl in blue.

"Doctor's orders!"

"No, lawyer's."

"Lawyer's?"

"Yes; you see my breach of promise case comes to trial pretty soon, and I'm training down to show the ravages of blighted affection."—Chicago Journal.

She Meant Well.

Bishop Coleman, of Delaware, the Episcopal dignitary who every summer takes a two or three weeks' tour over the country, tramping incognito, is a man of tremendous appetite, and is proud of it, says the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph. But a story is related of a Kent county housewife who got the best of him. She was the learned prelate's hostess on one of his tramping tours, and, knowing very well who he was, set before him a dinner fit for a man of great labors. The bishop appreciated her cooking highly and told her so, but he was unprepared for her rejoinder: "Bless you, bishop, eat your fill, for I love to see ye eat, eat till ye bust; I wish you would!"

NEWS FROM INDIANA

EVENTS OF GREATEST INTEREST THROUGHOUT THE STATE

EXPRESS CONCERNS SUED

State Railroad Commission Begins Fight to Bar Companies from Doing Business Because of Law Violations.

Indianapolis.—Based upon charges that the Adams, the American and the United States Express companies have persistently violated the law in respect to delivery of packages to consignors, the local prosecutor and the Indiana railroad commission filed suit on relation of the state asking that the charters of the companies to do business in Indiana be forfeited. Simultaneously with the filing of these suits other suits were filed against the same companies to mandate them to observe the Indiana statute which requires express companies to deliver freight to consignees in all towns of the state having a population of 2,500. To test the validity of the law exacting a penalty for failure to observe this provision six suits have been filed for $500 penalty for alleged failure to deliver freight to the address of Indianapolis people who declare they have been forced to pay an extra fee to have freight consigned to them delivered at their residences or places of business. When the commission began to investigate complaints they held a conference with representatives of three express companies, in which these representatives admitted the truth of the charges. However, they said the law compelling the delivery of consignments in towns of 2,500 population in Indiana was inoperative by reason of a supreme court decision.

Vice President Reviews Troops.

Fort Benjamin Harrison.—Vice President Fairbanks Monday afternoon reviewed the entire force of troops in camp here. The vice president was accompanied to camp by Maj. B. B. Ray of the paymaster's department and was received with a salute of 19 guns. A troop of cavalry escorted him from the terminus of the car line to the headquarters tent. The review included seven regiments—the Fourth, Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth regiments, United States army, the three regiments of Indiana infantry and the Second Illinois infantry. There were four batteries of field artillery, four troops of cavalry and the signal and hospital corps of both the United States army and the Indiana national guard.

Slide Breaks; Bathes Hurt.

Laporte.—Through the breaking of a "slide for life" used by bathers at Hudson lake, William P. Miller and Jacob Miller, cousins, fell 20 feet and suffered serious injuries. The cousins tried to shoot down together, but when half way down the accident happened. Jacob Miller fell first, but grabbed his cousin around the waist and both dropped together into six inches of water. Jacob Miller, who was underneath, suffered a compound fracture of the right leg. W. P. Miller escaped with badly bruised and cut arms and body.

College President Dies.

Merom.—Dr. Charles J. Jones, president of Union Christian college, died at his home here of stomach trouble. He was 66 years old and had been in the ministry 47 years. He came here two years ago from Marion, Ind., where he was pastor of the First Christian church. Dr. Jones organized and built six Christian churches, the largest of which was at Norfolk, Va.

Receiver for Oil Company.

Anderson.—William Holand, of this city, has been appointed receiver for the Decker Oil company, of Fairmount, Ind. He has gone to Fairmount to begin making an inventory of the company's property, which will require several days. The company was capitalized at $100,000.

Danced on Her Eightieth Birthday.

Shelbyville.—Mrs. Harriet Workman, of Fairland, entertained a number of friends and relatives at her home in honor of her eightieth birthday. Dancing was a feature of the day. Mrs. Workman was frequently on the floor, not missing even one of the old-time quadrilles, and she enjoyed herself as much as the younger set.

Bitten by Dog, Fight Postponed.

Terre Haute.—While Alexander Swanson was out for a spin he was chased and bitten by a dog. In consequence his bout with Turner, of Rock Island, set for Friday, will be postponed.

Nominated for Congress.

Frankfort.—Marion P. Clodfelter, of Crawfordville, was nominated for congress by the Ninth district Democratic convention. The district is heavily Republican.

Destroys Former Wife's Sight.

Tipton.—Mrs. Ira Vandeverter was terribly burned about the face and shoulders at her home, as she claims, by her divorced husband, George Zumburn. Mr. Vandeverter and his wife have been living on their farm north of this city, and Mrs. Vandeverter had not seen Zumburn since she received her divorce, two years ago. She says he came to her door wearing a soldier's uniform, and without warning dashed sulphuric acid into her face. It is believed her sight is destroyed.

ROBBERS ATTACK AGED WOMAN.

Bind Her When Demand for Supposed Hidden Wealth Is Refused.

Hammond.—In an attempt at robbery five men attacked Mrs. Valentine Rivinski, wife of a section foreman at Gary. The men, it is believed, knowing that she had money at home, entered her house, and with threats to cut her throat, made a demand for the money, amounting to $76. Mrs. Rivinski refused, and the men seized and bound her with a rope. A noose was slipped around her neck and tightened with a stick until Mrs. Rivinski lost consciousness. The men then ransacked the house, but failed to find anything of value.

In the meantime, Mrs. Rivinski's little daughter, who was with her at the time the men entered the house, ran for help, and a man named Frank Wilder responded to the call. Upon his approach to the house the woman's assailants fled. Wilder cut the rope around Mrs. Rivinski's neck and restored her to consciousness. It was at first thought she had been stabbed, as blood gushed from her nose and mouth. As soon as she was sufficiently revived she gave a description of the men, and Sheriff Gaudhery was notified. He, with several deputies and Hammond police officers, in automobiles, immediately started in pursuit of the five men, but no trace of them was found.

