Plead Guilty to Charge.

On complaint of Liveryman Anatin, Lou Patsel and Jerry Eskridge were taken to Plymouth last week charged with cruelty to animals. Both plead guilty before Justice Kirk and were fined $2 and costs, a total of about $30. Patsel was furnished with bail on the following morning by his father, but Eskridge is still in jail.

This case is the outgrowth of the drowning of a team which the boys hired of Anatin to go to a dance in Starke county. According to the story told immediately after the occurrence the team broke away from the boys and in the darkness ran into a ditch where they fell into three feet of water. The real facts are obscured by conflicting statements.

Matrimonial.

The many friends of Miss Vera Behmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Behmer, residing near Hilliard, will be interested in learning of her marriage with Herman E. Batterman of Detroit, Mich. The ceremony took place June 25 at Pontiac, Mich. Mrs. Batterman will remain with her parents until fall when she and her husband will begin housekeeping in Detroit where Mr. Batterman is secretary and treasurer of the Detroit Roofing-Tile company. Mrs. Batterman has been principal of the Hubbard school for several years.

A Scorching.

Sunday was one of the hottest known in Culver. The thermometer on the east side of the depot ran up to 102° at 2:30, and at the academy a mark of 101 was scored. In the sun opposite the depot the mercury went to the top of the tube, 122. Nearly everybody sought the lake shore and the park was well filled all day. It was too hot for even baseball, and the crowd was limited to a few enthusiasts. But what glorious weather for corn!

At the Elevator.

The McElbourn elevator has added to its facilities a new dump with a capacity of 400 bushels, 100 feet of driveway and a new set of scales. Up to Wednesday morning 1,800 bushels of new wheat had been received, and the first carload of 1,000 bushels was shipped out on Tuesday to Eostoria, O. The new wheat is weighing out 48 to 53½ pounds per bushel, a little heavier than last year.

Excursions.

Traveling Passenger Agent C. L. Nesbit of Indianapolis brought up from Anderson yesterday an excursion of twelve cars containing 783 passengers. It was given under the auspices of the First M. E. Sunday school of Anderson.

Today Mr. Nesbit will be here with another excursion taking in points from Sheldon and State Line on the Elmer division to Logansport.

—Union services next Sunday evening at the Christian church. Rev. Mr. Walner will preach.

PERSONALITIES

Mrs. Annie Smock of Indianapolis is a visitor at J. O. Ferrier's.

Mrs. Joseph Sallow of Chicago is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Stabenow.

Willard Zechiel spent several days last week with friends in Plymouth.

Mrs. John Osborn returned last week from a month's visit in Bluffton, Ind.

Miss Zulie Moss of Flora visited her sister, Mrs. Dr. Parker, Sunday and Monday.

Mrs. Arthur Upham of Toledo, O., is here the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hessel.

Clarence Snider of Chicago is in Culver on a two weeks visit with the Howard family.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Piper of Indianapolis were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Meredith.

Louis and Henry Zechiel and their wives were at Winona Lake from Thursday until Monday.

D. W. Marks is still confined to the house, and a part of the time to the bed, with Bright's disease.

Gratia Bolen returned to her home in Morenci, Mich., Tuesday after visiting Culver friends for a week.

Mrs. E. J. Culver and son Harry and family left Tuesday for New York whence they will embark for Europe.

Mabel Phoebe and Zulie Cline visited Saturday and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William Phoebe of Kewanna.

Mrs. Emma Dickson was the guest last week of her nephew, Hon. Daniel McDonald, the "Tall Hickory of the Potawatonic Reservation" as the Rochester Republican puts it. Mrs. Dickson is the widow of Bayless L. Dickson, who owned the land on which Culver is situated and who laid out Uniontown in 1846 or 1847. They lived in a house on the corner now occupied by the Gast tinshop. Mrs. Dickson was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Weimer of Argos.

Stricken with Paralysis.

Mrs. John F. ("Neighbor") Crowley suffered a light stroke of paralysis on Sunday morning, affecting her right arm and her vocal organs. The case is not serious and she will probably fully recover.

New Arrivals.

Born, on Sunday, to Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Menser, on the Burkett farm near Burr Oak, a son.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Hand, on Tuesday, a son.

THE SUMMER SCHOOL

1908 Session Opens With An Attendance of 257 Men—Many Old Boys Back Again.

The attendance for the present summer will not quite equal that of a year ago but the fact that 255 cadets have reported for duty in a summer following the financial stringency is no small evidence of the attraction that Culver has for boys and of the desire of the parents to give their sons the finest possible summer.

For several days previous to the opening of the school the cadets had been coming in with their usual bustle and hurry. Under the perfect system of registration, distribution of rooms, etc., the new arrivals were soon accustomed to the correct order of things and immediately got their rooms into good condition and their uniforms on.

Of course there were a large number of the ludicrous mistakes that always attend the opening. The "rhineys" asked the usual questions: "Where can I get a bath check and a meal ticket?" "Can you walk on the grass here?" etc. The "old men" told the rhineys to go to the carpenter shop for a shave and other little jokes of the same kind. But there is no ground for complaint about the treatment from the old men and in fact this year the new men are having an easier and more enjoyable time than ever before in the history of the school.

The boat ride around the lake and the inter company field meet have added interest to the start and have made the men better acquainted.

With fourteen cutters in commission the navy will continue to maneuver on Lake Maxinkuckee while the smaller number of men will enable all to go out at once and to enjoy a longer drill than when two drill sections were necessary. A sufficient number of veteran sailors have returned to supply all demands for boat officers and to insure best results in training the new.

With the fine spirit that inspires all members of the summer battalion there is no reason why the session should not be fully as enjoyable and as successful as the record making one of 1907.

The 202 men in the naval course this summer were taken out in the cutters for the first time this year on July 8, Commander Giguillat commanding, and were given a few elementary instructions in using their oars and since have made rapid progress in handling the same. About the first of next week the sails will be put in the cutters and the men given instructions in stepping the masts and working sail, which is much more interesting than moving the cutters by hand power. Mr. Giguillat is very much pleased with the progress thus far made and considers that this year will be one of the most interesting in the history of the school in the naval course.

Mr. Hendricks, the instructor in seamanship and coach of the crew, comes to us after eight years' service in the U. S. navy. During his enlistments he has traveled the world over, visiting most of the ports of importance on the globe. Eight years ago he graduated from the Naval Training Station at Newport, R. I., and was sent to the training ship Monongahela. After service on the naval transport Solace he became one of Admiral Evans' signal boys on the flagship Kentucky. He saw service against the fierce Moros and against the Pulaganus on the island of Samar, P. I. He was then transferred to the Oregon, then to the Philadelphia, from which he was discharged with the grade of first-class quartermaster.

The Cavalry school has started its second summer session with most brilliant prospects. It has increased the horses from 40 to 60, and the troop has 55 men to ride. There can be no doubt that the troop will be up to the top notch, for with all officers filled with veteran winter school men it has a lot of ability and efficiency to begin with. There are 25 old men back in the corps, and of these 15 are winter school men.