It is suspected that John Veschnick, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Rivinski, was implicated in the attempted robbery. He has disappeared.

MINISTER CREATES SURPRISE.

Tells Brothers That Christ Will Come and Reign Again.

Winona Lake.—Ministers to the number of 2,000 and others attending the twelfth annual Bible conference in session at this place were treated to a surprise in some of the opinions set forth by Rev. Dr. Ford C. Ottman, of Stamford, Conn., a "pre-millennialist," one of the prominent speakers here.

Dr. Ottman stated that in his opinion Christ will return to this world before the millennium.

"It is useless to speculate," said the preacher. "You need not tell me that Jesus is not coming back to this world in this mortal flesh. He is ruling in glory and by and by when He has fashioned His church he will take His people to Himself."

"The Son of God is coming on a white horse and the armies of Heaven will follow Him. Then He will be crowned king of all Israel. The kingdom promised to David will be resurrected."

Dr. Ottmann criticised the teaching of numerous theological seminaries, and declared that the time had come in the history of the church when men must ignore traditions and seminary instruction and have perfect freedom of thought.

Winona Lake.—Rev. Jeremiah J. Crowley, of Chicago, a former priest of the Roman Catholic church, delivered an address on the attitude of the Roman Catholic church toward the Bible in Raikes hall at Winona Lake. His hearers were members of the Bible conference, all Protestants.

Treasurer's Books Missing.

Michigan City.—Auditors who are investigating City Treasurer Meyers' books made a partial report at a public meeting. The auditors state that the city's system is absolutely wrong and that the books required to be kept by law are not kept and that those that were kept have been done away with.

The council will be asked to pay the indebtedness incurred by the investigation to date and also to provide funds to continue the investigation for a period covering the last eight years. Citizens have volunteered financial assistance and if the council refuses to act in the matter it is said suit will be brought to force bondsmen to pay the auditors' bill.

Artificial Leg Caused Break.

Noblesville.—Harry Kleper, of Fishers Station, fell on the streets of this city last evening, breaking his left leg. A year ago he fell under the wheels of a train, losing his leg above the knee. Recently he purchased an artificial leg, using it for the first time. Not being accustomed to its use, he fell, breaking the stub of his leg near the thigh.

Caught by Driving Belt.

Princeton.—William Moore, an oil well driller, attempted to wipe the moisture from the driving belt of a well-drilling engine, but the rag which he was using caught in the belt and the man was jerked from his feet and wound around the pulley. A companion chanced to be on the alert and he reversed the engine in time to save Moore's life. Moore was severely bruised, but he will recover.

Wholesale Grocery Burned.

Madison.—Fire broke out here in Hargis' wholesale grocery. The loss will exceed $50,000.

Troops Worked Hard.

Fort Benjamin Harrison.—Six thousand men of the United States army, the Indiana national guards and the Illinois national guard Tuesday engaged in the most strenuous maneuvers of the present campaign of instruction. The problem was one of railroad destruction and defense. The troops were divided into two brigades, the Second Illinois commanded by Col. James Stuart being joined in brigade formation with the regulars. The Indiana national guard left camp Wednesday.

CULVER, INDIANA, AUGUST 30, 1906.

GAME WARDENS BUSY.

Made Many Arrests Over the State Last Week.

These are the days when the assistant game wardens are hot on the trails of the violators of the fish and game laws of Indiana, and many a thrilling melodrama is enacted about the woods and waters that has its only presentation in a dingy justice shop, says the Logansport Pharos. Although the catching of culprits sounds prosaic enough, it bears a great resemblance to the enforcement of the frontier law.

All over the state there are deputies prowling among the woods, along the streams and around the lakes in search of those who might be transgressing the regulations that are aimed to preserve fishing and hunting as sports. Last week these deputies had a merry time of it, and as a result of their vigils at night almost a score of violators were brought to the bar of justice and assessed a sufficient amount to keep them from poaching in the future.

BIG WHEAT YIELD.

White County Farmer Raises Fifty-One Bushels to the Acre.

Lew Goslee, of White county, in explaining his remarkable yield of wheat (over 51 bushels to the acre) states that he had used no commercial fertilizer but that a crop of clover had grown on the field the year before, which he had plowed under without cutting, the heads having been so light that he did not care to harvest the crop. The result proves, he thinks, that clover is nature's fertilizer for wheat. He will follow the wheat crop with corn next year and then sow the field in clover again, meantime trying another field of clover for wheat. The wheat which yielded the large crop this year is known as the Poole variety.

Excursions.

The excursion of the Logansport Pennsylvania employes brought two train sections of fourteen cars each. The crowd was a well-behaved, well-dressed and happy one. The weather was warm but pleasant and everyone appeared to thoroughly enjoy the day.

An Indianapolis excursion of seven cars came in on Sunday morning, and the South Bend and the 11:28 from the south brought in each four carloads. The weather clerk played the visitors a shabby trick. At 2:30, after a few light showers during the preceding two hours, the rain set in steadily and continued until 5 o'clock. The temperature fell rapidly and by the time the trains took their departure the air was almost chilly.

On Sunday two excursions will come in—one from Terre Haute and one from Elmer at the Illinois line of the Vandalia. On the following Thursday a big crowd is expected from off the Panhandle as far east as Marion.

Cannon Buys Indiana Land.

Laporte, Ind., Aug. 23.—Speaker Cannon yesterday closed a deal for the purchase of a farm of 490 acres in the Kankakee region, paying $90 an acre. It is understood that the Illinois congressman is negotiating for other large tracts in the region, which is being rapidly reclaimed.

The Dorcas Society.

Eleven ladies met at the home of Mrs. Woods last Friday and did considerable work. The Dorcas society is subject to the call of the president. Those having clothing that they do not need will do well to turn it over to the society.

THE SUMMER FAST PASSING

Vacation Days on Lake Maxinkuckee Drawing to an End.

SEASON A PROSPEROUS ONE

Cottagers Here in Greater Numbers, But Transients Fewer.

The growing coolness of the nights and mornings are admonitory of the waning days of the people's vacation period. Next week will witness the departure of a number of the lake population. The 1st of September marks the line between the summer holidays and the resumption of the year's work by the old and young. Business men and clerks return to their desks and counters, the matrons to their household cares, and the children to their studies. There is plenty of fine weather yet due before out-of-door life ceases to be attractive, for October brings the choicest and most stable climatic conditions of the year, when the lake and its scenery are at their best; when it is exhilarating to be in the open; and when the nights are royal for sleeping. "Then, if ever, come perfect days." But October is also a busy month with the dwellers in the city, and only those who live a life of leisure can prolong their vacation through the golden days of autumn.

So far as the lake population is concerned the season of 1906 has brought a larger number than ever before, and this growth will continue from year to year, for Maxinkuckee is adding to its popularity with every season's experience. The transient business has been very much smaller. The excursion traffic has probably been less than one-half that of former years. There is no explanation to be offered other than that the prohibiting of the sale of beer has diverted the excursion element to other resorts.

As a result there has been a large falling off in the receipts of stands, restaurants, boats and possibly other lines of purveying to the demand for entertainment and pleasure. As an offset to this the excursion crowds that have come have been of a better character and cases of intoxication have been so rare as to be practically nil. Not an arrest has been made during the season.

We shall miss our summer visitors. They have given life and color and movement to the otherwise quiet streets of Culver. A large number of them have become so thoroughly identified with the lake that they seem like old friends. We shall bid them goodbye with regret and look forward to their return with the blooming of the roses.

The Summer Naval school, a larger and more important factor than ever of life on Lake Maxinkuckee, has added immeasurably to the enjoyment of both visitors and residents. The boys and young men who attend each year in increasing numbers are the flower of our American youth, and their presence among us is without a single shadow of discord or discomfort so thorough is the discipline of the school. They, too, go from us with our best wishes and leaving pleasant memories.

Sunset on Lake Maxinkuckee

Sunsets are "Pictures painted well In memory their beauty we recall; Their magic power doth with us dwell, E'en though their glories fade and fall."

The radiant lake is keeping tryst With a sunset divinely fair; Far off it gleams in amber mist, Yet on the lake its hues are there. ESTELLE MILDRED KNAPP. Arlington.

IN MARSHALL AND ADJOINING COUNTIES

Five cows standing under a tree on the farm of George Shafer north of Lakeville were killed by lightning.

Melvin Faneher, a Davis township farmer, expects to harvest 10,000 bushels of onions from 17 acres of land.—Knox Republican.

Col. L. E. McKinsey, aged 54 years, died Wednesday at Winamac. He was a veteran democrat and a prominent citizen and ex-recorder of Pulaski county.

Immanuel Evangelical church of Bremen celebrated its 50th anniversary last week. The sermon was preached by Rev. Philip Wagner who established the church. John Koontz is the only living charter member.

In the storm Sunday lightning struck the barn on the Albert White place at the lake, burning it down. This is the same building in which two young men were killed by a stroke of lightning two years ago.—Knox Republican.

The county tax men are after the county's share of the Jacob Railsback $10,000, just recently found in an old satchel after his death. The officers claim that the dates and condition of the bills clearly indicate that Railsback had them for many years. He never listed this cash on his assessment lists and the officers have decided to make a reasonable estimate of the length of time it has been on hand and not listed and have fixed it at ten years. They figure that the back taxes and penalty due on $10,000 for ten years is $3,000 and have made formal demand on the administrator for this amount. Administrator Troutman will first see the sixty or seventy heirs for instructions and then probably let the tax officials establish their claim if it is just, by court decision.—Kewanna Herald.

Sacks Wanted.

Until Sept. 10 we will pay 7½ cents each for Peerless Portland cement sacks; after that date they will be worth 5 cents. DILLON & MEDBOURN.

When a woman suffers from depressing weak nerves, she then truly realizes how helpless—how thoroughly worthless she is. Dr. Shoop has brought relief to thousands of such women. He reaches a cause peculiar to women in two direct specific ways—a local treatment known by druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Night Cure, and a constitutional or internal prescription, called Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is applied locally, and at night. It works while you sleep. It reduces inflammation; it stops discharges; it heals; it soothes; it comforts; it cures. Dr. Shoop's Restorative (tablet or liquid form) is a constitutional, nerve tissue tonic. It brings renewed strength, lasting ambition, and vigor to weak, lifeless women. These two remedies, singly or used together have an irresistible, positive helpful power. Try them a month and see. Sold by T. E. Slattery, druggist.

From Nation's Capital

Interesting Gossip of Men and Events at Washington—Promotion for President's Faithful Assistant—Social Revolt Planned by White House Bride—Other Happenings.

WASHINGTON.—The first Oklahoma man to receive a federal appointment since the admission of the new state into the union is Maurice C. Latta, the president's favorite stenographer, who has been made assistant private secretary to succeed B. F. Barnes, the new postmaster of this city. Mr. Latta has been an assistant of Private Secretary Loeb for about five years, so the appointment does not mean much to him aside from an official title and an increase in salary of $1,200 a year. Until his elevation to the postmaster's office, Latta drew the $3,000 salary, while Latta did most of the work.

The new assistant secretary is a modest retiring chap. He is over six feet in height, smooth shaven, has strong features and a good eye. Latta was a clerk in the general land office in Oklahoma when John Addison Porter, private secretary for President McKinley, called on Secretary of the Interior Bliss for one of the latter's expert men to help out with the heavy White House mail. Latta was summoned to fill the gap, and his work so pleased the White House officers that he was kept there.