The new pith helmets are a great improvement over the English cap used last year; and the canvas puttees, though not as fine as the leather puttees of last summer, make just as natty a showing and are cooler. The white dress helmet is a pleasing improvement over the old dress cap for coolness and general appearance.

Wednesday afternoon the first operations of donning riding clothes and choosing horses were gone through with. Captain Rossow explained the approach to a horse and the process of placing blankets and bridles. Horses were assigned to officers according to their choice and to privates by lot.

While in the stables it was noticed that twenty new stalls are being built for the new horses.

With seventy-five percent of its members old men the fifty-five members of the summer troop expect to win all kinds of honors during the summer and to shine even in competition next August with the crack Troop A of Cleveland. They also promise some keen athletic competition with their rivals of the navy but are also ready to contribute some of their brawn to the boat crew which shall bring more laurels to Culver this summer.

Life in the tents proved so attractive last summer that the academy was forced to add a second camp this year to accommodate the requests for places out of barracks. Fifty-five tents besides those of the officers are now in use, and nothing can induce a camper to change places with the men in barracks. The old camp east of the riding hall is now sacred to the cavalry, and here the wearers of the huge helmets and the yellow stripes are laying deep schemes to win in athletics and shooting and aquatics from their brethren of the navy. The new camp is a navy camp lying along the street north of the gymnasium and here forty of the navy men are reveling in the joys of camp with few of its drawbacks, and are becoming the envy of the other sailors who live in barracks.

The band proved its readiness for service by furnishing music for the boat ride on the first night of school. At present there are fourteen men besides their leader, Captain Wilson, and they practice for an hour and a half each afternoon. The following are the members: Solo clarinet, Mills; first clarinet, Connolly; solo cornets, Johnston and Wells; first cornet, Menser; French horn, Smith E.; 2d alto, Smith G.; 3d alto, Buswell; tenor, Kabeek; trombone, Capt. Wilson; baritone, Smith P.; bass, Bennett; side drum, Hg; long drum, Bond; cymbals, Bracy.

I have some hat pins which I will almost give away this week, E. B. Sutherland.

LANGFORD of the THREE BARS

By KATE AND VIRGIL D. BOYLES

(Copyright by A. C. McCall & Co., 1902.)

SYNOPSIS.

George Williston, a poor ranchman, high-minded and cultured, searches for cattle missing from his ranch—the "Lazy S." On a wooded spot in the river's bed that would have been an island had the Missouri been at high water, he discovers a band of horse thieves engaged in working over brands on cattle. He creeps near enough to note the changing of the "Three Bars" brand on one steer to the "J. R." brand. Paul Langford, the rich owner of the "Three Bars," is informed of the operations of the gang of cattle thieves—a band of outlaws headed by Jesse Black, who long have defied the law and authorities of Kemah county, South Dakota. Langford is struck with the beauty of Mary, commonly known as "Williston's little girl." Louise Dale, an expert court stenographer, who had followed her uncle, Judge Hammond Dale, from the east to the "Dakotahs," and who is living with him in Wind City, is requested by the county attorney, Richard Gordon, to come to Kemah and take testimony in the preliminary hearing of Jesse Black, Jim Munson in waiting at the train for Louise, appears at a herd of cattle being shipped by Bill Brown and there detects old "Mac," a well known and steady horse belonging to his employer of the "Three Bars" ranch. Munson and Louise start for Kemah. Crowds assemble in Justice James R. McAllister's court for the preliminary hearing. Jesse Black surprises, waiving examination. Through Jake Sanderson, a member of the outlaw gang, he had learned that the other "Mac" had been recovered and thus saw the uselessness of fighting against being bound over. Richard Gordon, the county attorney, who is unpopular because of his many failures to secure convictions in court, wins the admiration of Louise, which is mutual. County Attorney Gordon accompanies Louise Dale on her return to Wind City. He tells her of the disappointments of his office, of witnesses that can be bribed and of the system of tampering with justice which prevails here. He has the girl's sympathy. While Williston stands in the light in his door at night, a shot is fired at him. The house is attacked and a battle ensues between Williston and his daughter, on one side, and the outlaws on the other.

As her strained sight stared out into the darkness it was borne to her intuitively, it may be, that something was creeping up on her. She could see nothing and yet knew it to be true. Every fiber of her being tingled with the certainty of it. It was coming closer and closer. She felt it like an actual presence. Her eyes shifted here, there—saw her half-circle searching—stared and stared. Still nothing moved. And yet the nearness of some unseen thing grew more and more palpable. If she could not see it soon she must scream aloud. She breathed in little quickened gasps. Soon, very soon, she would scream. Ah! A shadow down by the biggest cottonwood! It bodily sought a nearer and a smaller trunk. Another slinking shadow glided behind the varnished position. It was a ghastly presentation of "bussy-wants-a-corner" played in nightmare. But at last it was something tangible—something to do away with that frightful sensation of that crawling, creeping, twisting, worming, insinuating—nearer and nearer, so near now that it beat upon her—unseen presence. She pressed her finger to the trigger to shoot at the tangible shadows and dispel that enveloping, choking, blanket horror, when God knows what stayed the action of her fingers. Call it instinct, what you will, her hand was stayed even before her physical eye was caught and held by a blot darker still than the night, over to her right, farthest from the spring. It lay perfectly still. It came to her, the wily plan, with startling clearness. The blot was waiting for her to fire futilely at grinning shadows among the trees and, under cover of her engrossed attention insinuate its treacherous body the farther forward. Then the play would go merrily on till—the end. She turned the barrel of her rifle slowly and deliberately away from the moving shapes among the cottonwood clump, sighted truly the motionless blot to her right and fired, once, twice, three times.

The completeness of the surprise seemed to inspire the attackers with a hellish fury. They returned the fire rapidly and at will, remaining under cover the while. Shrinking low at her window, her eyes glued on the still black mass out yonder, Mary wondered if it were dead. She prayed passionately that it might be, and yet—it is a dreadful thing to kill. Once more the wild firing ceased. Mary responded once or twice just to keep the deadly chill from returning—if that were possible.

Under cover of the desperadoes' fire, at obtuse angles with the first attempt, a second blot began its tortuous twisting. It accomplished a space, stopped; pulled itself its length, stopped, waited, watchful eyes on the window whence came Mary's scattered firing still into the clump of trees. They had drawn her close regard at last. Would it hold out? Forward again, crawling flat on the ground, ever advancing slowly, now and then but also very surely, creeping, creeping, now stopping, now creeping, stopping, creeping.

All at once the gun play began again, sharp, quick, from the spring, from the sheds. The blot lay perfectly still for a moment—waiting, watching. The plucky little rifle was silent. But so it had been before. Quarter length, half, whole length, cautiously with frequent stops, eyes so steady, so intent—could it be possible that this gun was really silenced—out of the race? It would not do to trust too much. The blot waited, scarcely breathed, crept forward again.

A sudden bright light flashed up through the darkness under the unprotected wall to Mary's left. Almost simultaneously a kindred light sprang into being from the region of the cattle-sheds. The men down there had been waiting for this signal. It meant that for some reason the second effort to creep up unobserved to fire the house had been successful. The flare grew and spread. It became a glare.

When the whole cabin seemed to be in flames save the door—the dry, rude boarding had caught and burned like paper—when the heat had become unbearable, Williston held out his hand to his daughter, silently. As silently she put her hand, her left hand, in his; nor did Williston notice that it was her left, nor how limply her right arm hung to her side. In the glare, her face shone colorless, but her dark eyes were stars. Her head was held high. With firm step, Williston advanced to the door. Deliberately he unbarred it, as deliberately threw it open and stepped over the threshold. They were covered on the instant by four rifles.

"Drop your guns!" called the chief, roughly. Then the desperadoes moved up.

"I take it that I am the one wanted," said Williston.

His voice was calm and scholarly once more. In the uselessness of further struggle, it had lost the sharp incisiveness that had been the call to action. If one must die it is good to die after a brave fight. One is never a coward then. Williston's face wore an almost exalted look.

"My daughter is free to go?" he asked, his first words having met with no response. Better, much better, for the sake of a man like Williston to die in the dignity of silence, but for Mary's sake he parleyed.

"I guess not!" responded the leader, curtly. "If a pullin' idiot hadn't missed the broad side of you—as pretty a mark this side heaven as man could want—then we might talk about the girl. She's showed up too damned much like a man now to let her loose."

The big, shuffling form lounged in his saddle, he raised his rifle with every appearance of lazy indifference. They were to be shot down where they stood, now, right on the threshold of their burning homestead. Williston bowed his head to the inevitable for a moment; then raised it proudly to meet the inevitable.

A rifle shot rang out startlingly clear. At the very moment the leader's hawk eye had swept the sight, his rifle arm had twitched uncertainly, then fallen nerveless to his side, while his bullet, playing a faltering and discordant second to the first true shot, tore on the ground in front of him and swerved harmlessly to one side. Instantly the wildest confusion reigned—shouts, curses, the plunging of horses mingled with the sharp crack of fire-arms. The shooting was wild. The surprise was too complete for the outlaws to recover at once. They had heard no sound of approaching hoof-beats. The roaring flames licking up the dry timber and rendering the surrounding darkness the blacker for the contrast had been of saving grace to the besiegers after all.

In a moment the desperadoes rallied. They closed in and imposed a cursing, malignant wall between the rescuers and the blazing door of the shanty and what stood and lay before it. Mary had sunk down at her father's feet and had no cognizance of the fierce though brief conflict that ensued.

Presently she was dragged roughly to her feet. A big, muscular arm had heavy grasp of her.

"Make sure of the girl, Red!" commanded a sharp voice near, and it was gone out into the night.

Afterward she heard—oh, many, many times in the night watches—the eerie galloping of horses' hoofs, growing fainter and ever fainter, heard it above the medley of tramp-it for what it meant; but to-night—this evil night—she gave but one quick, bewildered glance into the sinister face above her and in a soft, shuddering voice breathed, "Please don't," and fainted.

CHAPTER X.

In Which the X Y Z Figures Something Mysteriously.

Jim Munson, riding his pony over the home trail at a slow walk, drooped sleepily in his saddle. It was not a weirdly late bedtime, half-past ten, maybe, but he would have been sleeping soundly a good hour or more had this not been his night to go to town—if he chose. He had chosen. He would not have missed his chance for a good deal. But his dissipation had been light. The boss never tolerated much along that line. He had drunk with some congenial cronies from the Circle E outfit complimentary to the future well-being and increasing wealth of this already well-known and flourishing cattle ranch. Of course he must drink a return compliment to the same rose-colored prosperity for the Three Bars, which he did and sighed for more. That made two, and two were the limit, and here was the limit overreached already; for there had always to be a last little comforter to keep him from nodding in his saddle.

It was a sleepy night, cool and soft and still. He could walk his horse all the way if he wanted to. There was no haste. The boys would all be in bed. They would not even wait up for the mail, knowing his, Jim's, innate aversion to hurry. Had he not been so drowsy, he would like to have sung a bit; but it required a little too much effort. He would just plod along.

Must all be in bed at Williston's—no light anywhere. A little short of where the Williston branch left the main trail he half-raised. If it were not so late he would ride up and give them a hail. But of course they were asleep. Everything seemed still and dark about the premises. He would just plod along.

"Hello, there! Where'd you come from?" he cried of a sudden, and before he had had time to carry his resolve into action.

A man on horseback had drawn rein directly in front of him. Jim blinked with the suddenness of the shock.

"Might ask you the same question," responded the other with an easy laugh. "I'm for town to see the doctor about my little girl. Been puny for a week."

"Oh! Where you from?" asked Jim, with the courteous interest of his kind.

"New man on the X Y Z," answered the other, lightly. "Must be gittin' on. Worried about my baby girl."

He touched spurs to his horse and was off with a friendly "So long," over his shoulder.

Jim rode on thoughtfully.

"Now don't it beat the devil," he was thinking, "how that there cowpuncher struck this trail comin' from X Y Z—with the X Y Z clean 't' other side o' town? Yep, it beats the devil, for a fact. He must be a ridin' for his health. It beats the devil." This last was long drawn out. He rode a little farther. "It beats the devil," he thought again—the wonder of it was waking him up—"how that blamed fool could a' struck this here trail a' goin' for doc."

At the branch road he stopped irresolutely.

WAS A LESSON FOR 'ABAHAM.'

Good Old Uncle Job Felt Called Upon to Rebuke Sinner.

"Yas, suh," began Uncle Job, surveying his hearers with an expression of virtuous address; "yas, suh, I sholy gib dat triffin' Ab'aham a lesson he never fahgot!" Then, seeing an inquiring look in the eyes of some of his hearers, and hearing a question from the lips of one of them, he decided to go more into details about the nature of the lesson he had imparted. "What'd I do tuh him? I a gwine tuh tell you alls. Ab'aham fair drawed de lightning on hisself w'en he hed de 'dacity tuh 'vite me tuh he house tuh eat er tukkey dinner. Tukkey," repeated Uncle Job, after a telling pause, "w'en dat liverashons rascal noreb raised any tukkey in he life 'cept offen some wite man's roost. Hif sho was er fine tukkey, but I showed dat Ab'aham dat stolen goods profiteth little. Dat tukkey was er big gobble, an' dere was nobody but me an' Ab'aham dere; an' I seasoned dat bird self admonitions tuh be good an' wahnings fom de wrath to come. Hif sholy would hev tasted good of hit hedn't been stole. But de sauce ob a deed wile did an' a sinneh rebuked almos' made hit relish, an'" concluded Uncle Job, with pious satisfaction, "though hit was er halid pill, I's bound to say I held out to de end an' finished dat tukkey, spite ob Ab'aham's hint dat he spected hit tuh las' him er week."—Youth's Companion.