President Roosevelt began dictating his speeches to Latta, and he liked the tall, silent man so well that he began using him as his regular amanuensis. When the president had to read and study at night, in the preparation of a speech, he would have Latta at his side taking notes.

Latta always accompanies the president on the latter's trips about the country. Whenever Mr. Roosevelt delivers an address of a public character Latta will be found within a few feet of him, taking notes of the speech. These speeches, of course, are always prepared in advance. Latta holds one copy in his hand, with a notebook and ink, ready to record interpolated remarks or changes in the original text. Latta's copy becomes the official report of the speech, which is preserved at the White House.

ALICE WILL TRY TO RETAIN RANK.

According to Dame Gossip the coming winter will see changes in the time-bound etiquette of social life in the capital that will cause consternation among the old-timers. It seems that Mrs. Alice Longworth has already declared herself, and her social campaign as a matron is already mapped out. Needless to say, absolute independence characterizes her attitude. One fruit of her trip abroad is her new-born conviction that a married woman should retain her "rank" as her father's daughter, and not fall to her husband's level.

As the case now stands, Mrs. Longworth is one of a throng, a mere ant in the social hill, and she ranks not as the daughter of the head of the nation but as the wife of a minor representative in congress. She must be subservient to tradition, and her duties are mapped out by social laws rigid as those of the Medes and Persians.

When Mrs. Longworth returned from her honeymoon she calmly declined to make or to receive calls, alleging that the season was practically over, and that she dates her new position from the beginning of the next congressional term.

Mrs. Longworth will emancipate herself and incidentally all the others in Washington society who do not approve of existing conditions. The gossip is that she has determined to set up as the social leader, and to hold a court which will equal in importance those of her stepmother, Mrs. Roosevelt, or of Mrs. Fairbanks, wife of the vice president.

Last winter Lady Susan Townley, wife of the first secretary of the British embassy, set the ball a-rolling, and she attained a sort of success in her aspirations.

Lady Susan is the daughter of the late earl and sister of the present earl of Albemarle, and she stood on her rights. She refused to be rated as the wife of a small diplomat, and in many houses she succeeded in getting the place of honor at the table.

Mrs. Longworth will, of course, recognize the pretensions of Lady Susan, and in acknowledging such a precedent will get her own case up for trial.

There died at the Georgetown University hospital the other day a man who for some time has enjoyed a unique distinction. This man was William R. Padgett and on the last day for many months, up to the time of his fatal illness, he was a regular caller at the White House with the warrant for the president's salary. Padgett was an employee of the treasurer's office.

President Roosevelt gets his salary the last day of each month in the shape of a check. The president's salary of $50,000 a year is divided into eight checks of $4,166.67 each and four checks of $4,166.66 each. Two months out of every three the president gets a check for the larger sum and the other month he gets one cent less on his check.

This has been the custom for many years and a mistake was never made but once. That was during the second administration of President Cleveland. One month when his check should have been $4,166.67, the book-keeper made it out for only $4,166.66. When the books were balanced at the end of the fiscal year it was found that the president was due one cent by the government. The officials, with great solemnity, made out a check on the United States treasurer for this amount and forwarded it to Mr. Cleveland.

Because it was the smallest sum a warrant was ever drawn for upon the government. It was kept as a souvenir and was never presented. If the former president desires to do so at any time it will be promptly cashed.

Padgett was for a long time a sergeant in Battery A, Fourth United States artillery, and served in the army at different points. He served in the marine corps prior to enlistment in the army and went all over the world.

NEW DEPOT NEARING COMPLETION.

The new union station, which when completed, will be the finest in the country, is fast nearing completion. The engineers in charge of the extensive operations have attacked the difficult problems that confronted them from three different points, and are working on the terminal depot, the north approach and the south approach at the same time. The extensive tunneling, bridging and filling necessary for the approaches is well under way. The concrete foundations for the building, which are about 45 feet deep, have been placed, and the material for filling in between them has been delivered. The granite and brick work of the east end of the building is almost finished.

The amount of material and the extensive excavation necessary in the work of construction is extraordinary. The filling within the limits of the terminal amounts to 900,000 cubic yards—enough to cover an acre lot to a depth of over 550 feet. To fill the plaza and raise adjacent streets to the new grade, about 1,000,000 cubic yards of material will be required. If all this filling were deposited on an average city block, the sides being kept vertical, it would form a mound 450 feet high. If all the material which will be moved to prepare the site for the coach, engine and shop yards—about 2,500,000 yards—were similarly deposited, the hill would be as high as the Washington monument.

To excavate this vast amount of material would require the services of a steam shovel, moving an average of 25,000 cubic yards a month, from nine to ten years. To move it to the place of deposit would require about 70,000 trains of 12 cars each. Should these cars be coupled together in a straight line they would cover a distance of over 600 miles.

PRINTING OFFICE OFFICIAL OUSTED.

The man who was the immediate cause of the issuance by the president of the order declaring the government printing office and all places where workmen are employed by the government to be "open shops," has been discharged from the public service. He is W. A. Miller, and for the past six years has been assistant foreman of the bindery in the government printery.

While the charge against Miller was insubordination, it is generally believed that he was ousted through the efforts of the labor organization which he defied.

Miller first came into public notice in 1907 when the employees of the printing office demanded his discharge for alleged arrogance in conduct, but primarily because he had abandoned membership in the bookbinders' union. Miller was suspended at the time, but the president directed that he be reinstated, and subsequently ordered that he be employed, and all departments where workmen are employed, should be "open shops."

Miller said at the time of his suspension that he simply had refused to be coerced by the unions, and that he had turned out $1,500,000 worth of work without complaint.

GOOD COLORS FOR HOUSES.