House Eleven Hundred Years Old. St. Albans possesses the oldest inhabited house in the country. This distinction is said to belong to the old Round house, now the Fighting Cocks Inn, which stands close to the River Ver. It is a curious structure—of octagonal shape—of early Saxon origin, having been built as a bathhouse to the ancient monastery founded at St. Albans by King Offa about the year 795, and is thus over 1,100 years old. A subterranean passage, now blocked up, runs from the basement to the ruins of the monastery, a distance of about 200 yards. There is a shed at the back of the house, where it is said Oliver Cromwell stabled his horse, himself once sleeping under its

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN THE STATE OF INDIANA.

Board of Agriculture Wishes Politics Cut Out State Fair Week—Plans For a Great Show Mapped Out.

Indianapolis.—The state board of agriculture wishes the eagle would please be still while the state fair is going on, meaning no disrespect, of course, to the eagle or to the men who make the eagle scream. Members of the board also wish the welkin would please not ring during the fair. It has been bruited about in the newspapers a good deal here of late that there will be a lot of ringing by the welkin this fall, and that the eagle likewise will scream. When these announcements were made, the members of the board of agriculture got their heads together and decided to make an appeal to both the Democratic state committee and the Republican state committee to put on the "soft pedal" during the week of September 7, the week when Col. Dave Wallace and Oscar Hadley and Sid Conger and Charles Downing, and others of the state board, will be getting "cheesy" out at the fair ground and pointing out the acoustic qualities of the colosseum to the farmer folk, and telling them how if Paganini were tuning his fiddle at one end of the big building the twanging of the strings could be heard easily at the other end. The state board will send a request to both state committees not to arrange for any big speaking events during the fair. The plan is to make the next state fair the biggest, grandest and most gorgeous that has ever been held in Indiana, with scores and scores of live stock and high class entertainments in the colosseum at night. They wish just as big crowds as possible and therefore are seeking to avoid counter attractions. Big "rallies" and speeches by the spellbinders out through the state they fear, would tend to decrease the size of the state fair crowds. In this desire to have politics quiet the members of the board are patriots, not partisans. They wish every one to keep quiet—Democrats and Republicans. "We would like to see all of the politicians and candidates come in and see the state fair," said Oscar Hadley, explaining the requests which are to be presented to the state committees. "Yes, sir, we would like to have every one of them there. We want them at the fair and not out in the state talking politics."

Complete Tax Valuation.

Laporte.—Auditor Miller and Assessor Grover completed the assessed valuation of taxable property in Laporte county, following the completion of the work of the board of review. The report shows the following figures for 1905: Total number of acres taxed, 364,295; total value of land in the county, $8,615,290; total value of improvements in lands, $1,415,990; total value of lands and improvements, $10,031,280; total value of lots, $2,694,120; total value of improvements on lots, $4,291,955; total value of lots and improvements, $6,986,075; total value of personal property, $4,674,515.

Revenue from Liquor Licenses.

Indianapolis.—A report just completed by Mary Stubbs Moore, chief of the Indiana bureau of statistics, shows that the amount of money received in the state for county, city and town liquor licenses in 1905 was about the same as that received in 1904 and that about the same number of licenses was issued. The report gives totals only as in the number of county licenses issued. The number in 1905 was 5,214 and the number in 1904 was 5,253. The amount received from county, city and town licenses in 1905 was $1,444,629.58 and the amount in 1904 was $1,415,986.58.

Waterway Men Visit.

Hammond.—Bills and Indiana joined hands when the commission appointed by Mayor Bessie of Chicago as a harbor investigating committee came into the Calumet region to take stock of the Calumet river as a deep waterway channel. The members of the commission were taken in a launch from Hammond to Gary, escorted by the officials of the Calumet Deep Waterway association, formed to promote the Calumet river as a deep waterway to the Gulf of Mexico.

Women Approve Slayer.

Terre Haute.—When Roy Ligon was brought into court for a preliminary hearing, growing out of the killing of Fred Koch because Koch taunted him for joining the church, the women of the church appeared to present him with a Bible, and several women kissed him. The youth, pleased with the church backing, says he shot only after Koch struck at him.

Auto Causes Accident.

Columbus.—A big red touring car, believed to belong to Indianapolis people, was hurrying north near Taylorville when Ray Fulp, a young farmer, came along with a load of hay. He was driving two horses, which became frightened and Fulp saved his head. For answer the man at the wheel "opened her up a little and let her fly," so Fulp explains. The horses ran away. Fulp was thrown from the hay and was seriously injured. The tourist farmer was rescued.

ISSUE MAY GO TO MITCHELL.

Trade Arguments Question Regarded as Important.

Terre Haute.—The issue raised by the miners in the Linton field will probably be carried far, no matter what may be the decision in the immediate case, because it invokes the "higher law" of trade agreements. It is not improbable that the issue raised at Linton will be one of the first to come before John Mitchell in his new position as head of the department of trade agreements of the National Civic Federation. There is little doubt in the minds of operators' and miners' leaders alike that the firing clause in the wages contract is such as the courts would hold to be in violation of a statute which says fines cannot be withheld from the pay of employees, and there is no doubt in their minds that courts also would hold other clauses in the contract to be in violation of a statute here and there. Indeed, at the time the clauses were under consideration in joint conferences the point was made that they were in violation of law, but both sides usually agreed that they had quit resorting to the courts in their disputes. The miners strengthened their organization that they might get as much as they gave in the joint conference "scraps." When the first appeal to the courts was made against the fine clause by the men the operators quickly called the attention of mine workers' officials to the tacit agreement that all their contentions were to be in a joint conference or in a strike. It was demanded that the litigant miners be disciplined and this was done at the time, but these men down at Linton are radicals who never have been organization-broke. Every administration of the United Mine Workers, state and international, for more than ten years has had to deal with rebellious members in that field, and the men are refusing to be disciplined again. The operators do not think the miners' officials have been resolute in handling the situation.

Woman of 82 Challenges.

Wabash.—Mrs. Salina Dumfee, 82 years old, has issued a challenge to all women in Wabash county over 80 years old for a prize contest in horseback riding during the old settlers' reunion in the city park Wednesday, September 2. The announcement is made by Clark W. Weener, president of the association. Mr. Weener already has assurance of four or five contestants. There will be some striking features of the reunion. Rev. Freeman Taylor, 90, the oldest minister in the county, will offer the invocation. Joseph Kessler, 96, the oldest man in Wabash county, will be on the program. Relics will be displayed, and the old settlers' day will be a distinct revival of pioneer days. The announcement of the contest of aged women on horseback is creating derided interest, and it is expected that this and other notable events will combine to make the reunion a northern Indiana affair.

City to Mine Stone from Streets.

Wabash.—Having won in the circuit court the right to purchase and operate a stone crusher as a municipal enterprise, Wabash began a big task. Columbus street, one of the streets with the greatest hills and which is made up almost entirely of a series of stone quarries, being cut down for a length of almost a mile, and the stone used in improving other streets in the city. Wabash probably has more hills than any other city of its size in Indiana, and in these hills is stone of value. The plan of the city is to open up quarries in a long street, regularly traversed, to make a better grade and also to improve other streets. The municipality operates its own stone crusher. The ruling of the court established a precedent in Indiana courts which had not before decided the municipal rights in this respect.

Mrs. Dawes in Auto Wreck.

Fort Wayne.—Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, wife of the president of the Central Trust company, figured in an automobile accident here. She was touring with her two sons and a chauffeur to Marietta, O. Just west of Ft. Wayne the car collided head-on with a runabout driven by Elmer Schurz. Mrs. Dawes and party were badly shaken up. The car was wrecked.

Indiana Senators Summoned.

Hot Springs, Va.—Senator James A. Hemenway and Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana visited W. H. Taft, Republican nominee for president, and held a political conference. Mr. Hemenway was summoned from his home in Boonville. Mr. Beveridge from New York. Congressman Watson of Indiana was invited to confer with Mr. Taft.

Follows Horse to Death.

Wabash.—When his favorite horse dropped dead on a long trip, it was the last straw for John Isenhour, aged 45, living south of Wabash. He returned home, swallowed strychnine and died. He had separated from his wife and children who are living in Kansas.

Plans to Rebuild Church.

Laporte.—The board of directors of the Presbyterian church at Michigan City decided it would rebuild at once. The church building, which was valued at $40,000, was burned to the ground about a week ago during a severe electrical storm.

Death Comes Unawares.

Columbia City.—Frederick Brock, aged 87 years, a native of Switzerland and ex-trustee of Jefferson township, died recently.

JUMPING AT A CONCLUSION.

Marriage Did Not Follow the Ni Year's Courtship.

In the amiable way of villagers were discussing the matrimonial fairs of a couple who, though rewed, had begun to find the y Hymen a burden.

Not Guilty.

It is not always a guilty conscience that is taken by surprise, for sometimes the most innocent of men start at a suspicious word. The following incident, which occurred in hardware show, is illuminating:

An elderly lady, dressed severely gray, and carrying what looked very much like a bundle of tracts, approached the counter.

A clerk hastened to serve her.

"What can I do for you, madam?"

She leaned toward him.

"Have you—er—any little vises?" she inquired.—Youth's Companion.

WIFE WON

Husband Finally Convinced.

Some men are wise enough to try new foods and beverages and then generous enough to give others the benefit of their experience.

A very "conservative" Ills. mar however, let his good wife find out to herself what a blessing Postum is t those who are distressed in man ways, by drinking coffee. The wit writes:

"No slave in chains, it seemed to me, was more helpless than I, a coffee captive. Yet there were innumerable warnings—waiting from a trouble sleep with a feeling of suffocation, a times dizzy and out of breath, at tacks of palpitation of the heart tha frightened me.

"Common sense, reason, and my better judgment told me that coffee drinking was the trouble. At last my nervous system was so disarranged that my physician ordered 'no more coffee.'

"He knew he was right and he knew I knew it, too. I capitulated. Prior to this our family had tried Postum but disliked it, because, as we learned later, it was not made right.

"Determined this time to give Postum a fair trial, I prepared it according to directions on the pkg.—that is, boiled it 15 minutes after boiling commenced, obtaining a dark brown liquid with a rich snappy flavor similar to coffee. When cream and sugar were added, it was not only good but delicious.

"Noting its beneficial effects in me the rest of the family adopted it—all except my husband, who would not admit that coffee hurt him. Several weeks elapsed during which I drank Postum two or three times a day, when, to my surprise, my husband said: 'I have decided to drink Postum. Your improvement is so apparent—you have such fine color—that I propose to give credit where credit is due.' And now we are coffee-slaves no longer."

BRYAN IS NOMINATED ON THE FIRST BALLOT

Democrats in the Denver Convention Put Him at Head of the Ticket.

Scenes of Tremendous Enthusiasm When Name of the Nebraskan Is Presented by I. J. Dunn and While the Vote of Delegations Is Being Taken.

Denver, Col.—In the early morning hours of Friday William Jennings Bryan was nominated for the presidency by the Democratic national convention. Only one ballot was necessary, the Nebraskan having an overwhelming majority of the votes.

Tired as they were, the delegates and spectators greeted the result of the ballot with roars of applause, and marched about the hall cheering and singing.

The nomination was made unanimous.

Clock Is Stopped.

Leading up to the nomination were hours that began with picturesque enthusiasm, which grew into uncontrollable disorder. The nominating speeches were made amid scenes akin to panic at certain stages.

At 12 o'clock midnight the convention clock was stopped, so that constructively the nomination of Bryan would take place at Thursday's session of the convention. Will the Friday hoodoo be overcome by this technical evasion? is a question that was in the minds of enthusiastic Bryan Democrats, as they wended their way from the convention hall in the early morning hours.

Wild Scene of Confusion.

A wilder demonstration than that over the first mention of Bryan's name on Wednesday followed the concluding word of the speech of Ignatius J. Dunn of Nebraska, which formally presented the name of Democracy's champion to the convention.

An hour and seven minutes, against the one hour and 28 minutes of the day before, marked the cheering and tumult, but the densely overcrowded auditorium made the confusion worse confounded.

Nobody had any respect for the rights of anybody else. Everybody was there to see the spectacle. It was to take part in it, and those not able to look out for themselves were trampled upon.

Johnson and Gray Named.

Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota and Judge George Gray of Delaware were placed in nomination along with Bryan. Small as was the following of either, in comparison with that of the Nebraskan, the scenes of confusion, owing to the uncontrollable size of the crowd, were approximately great.

Gov. Johnson was placed in nomination by Winfield Scott Hammond of Minnesota, Connecticut yielding to the gopher state.

Judge Gray's name was presented by Irving F. Handy of Delaware. Mr. Handy felt how sadly he was in the minority when, after he had talked awhile, the crowd attempted to choke him off.

"You talk about fair play," cried Mr. Handy, and yet I have not talked one-third as long as did the gentleman from Nebraska. I have the best proposition to put before you to-night that you yet have listened to, if you will but permit me to continue. The country needs a heaven at present and I bring you that heaven. I bring to you a man as candidate who does not depend on grandstand plays for his popularity nor on calling people liars for his strength."

Ovation for Johnson Speaker.

It was a thing worth noticing that by far the best nominating speech of the convention was made by Mr. Hammond in presenting the name of Gov. Johnson. He had a hard task before him, because he followed not long after a characteristic Bryan demonstration, lasting more than an hour.

In spite of this fact, the Minnesota orator succeeded in interesting the convention to a surprising degree, and it was made evident that if it were not for early pledges the Minnesota governor would surely have had an immensely larger following in the convention than he was able to show at final ballot.

As the speaker rapidly sketched the early life in poverty of Gov. Johnson and passed on to his political triumphs when he was elected governor the first time in the face of 160,000 majority for Roosevelt, the thing seemed to catch the imagination of the delegates.

The galleries took up the cry, so that at the conclusion of Mr. Hammond's rather brief but forcible speech a demonstration was set on foot which by careful nursing was made to last 25 minutes, or about a third the time devoted to Mr. Bryan, whereas everyone knew that the Minnesota man would not have one-tenth as many votes as his Nebraskan rival.