It is not generally known—not even among painters—why certain tints and colors wear much better than others on houses, and the knowledge of just what tints are best to use is, therefore, rather hazy.

One writer on paint, in a recent book, says that experiments seem to show that those colors which resist or turn back the heat rays of the sun, will protect a house better than those which allow these rays to pass through the film.

Thus red is a good color because it turns back, or reflects, the red rays, and the red rays are the hot rays.

In general, therefore, the warm tones are good and the cold tones are poor, so far as wear is concerned. In choosing the color of paint for your house, select reds, browns, grays and olives which, considering the various tones these tints will produce, will give a wide range from which to choose.

Avoid the harsh tints, such as cold yellows (like lemon), cold greens (like grass green, etc.), and the blues.

It must be understood that no virtue is claimed for tints in themselves, irrespective of the materials used in the paint. Any color will fade, and the paint will scale off, if adulterated white lead or canned paint is used, but if one is careful to use the best white lead—some well-known brand of a reliable manufacturer—and genuine linseed oil, the warm tints mentioned above will outwear the same materials tinted with the cold colors.

Suffered for "White Lie."

Is a white lie ever justified? That at least some people believe it has no excuse is proved by the following tale: An ancient rabbi came to a city where all the people were truthful, married one of the inhabitants, had two children and prospered. One day a neighbor called when the rabbi's wife was washing her head, and the rabbi, going to the door, was seized by false modesty and said that she had gone out. Thereupon both of his children died, and as no one died in that city before reaching old age, the neighbors made inquiries, the rabbi confessed what he had done, and was ordered to leave the city immediately.

His Interest Was Personal.

An eccentric member of the British parliament who died recently endeavored vainly during a quarter of a century to get passed into law a bill for preventing persons from standing outside windows while cleaning them. During his last session the old fellow complained to a colleague that his object in introducing the bill had been quite misunderstood by the house for these 25 years. "I introduced the bill," said he, "not for the sake of the window cleaners, but for the sake of the people below, on whom they might fall. The idea of the bill was suggested to me by the fear that a window cleaner might fall on myself."

Pushing Cape to Cairo Line.

In a report in the London Times it is stated that the Cape to Cairo railway in South Africa has been opened so as to run over the Kafue river on a bridge which stands on 13 spans, each 100 feet, with pillars resting on a bed 16 feet under the water. Kafue river is 266 miles north of Victoria falls, and the distance from Cape Town is 1,908 miles. The railroad, however, is now at Broken Hill, 347 miles beyond the falls, the line having been pushed on while the bridge was building over the Kafue river.

Small Profits of Pawnshops.

Consul General George W. Roosevelt reports that the official report of the Brussels pawnshop for 1905 shows a capital employed of $387,181 and profits made during the year of only $4,366. The amount of loans on pawns was $1,253,173. In 1904 the amount loaned exceeded the amount for 1905 by about $96,500.

Origin of Knighthood.

Knighthood was intended to serve as a mark of distinction for deeds of renown and merit. "Knight" properly signifies a person who, for his virtue and martial prowess, is raised from the rank of gentleman into a higher class of dignity and honor.

SALLOW FACES

Often Caused by Coffee Drinking.

How many persons realize that coffee so disturbs digestion that it produces a muddy, yellow complexion? A ten days' trial of Postum Food Coffee has proven a means, in thousands of cases, of clearing up bad complexions.

A Wash, young lady tells her experience:

"All of us—father, mother, sister and brother—had used tea and coffee for many years until finally we all had stomach troubles more or less."

"We were all sallow and troubled with pimples, breath bad, disagreeable taste in the mouth, and all of us simply so many bundles of nerves."

"We didn't realize that coffee was the cause of the trouble until one day we ran out of coffee and went to borrow some from a neighbor. She gave us some Postum and told us to try that."

"Although we started to make it, we all felt sure we would be sick if we missed our strong coffee, but we were forced to try Postum and were surprised to find it delicious."

"We read the statements on the pkg., not more and in a month and a half you wouldn't have known us. We were all able to digest our food without any trouble, each one's skin became clear, tongues cleaned off and nerves in fine condition. We never use anything now but Postum. There is nothing like it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville." "There's a reason."

OF AID TO HOSTESS

"King's Daughters" Give a Measuring Party—A Fore-handed Hostess—Unique Engagement Announcement—Choosing Partners.

A Measuring Party.

Two young women, who belong to a circle of "King's Daughters," have issued invitations for a unique affair to be given at the home of one of the girls. The jingle given below explains the nature of the entertainment. There will be a short programme and daintily served refreshments.

A "Measuring" party is given for you; 'Tis something novel, something new. We young ladies ask all to come. And each one bring to aid us some: Two cents for every foot you're tall, We'll measure you on door or wall; An extra cent for each inch give, And thereby show how high you live. With music and song, refreshment and pleasure, We'll meet one and all at our party of "Measure."

A wise hostess was seen making a tour of the "favor" counter before departing for her summer home far away from the haunts of men, but where she always entertained the most delightful house parties. She has the reputation of being able to produce at once any article that may be desired, no matter how impossible it may be to obtain it. This is the secret: In a closet to which she alone holds the key there is a supply of the most unusual things, and the last thing she does before leaving town is to consult a list, which has been many months in making, and here are a few of the items:

Bottle of gold ink and one of white. Extra tennis balls. Dinner cards. Favors for "Jack's" college dinner. "Jap" things for the canoe club dance.

The Prettiest of Doilies

Chain 6, join. First row—Chain 3 for first treble crochet, 19 more, making 20 t c in ring, join.

Second row—2 t c in every one on last row, making 40 in all, join.

Third row—Increase again on 3d st, join. This gives 18 widenings, which are continued to the 13th row, when they are decreased enough to keep the work smooth, the last row having almost no widenings. This finishes the center, which has 15 rows.

Insertion—Fourteen double crochet along the edge of center turn, ch 10, fasten back in 7th st, turn, half fill loop with 6 d c, equally separated by 2 picots, (made thus: ch 5, fasten in 1st with s c) turn, ch 16, fasten back in 7th st on edge of center turn, fill loop with 14 d c equally separated by 6 picots, finish filling 1st loop with 6 d c and 2 picots, make 7 d c along edge, turn, ch 16, fasten in top of 1st loop, turn, fill loop with 14 d c and 6 picots, as at first. Repeat around mat. Now ch 11, and catch in highest picot of each loop, all around insertion, make 2 rows of plain t c, widening enough to keep the work smooth, then make the border.

All of Crochet.

Border—Fourteen d c on edge of mat, turn, ch 10, fasten back in 7th st, turn, half fill loop with 6 d c and 2 picots (as in the insertion), turn, ch 16, fasten back in 7th st on edge, turn, fill loop with 14 d c and 6 picots, finish filling 1st loop with 6 d c and 2 picots, 7 d c on edge, turn, ch 16, fasten in top of 1st loop, turn, one-third fill with 2 d c, picot, 2 d c, picot, 1 d c, turn, ch 12, fasten back in 10th st (or top of opposite loop), turn, half fill with 2 d c, picot, 2 d c, picot, 1 d c, turn, ch 16, fasten back in 10th st, turn, fill loop with 14 d c and 6 picots, finish filling next loop.

Then make 2 d c, picot, 2 d c, picot, 1 d c in next unfinished loop, turn, ch 16, fasten in top of last finished loop, turn, 2 d c, picot, 1 d c in loop, turn, ch 12, fasten in top of opposite loop, turn, 12 d c and 5 picots in loop, finish next loop with 1 d c, picot, 2 d c, picot, 2 d c, picot, 2 d c, then last loop with 1 d c, picot, 2 d c, picot, 2 d c. This completes one scallop, of which there should be 19 for this doily. The last row of treble crochet on

Writes: "Three Years Ago My System Was In a Run-Down Condition. I Owe to Peruna My Restoration to Health and Strength."

MISS RICKA LEOPOLD, 137 Main street, Menasha, Wis., Secy Liederkranz, writes: "Three years ago my system was in a terrible run-down condition and I was broken out all over my body. I began to be worried about my condition and I was glad to try anything which would relieve me."

"Peruna was recommended to me as a fine blood remedy and tonic, and I soon found that it was worthy of praise. A few bottles changed my condition materially and in a short time I was all over my trouble. I owe to Peruna my restoration to health and strength. I am glad to endorse it."

Peruna Restores Strength.

Mrs. Hettie Green, R. R. 6, Jukla, Ill., writes: "I had catarrh and felt miserable. I began the use of Peruna and began to improve in every way. My head does not hurt me so much, my appetite is good and I am gaining in flesh and strength."

Facts About Alaska.

Alaska is an interesting region. In area she is twice as large as Texas, with California thrown in, but her resident white population numbers only about 30,000, though in summer she has from 10,000 to 20,000 more whites. In fur, fish and minerals she is rich. Since her annexation she has furnished $50,000,000 of furs, $60,000,000 of fish and $70,000,000 of minerals, chiefly gold and silver. Her output of gold, which was $9,000,000 in 1904, was $16,000,000 in 1905, and will be fully $25,000,000 in 1906.—Leslie's Weekly.

Tree Made Into House.

A singular maple tree on the left bank of the Oder, in Germany, is at least a century old, and has been twisted and cut into a kind of circular house of two stories. A firm, leafy floor has been formed by causing the branches to become gradually woven together. Above this is a smaller second floor, similarly formed, and the ends of the branches have been woven into solid walls, in which eight windows on each story have been cut.

ILLINOIS DEMOCRATS DECLARE
NEBRASKA MAN ONLY ONE TO LEAD PARTY TO VICTORY.

Motion to Ask State Leader to Resign from National Committee is Voted Down After Bitter Debate in the Convention Hall.

For State Treasurer—N. L. Piotrowski, of Chicago.
For Superintendent of Public Instruction—Miss Caroline Grout, of Pike county.

For Trustees of the University of Illinois—Daniel R. Cateron, of Chicago; John S. Connel, of Chicago; Miss Clara Bourland, of Peoria.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 22.—By a vote of 1,038 to 570 the Democratic convention
Tuesday placed upon the table the request of William J. Bryan for the resignation of Roger C. Sullivan from the national committee.

Despite the fact that Mr. Bryan had declared that he did not wish to be indorsed unless Sullivan was repudiated, the convention declared him to be the one and only man capable of leading the Democratic party to victory in 1908.

The indorsement of Bryan and the tabling of the motion calling for the resignation of Mr. Sullivan came at the close of a most exciting session of the convention, in which there were several fights and throughout which confusion reigned supreme.

Thompson Flays Sullivan.

The committee on resolutions declined to report a plank calling for the resignation of Sullivan, and the debate followed upon a motion made in the convention by Judge Owen
Thompson, of Jacksonville, calling for Sullivan's resignation. It had been agreed that each side should have 45 minutes in which to present its side of the case, and Judge Thompson was the first advocate of the cause of Mr. Bryan. He allowed his feelings to carry him somewhat to an extreme, and aroused the hostility of Sullivan's friends by the unsparing manner in which he dwelt upon the last Democratic convention at Springfield. His caustic criticisms finally lost him the ear of the convention and he might never have been able to conclude his speech if Sullivan had not personally requested quiet.

Sullivan, who followed Thompson, and who was the first speaker in his own behalf, declared that the ear of Mr. Bryan had been poisoned against him and that the demand for his resignation sprang from his personal enemies.