Seconding Speeches.

Seconding speeches for Bryan were made by Senator Gearin of Oregon, Gov. Glenn of South Carolina, and Gov. Claude Swanson of Virginia. Gov. Glenn's speech created much excitement, being devoted largely to a defense of Bryan against attacks branding him as a Socialist. At the conclusion of his remarks, which were not in accord with the spirit of the convention, Permanent Chairman Clayton, who at the day session has superseded Temporary Chairman Bell as wielder of the gavel, exclaimed that William Jennings Bryan needed no defenders, and elicited tremendous applause.

The opening session lasted three hours and brought about the completion of the permanent organization of the convention, with the resounding address of Congressman Clayton of Alabama, permanent chairman of the convention. When the session opened at night, every formality of organization had been accomplished and the decks were clear for the supreme work of adopting the platform and naming the candidates.

Clayton Delivers His Address.

The scenes within the convention amphitheater repeated those of previous days in the magnitude of the gathering and the eager enthusiasm of the throngs. There were frequent demonstrations as the names of party idols or Jeffersonian principles were pronounced, but there was no repetition during the early session of the tumultuous record-breaking demonstration of Wednesday.

At 7:15 the galleries were completely filled, and the majority of the delegates were in their seats, but the officers of the convention were still waiting for the report of the committee on resolutions. The band in the gallery worked with great industry, and when it struck up "Dixie" the demonstration that followed gave a glimpse of the scenes certain to occur later in the night. The delegates, as the first notes of the old war song floated out, sprang up and waved their flags. It was instantly shown that the galleries, too, had been provided with them and in an instant the convention hall was a tossing sea of fluttering flags.

It was 7:50 o'clock when Chairman

Clayton began to rap for order, which he secured within the minute.

Kerr Takes Guffey's Place.

Mr. Clayton recognized Mr. McQuisten of Pennsylvania, who announced the selection of James Kerr as member of the national committee from that state in place of James M. Guffey, who was selected before the Pennsylvania contests were settled.

"Without objection the selection of Mr. Kerr will be considered as ratified," said the chairman, and a moment later added: "The chair bears none, and the selection of Mr. Kerr is ratified." Cheering and a few hisses greeted the announcement.

Ollie James of Kentucky moved that a committee of three be appointed to wait upon the platform committee and ascertain when it would be ready to report. The motion prevailed and Mr. James, J. Thomas Heflin of Alabama and F. P. Lynch of Minnesota were named. Mr. Lynch's appointment was the first recognition the adherents of Gov. Johnson had received in the choice of convention committees.

Pending the report of the committee of inquiry, Thomas P. Ball of Texas was invited to address the convention.

Mr. Ball called out cheering when he said it was a great pleasure to address such a notable "ratification convention," and declared Mr. Bryan would be nominated because the people of the states who sent their delegates to the convention wanted him nominated.

No Air in the Hall.

Before the convention was called to order the crowd had assumed propor-tionistic welcome as he appeared on the rostrum. When he declared that the convention could nominate no candidate and adopt no platform that would not receive the united and enthusiastic support of the New York democracy, he was given still greater applause and returned to his seat amid cries of "Grady." "Hurrah for Grady."

Chairman Clayton then introduced Judge L. J. Wade of Iowa, "a representative of the great corn state." Mr. Wade is the new national committeeman from Iowa.

Just as Judge Wade finished his speech a woman seated in the rear of the press seats fainted away. It was out of the question to carry her out through the jammed aisles, and it was found necessary to lift her bodily over the railing of one of the boxes, and she was only carried to the outside with the greatest difficulty.

Champ Clark Is Heard.

"I am sure the convention will be glad to concur in the request of Missouri to hear from old Champ Clark of that state, one of the knightliest Democrats who ever drew glittering blade in defense of the party." It was in these words that Chairman Clayton introduced the next speaker, whose appearance on the platform was a signal for great cheering.

Mr. Clark predicted that the Democrats would sweep the country from sea to sea, that on the fourth of March next a Democratic president would be inaugurated, backed by a Democratic house, and the people would then come into their rights.

"Democrats are getting together all over the land," he continued, "and the Republican party is presenting to the country the effect of a dissolving view. At Chicago Roosevelt forced on the convention a candidate for president that it did not want, and the convention forced on him a candidate for vice-president that he did not want."

"During the Russian-Japanese war a telegram came from the front saying: 'Kuropatkin is in statu quo.' The boys in the village did not know what that meant, so they took the message to the wise man of the town, and he did not know what it meant, but he took a chance and he said: 'Fellers, statu quo means that Kuropatkin is in a hell of a fix.' That's what's the matter with the Republican party."

Mr. Clark concluded with a tribute to Mr. Bryan as "the greatest living American."

Platform Committee Not Ready.

The galleries, with a profound ignorance of the manner in which the convention should be managed, broke in with cries of "Vote!" "Vote!"

When quiet was restored, the chair recognized Mr. James of the committee sent to ascertain the probability of an early report from the committee on resolutions. Mr. James reported that the committee would not be ready to report before midnight. He then made a motion that the rules be suspended and that the nominating speeches for presidential candidates be made, with the understanding, however, that no ballot should be taken until after the report of the committee had been received.

The motion was adopted, and the rules were declared by the chair to be suspended, and nominations to be in order.

Nominations Called For.

"The secretary will now proceed to call the roll of states for nominations for the office of president of the United States," shouted Chairman Clayton.

"Alabama," called the clerk.

The chairman of that delegation arose and was recognized.

"Knowing that Nebraska will make no mistake in nominating the right man," he said, "Alabama yields to Nebraska."

"I. J. Dunn of Omaha will speak for the Nebraska delegation," announced the chairman of that state, while the cheering which followed the first statement from Alabama continued unabated.

Dunn Nominates Bryan.

Mr. Dunn, who was to make that speech of the convention in which the greatest interest was felt by the delegates and the spectators, in a ready of middle age. His clean-cut, determined-looking, clean-shaven face is surmounted by dark brown hair, which owing to the emphatic manner in which he emphasized his speech with his head, was soon touching the center of his forehead. He spoke clearly and with a pleasing manner of delivery. As Mr. Dunn proceeded almost every allusion he made to the character of Mr. Bryan was enthusiastically applauded, although he had not yet mentioned the name of the Nebraskan candidate. When Mr. Dunn declared that his candidate was the choice of the militant Democracy of the country the convention broke in with wild cheers. The ever-ready flags were tossed aloft and a roar of applause swept through the hall.

While the cheering was at its height a white dove was let loose from the gallery and flew across the convention hall, while the delegates hailed it with great enthusiasm and cheered as long as it was in sight.

Big Demonstration Starts.

Mr. Dunn brought out the name of "William Jennings Bryan" with intense dramatic force, and the response from the great throng was electric. The delegates sprang up, the galleries followed suit, and the demonstration was under way in a manner that promised to rival Wednesday's exhibition of enthusiasm.