Boom Cannon for President.
Springfield, Ill., Aug. 22.—The following ticket was nominated by the Republicans of Illinois Tuesday:
Treasurer of state, John F. Smulski; superintendent of public instruction, Francis G. Blair; trustees of the state university, Mrs. Carrie S. Alexander, Fred Hatch, Alexander Mc-Lain, L. L. Lehman (short term).

The presidential boom of Speaker Joseph G. Cannon, for 1908, which was launched recently by his own congressional district, was given an enthusiastic indorsement.

The mention of Cannon's name brought the convention to its feet and there was enthusiastic cheering.

OPPOSE THE MONROE DOCTRINE

President Roosevelt's View Declared Menace to All Latin America.

San Jose, Costa Rica, Aug. 23.—At a preliminary meeting of the American club, the views and objects of that organization were formulated. It is declared to be the purpose of the club to work for the union of Latin America and to be prepared to oppose the United States in its work of annihilation of Latin American commercial independence.

The Monroe doctrine, in President Roosevelt's point of view, is declared to be a menace to all Latin American countries.

The programme adopted declares that the association is not formed against the United States, but in opposition to the alleged purpose of that country. The motto of the club, with which it proposes to conduct a propaganda, is, "Latin America for the world and the world for humanity."

Killed by Pitched Ball.

Allentown, Pa., Aug. 23.—Death came tragically Tuesday to Caspar Musselman, 19 years old, a student at Lehigh university. Musselman spent his vacation playing as catcher for the Catsanqua baseball team. Two thousand people attended Tuesday's game with the Philadelphia team. At Musselman's turn at bat in the fourth inning he was struck over the heart by a terrific inshoot. Musselman started to run but fell unconscious six feet off first base. After a few gasps he expired.

Disastrous Tornado Sweeps Tunis.

Tunis, Aug. 22.—A violent tornado swept over this district Tuesday. It was accompanied by a terrific hailstorm and lightning, which killed eight farmers and hundreds of head of cattle. Landslides, resulting from the storm have virtually destroyed the railroad and have broken down the telegraph lines.

Minnesota Bank Robbed.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 22.—The bank of Mentor, Minn., was burglarized early Tuesday. The robbers blew open the safe with nitro-glycerin and secured $1,200 in cash. The burglars escaped.

Washington, D. C., August 20th.—A determined effort will be made at the next session of congress to prevent another appropriation for the free distribution of common garden seeds.
Congress now expends $52,000 a year in giving away the commonest varieties of peas, beans, turnip, squash and pumpkin seeds. They are divided into 40,000,000 packets so that the packets cost about half a cent each. But as a large part of the appropriation is expended in clerk hire, pocketing the seed, etc., the actual value of the seed in a packet is much less than half a cent. These packets are put up in packages of five packets, the total cost of the packages being about two cents each, and they are purchas-able anywhere at five cents. Each member of congress gets 12,000 such packages, which he distributes to the voters of his district.

The farmers say that these packages contain so little seed as to be of no value to them, while the total appropriation, if expended in sending out really rare and valuable seed, or in maintaining a national agricultural college, or divided among the state agricultural colleges, would be of immense value to the farming interests.
They therefore protest against the waste of public money. The seedsmen claim that as congress has already expended $5,000,000 in giving away turnip and watermelon seed, it is time it should give away saws, axes or hoes and give the seed trade a rest.
Those who believe that congress should cut off this perquisite of its members now used for political purposes, are writing their senators and representatives, urging them to abolish the free seed distribution, and the National Grange, many state and local granges, horticultural, agricultural and other societies are adopting resolutions condemning it. Mr. William Wolf Smith, of Washington, D. C., has been selected to represent the opposition to the congressional free seed distribution, and is personally answering all inquiries concerning the same.

Thompson Flays Sullivan.

The committee on resolutions declined to report a plank calling for the resignation of Sullivan, and the debate followed upon a motion made in the convention by Judge Owen
Thompson, of Jacksonville, calling for Sullivan's resignation. It had been agreed that each side should have 45 minutes in which to present
its side of the case, and Judge Thompson was the first advocate of the cause of Mr. Bryan. He allowed his feelings to carry him somewhat to an extreme, and aroused the hostility of Sullivan's friends by the unsparing
manner in which he dwelt upon the last Democratic convention at Springfield. His caustic criticisms finally lost him the ear of the convention
and he might never have been able to conclude his speech if Sullivan had
not personally requested quiet.

Leading Question Asked of Methodical

There is a certain writer in Boston
—a man of remarkable versatility—who once gave a friend in the publishing business in New York a resume of the details of his average day's work.

"I am as methodical in my work," said the Boston writer, "as any business man. My daily tasks are so diversified and so arranged that I am able to afford myself considerable variety during the 12 hours per diem that I employ in authorship. For instance, from eight in the morning to ten I do my verse; from ten to 12 my criticisms; from three to five I am engaged upon a history of the world intended for perusal by children." And so he continued to give his visitor the whole scheme. When he had concluded, the New Yorker, an exceedingly blunt individual, rather unkindly inquired:

"And when, sir, do you think?"

GAS USED UNDER LIME KILNS.

Innovation by Connecticut Company
Is a Success.

The New England Lime company, of Winsted, Conn., asserts that it is the first to introduce gas as fuel for lime burning. The method is pronounced an entire success. The growing scarcity of wood fuel led to the discovery of gas as a substitute for wood, and the company no longer considers the gas method an experiment.
The efficiency and reliability of gas have been demonstrated beyond a doubt. Had it been impossible to find a substitute for wood, said a member of the company, it would have meant the restriction and perhaps the total abandonment of the business. Gas fires are absolutely clean at all times —no clinkers and no cinders—and the lime produced is much whiter than that burned by wood. Gas also produces a more intense heat, and consequently increases the capacity of the kilns. The daily output at the company's kilns is increased from 80 barrels per kiln to 100 barrels, or a total of 700 barrels daily.

Mrs. A. Taylor, of Wharton, N. J., says: "I had kidney trouble in its most painful and severe form, and the torture I went through now seems to have been almost unbearable. I had backache, pains in the side and loins, dizzy spells and hot, feverish headaches. There were bearing-down pains, and the kidney secretions passed too frequently, and with a burning sensation. They showed sediment. I became discouraged, weak, languid and depressed, so sick and weak that I could not keep up. As doctors did not cure me I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and with such success that my troubles were all gone after using eight boxes, and my strength, ambition and general health is fine."

Butler's Stolen Fee.

The late Hon. Joseph Q. Hoyt, formerly of Boston, when a lad attended a circus and his silver watch was stolen. The supposed thief was arrested, and was defended by Benjamin F. Butler, who proved he did not take the watch, and never was at the circus.

During the civil war Hoyt was introduced to Butler at a dinner at the Astor house, in New York, and the latter remarked: "This is the first time I have had the pleasure of meeting you."

"Oh, no!" said Hoyt, who then related the circus incident.

"Was that you, Hoyt?" asked Butler, and, being answered in the affirmative, Butler laughed and said:
"That was an awful good watch.
Hoyt. That is all I got for defending the thief."

How Emperor William is Battling Against a Dangerous Heredity.

Emperor William's father died of cancer of the throat.
Emperor William himself had infantile paralysis, and has had to struggle with many infirmities.

It has been whispered that he himself is troubled with the same malady which carried off his father. Royal blood is unfortunately most generally deteriorated blood. Emperor William knows this as well as anybody, and is doing his best to eradicate the bad blood from himself and his family by the adoption of simple life principles.

Through the visit of a countryman of his to Battle Creek, Michigan, while in this country, visiting the World's Fair in Chicago in 1903, Emperor William became acquainted with the Battle Creek idea of simple living and has to a large extent adopted the methods in his family. His wife and children live the simple life and take Battle Creek light baths. Their uncle, King Edward, also has these baths installed in his Windsor and Buckingham Palaces for the use of himself and Queen Alexandra.

Among other things GOOD HEALTH,
the oldest health journal in the world, tells about the Battle Creek idea and the simple life. Every number is brimful of up-to-date ideas. Sample copy 10 cents.

Kloefer's Store Sold.

A deal was closed this forenoon, whereby A. F. Richter, of Albion, Mich., and Mr. Wile, of Rochester, Ind., became owners of the stock of goods of the Kloefer store.

Mr. Richter has been in the dry goods business at Albion, Mich., for the past 15 years and will move his stock of goods to this city, where he will locate permanently.

Mr. Wile is in business at Rochester, Ind., and will continue to reside there. These gentlemen both come highly recommended as substantial business men and thoroughly familiar with the dry goods business.

To Make Toilet Vinegar.

A violet vinegar is refreshing to use after the bath. Make it by mixing two ounces of extract of cassia (not cassia), three-quarters of an ounce of extract of neroli bigarade, one and one-half ounces of orris root, one and one-half ounces of triple essence of rose and one-half pint of white wine vinegar. Mix and strain. This will be better if the mixture is allowed to stand for three days tightly corked before straining.

Gum Arabic Starch.

To make gum arabic starch powder one ounce of fine gum and pour over it half a pint of boiling water. Stir till dissolved, strain and bottle. For use allow one teaspoonful of the preparation to each one-half pint of water. As some muslins take starch much better than others, it is always as well to test it with a small piece of material before using. The proportions can then be regulated accordingly.

Culver City Water-works Preferred Stock to be sold at Par for One Week

THE FULTON COUNTY

FAIR

AND HIGH-CLASS CIRCUS ENTERTAINMENT COMBINED

A County Fair greater in magnitude than ever before attempted and a high-class troupe of royal artists to entertain you with feats of skill and daring ALL FOR THE ONE PRICE OF ADMISSION, is a departure entirely new from the old lines, and will beyond doubt merit universal admiration.

Realizing the demand for refined and high-class entertainment I have added in connection with the county fair for 1906 the highest priced free attractions yet produced by any fair association. Selecting from the hundreds of applicants nothing but the best and highest recommended, with our unlimited resources QUALITY has been the first consideration and price secondary. After weeks of careful study on the lines of entertainment and that which would please the people most, I feel proud in calling your attention for the first time to

THE TWO VERNELLS

Late of Carl Hagenbeck's Great Shows
Hand Balancers : Contortionists : Equilibrists
Novelty Acrobats

None better in their many acts in America today.

The SMI LETTA TROUPE SIX IN NUMBER

Direct from Sans Souci Park, Chicago, to fill this engagement—Kings and Queens of Contortion.

Contortion : Triple Trapeze : Triple Horizontal Bars : Flying Rings : Slack Wire

Bear in mind that these attractions are ALL FREE and are a part of the Grand Annual Exhibition. The Fair Association invites your attention and asks you to pay a visit. Diligent research and vast expenditure of money cannot place before you more than this year's greatest of all previous fairs.

Prepare to spend a day in the cool shaded grounds. Ample and comfortable seats will be provided to seat the thousands and witness the clean moral and high class society circs which alone is doubly worth the price of admission.

MR. GEORGE MILLER, vice-president of the Fair, has made a thorough canvass in this vicinity and has received assurances from prospective exhibitors which warrant him in announcing to the people of Marshall county that the Fulton county fair this year will be the largest and finest ever held in the history of the fair association.

Free Circus Feats Open at 11:00 A. M. and Continue Half Hourly Until 4:30 P. M.

KEEP IN MIND THE DATES---
SEPTEMBER 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th.

Admission as Usual—Adults, 25c; Children Under Sixteen, 15c

Yours for a Bumper Fair,
F. H. CORNELIUS, Secretary.