A few moments after the cheering began an immense oil painting of Mr. Bryan was lowered from behind a monster American shield which had reposed over the chairman's desk ever since the convention began. The appearance of the picture raised the pitch of the outburst.

ous days in the magnitude of the gathering and the eager enthusiasm of the throngs. There were frequent demonstrations as the names of party idols or Jeffersonian principles were pronounced, but there was no repetition during the early session of the tumultuous record-breaking demonstration of Wednesday.

The address of the permanent chairman, Mr. Clayton, proved to be a caustic arraignment of the failure of Roosevelt policies and an enunciation of Democratic doctrine. The ringing voice of the orator and the emphasis of his gestures stirred the listening thousands to frequent demonstrations of enthusiastic approval.

At 2:30 o'clock the platform committee was not yet prepared to report, and the convention took a recess until evening, so that all remaining differences of detail on the platform could be reconciled and the document be ready for adoption and the presidential nomination be reached before the 25-of the session could be reached. The wait for the rap of Chairman Clayton's gavel was robbed of much of its tediousness through the efforts of the quartette, whose members sang popular songs and concert numbers at frequent intervals.

Every One Has a Flag.

At 7:15 the galleries were completely filled, and the majority of the delegates were in their seats, but the officers of the convention were still waiting for the report of the committee on resolutions. The band in the gallery worked with great industry, and when it struck up "Dixie" the demonstration that followed gave a glimpse of the scenes certain to occur later in the night. The delegates, as the first notes of the old war song floated out, sprang up and waved their flags. It was instantly shown that the galleries, too, had been provided with them and in an instant the convention hall was a tossing sea of fluttering flags.

Romance and Reality.
 "Let the youngsters have their romance—'em it'll be all the better for 'em if they get a pretty good dose on it; but don't hide from 'em the fact that that's something in the shape of trouble a-waitin' for 'em up the road," said Mr. Billy Sanders. "Not big trouble, tooby shore, but jest big enough to make 'em stick closer together. It ain't no use to try to rub out the fact that life is what it is. It's full of rough places, an' that are times when you have to leave the big road an' take a short-cut through the bamboo briars for to keep from slippin' in a mudhole. The briars hurt, but the mudhole might smother you. It ain't no use to deny it, trouble is seasonal. I never know'd it to hurt anybody but the weak-minded, the willful an' them that was born to the purple."

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

Denver, Colo.—The following is a synopsis of the platform adopted by the Democratic national convention:

Preamble—We, the representatives of the Democracy of the United States in delegate convention assembled, reaffirm our faith in and pledge our loyalty to the principles of our party.

We rejoice at the increasing signs of awakening in the United States. The various investigations have traced graft and political corruption to the representatives of predatory wealth and laid bare the unscrupulous methods by which they have debauched elections and preyed upon a defenseless public through the subservient officials whom they have raised to place and power.

The conscience of the nation is now aroused and will, if honestly appealed to, free the government from the grip of those who have made it a business asset of the favor-seeking corporation. It must become again "a government of the people, by the people and for the people," and be administered in its departments according to the Jeffersonian maxim: "Equal rights to all and special privileges to none."

This is the overshadowing issue at this time; it manifests itself in all the questions now under discussion and demands immediate consideration.

Publicity for Funds—We heartily approve of the laws prohibiting the pass and the rebate and insist upon further legislation, state and national, making it unlawful for any corporation to contribute to campaign funds and providing for publication before the election of all the individual contributions above a reasonable minimum.

State's Rights—Believing with Jefferson in "the support of the state governments in all their rights as the most competent administrations for our domestic concerns and the surest bulwark against anti-republican tendencies," and in "the preservation of the general government in its whole constitutional vigor, as the sheet anchor of our peace at home and safety abroad," we are opposed to the centralization implied in the suggestions, now frequently made, that the powers of general government should be extended by judicial construction.

Senators by Direct Vote—We favor the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people and regard this reform as the gateway to all other national reforms.

Trusts and Monopolies—A private monopoly therefore favors the vigorous enforcement of the criminal law against trusts and trust magnates, and demand the enactment of such additional legislation as may be necessary to make it impossible for a private monopoly to exist in the United States. Among the additional remedies we specify three: First, a law preventing the duplication of directors among competing corporations; second, a license system which will, without abridging the right of each state to create corporations, or its right to regulate as it will foreign corporations doing business within its limits, make it necessary for a manufacturing or trading corporation engaged in interstate commerce to take out a federal license before it shall be permitted to control as much as 25 per cent. of the product in which it deals, the license to protect the public from watered stock and to prohibit the control by such corporation of more than 50 per cent. of the total of any product consumed in the United States; and third, a law compelling such licensed corporations to sell to all purchasers, in all parts of the country, on the same terms after making due allowance for cost of transportation.

Tariff Revision—We welcome the belated promise of tariff reform, now offered by a part of the Republican party, as a tardy recognition of the righteousness of the Democratic position on this question, but the people cannot safely intrust the execution of this important work to a party which is so obligated to the highly protected interests that it postpones relief until after the election. And we call attention to the significant fact that the promise now made by those Republicans who favor tariff revision is wholly vitiated by the use of the very qualifying words under which the present tariff iniquities have grown up. We favor an immediate revision of the tariff by the reduction of import duties. Articles entering into competition with articles controlled by trusts should be placed upon the free list; material reductions should be made in the tariff upon the necessities of life, and reductions should be made in such other schedules as may be necessary to restore the tariff to a revenue basis.

Income and Inheritance Tax—We favor an income tax as part of our revenue system, and we urge the submission of a constitutional amendment specifically authorizing congress to levy and collect a tax upon individual and corporate incomes, to the end that wealth may bear its proportionate share of the burdens of the federal government. We favor a national inheritance tax to reach the "swollen fortunes" already in existence, but we believe that it is better to permanently prevent "swollen fortunes" by abolishing privileges and favoritism upon which they are based.

Railroad Regulation—We assert the right of congress to exercise complete control over interstate commerce, and we assert the right of each state to exercise just as complete control over commerce within its borders. We demand such an enlargement of the powers of national and state legislatures as may be necessary to give effect to these principles.

commissions as may be necessary to give full protection to persons and places from discrimination and extortion. We believe that both the nation and the various states should, first, ascertain the present value of railroads measured by the cost of reproduction; second, prohibit the issue of any more watered stock on fictitious capitalization; third, prohibit the railroads from engaging in any business which brings them into competition with their shippers, and, fourth, reduce transportation rates until they reach a point where they will yield only a reasonable return on the present value of the roads, such reasonable return being defined as return sufficient to keep the stock of the roads at par when such roads are honestly capitalized.

Postal Savings Banks—We favor the postal savings bank, and, in addition thereto, insist upon the passage of laws, state and national, for the better regulation of banks and for the protection of bank deposits. The government demands security when it deposits public money in a bank, and we believe that the securing of the individual depositor who intrusts his earnings to a bank should be as perfect as the government security.

Currency—We believe that, in so far as the needs of commerce require an emergency currency, such currency should be issued and controlled by the federal government, and that it should be loaned upon adequate security and at a rate of interest which will compel its retirement when the emergency is past. We demand, further, that favoritism in the deposit of treasury funds shall be abolished and that surplus revenues shall be deposited at competitive rates upon sufficient security and fairly distributed throughout the country.

Labor and Arbitration—We favor the eight-hour day. We believe in the conciliation of capital and labor and favor every legitimate means for the adjustment of disputes between corporate employers and their employees to the end that justice may be done to those who toil and that society may be relieved from the embarrassment occasioned by prolonged strikes and lockouts.

Injunctions—We favor such a modification of the law relating to injunctions as will, first, prevent the issuing of the writ in industrial disputes, except after notice to defendants; second, permit trial before a judge other than the one who issued the writ, and, third, allow a jury to be summoned in all cases where the alleged contempt is committed outside the presence of the court.

Employers' Liability—We favor an employers' liability law, applicable to both private and public employers.

Immigration—We favor full protection by both national and state governments within their respective spheres of all foreigners residing in the United States under treaty, but we are opposed to the admission of Asiatic immigrants who cannot be amalgamated with our population or whose presence among us would raise a race issue and involve us in diplomatic controversies with oriental powers, and we demand a stricter enforcement of the immigration laws against any immigrant who advocates assassination as a means of reforming our government.

Irrigation and Forests—We sympathize with the efforts put forth for the reclamation of the arid lands of the west and urge the largest possible use of irrigation in the development of the country. We also favor the reclamation of swamp lands upon the same principle. We favor the preservation of the forests still remaining and the re-planting of the denuded districts in all our mountain ranges, as well as the reforestation of the western plains.

Canal and Water Ways—We believe that the Panama canal will prove of great value to our country and favor its speedy completion. We urge liberal appropriations for the improvement and development of interior water ways, believing that such expenditures will return a large dividend in lessened cost of transportation.

Pensions—We favor a generous pension policy, both as a matter of justice to the surviving veterans and their dependents and because it relieves the country of the necessity of maintaining a large standing army.

Philippines—We condemn the experiment in imperialism as an inexcusable blunder which has involved us in an enormous expense, brought us weakness instead of strength and laid our nation open to the charge of abandoning the fundamental doctrine of self-government. We favor an immediate declaration of the nation's purpose to recognize the independence of the Philippines as soon as a stable government can be established, such independence to be guaranteed by us as we guarantee the independence of Cuba until the neutralization of the islands can be secured by treaty with other powers. In recognizing the independence of the Philippines our government could retain such land as may be necessary for coaling stations and naval bases.

Foreign Policy—Desiring the prevention of war, wherever possible, we believe that our nation should announce its determination not to use our navy for the collection of private debts and its willingness to enter into agreements with other nations providing for the investigation by an impartial international tribunal, before any declaration of war or commencement of hostilities, of every dispute which affects the peace of the world.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. C. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

Dr. Norman M. Geer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "During the last twelve years I have frequently recommended your Castoria as one of the best preparations of the kind, being safe in the hands of parents and very effective in relieving children's disorders, while the ease with which such a pleasant preparation can be administered is a great advantage."

DOCTOR SAID "USE CUTICURA"
 In Bad Case of Eczema on Child—Disease Had Reached a Fearful State—His Order Resulted in Complete Cure.

"When I was small I was troubled with eczema for about three months. It was all over my face and covered nearly all of my head. It reached such a state that it was just a large red all over, and the pain and itching were terrible. I doctored with an able physician for some time and was then advised by him to use the Cuticura Remedies which I did and I was entirely cured. I have not been bothered with it since. I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment but do not know exactly how much was used to complete the cure. I can safely say that Cuticura did a lot for me. Miss Anabel Wilson, North Branch, Mich., Oct. 29, 1907."

MOTOR VEHICLES

A MOTOR VEHICLE is to-day practically a necessity, and one of the greatest of conveniences. The W. H. Kiblinger Co., Auburn, Indiana, have produced motor vehicles that will stand the wear and tear of country roads, are high enough to ride over ruts, etc., where necessary, light and graceful in design, simple in construction and at the same time strong enough to last for years with ordinary care. They are also cheap enough to bring them within the reach of anyone of ordinary means.

The Kiblinger Motor Vehicles will go anywhere at any time. They never get tired, never get sick. Will run 30 miles on a gallon of Gasoline. Speed, 4 to 30 miles an hour. Air cooled, good the year 'round with no danger from punctured tires, or from freezing of water in the cylinders. Let us send you our complete catalogue, showing pictures of the different styles we make, with complete descriptions of each and prices. Fully guaranteed. Ask for catalogue Number 41.

Little Items of Local Happenings of Interest to People in Town and Country

—Preaching at the M. E. church Sunday morning.

—The Ladies' Christian union meets Thursday with Mrs. Elick.

—All Saint's guild will meet with Mrs. Captain Wilson next Tuesday, July 21.

—Wm. R. Ormsby of Lafayette recently sold the 237-acre farm, better known as the Pero farm, near Burr Oak, to a Lafayette buyer for $80 an acre.

—Capt. Bays' 3 year-old son fell on an old tin can while at play, cutting a gash on the wrist which Dr. Parker was obliged to close with stitches.

—Milo Prior has opened a soft drink emporium in Monterey where it is said the thirsty ones can get "hop cream" to their heart's content.—Monterey Sun.

—Misses Clara and Susie Shilling entertained on Saturday evening in honor of Gratia Bolen of Morenci, Mich., and Dora Maxwell of New York City.

—Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the state board of health, came to Culver yesterday at the request of the local health officer, W. S. East-erday, to inspect the town and to confer with the local board regard- ing certain conditions.

Base Ball.

In one of the best games of ball seen here this season the locals de- feated the South Bend Spiros Sun- day by the score of 5 to 4.

The wonderful improvement shown in the all-around playing—the batting and base running—brands our team as one of the best in Northern Indiana, for the Spiros justly lay claim to the champion- ship of the northern all of the state, have should feel proud of and Cub which the management has gotten together, and should show their appreciation by a little more liberal patronage. If we are to continue to have base ball here it will be necessary for more inter- est to be displayed by the business men of the town at least, there be- ing only 4 business places repre- sented Sunday, and only about 55 out for the game. The expense was about $30 for the game. Af- ter next Sunday if the attendance is not much better, we will have no more games here this season.

Sunday's game in detail:

Sunday we will have the South Bend Livingstons who claim the championship over the Spiros, and another fast game is assured.

The Pleasure is All Ours.

The Athletics are loud in praise of the treatment they received at Culver, and also for the favors shown by Mr. Osborn, who by the way is the prince of landlords and conducts a most excellent hotel.—Bremen Enquirer.

And Culver can sincerely return the compliment for the Bremen boys and their friends are a nice bunch and will always be sure of a glad hand here.

Lives in Jeopardy.

Two horses, attached to single buggies, urged on by the drivers' whips, and race the length of Scott street, a crash at the depot and five persons thrown into the roadway were the features of a sen- sational episode Tuesday night at 9:30 o'clock.

The racing drivers were Howard Mikesell and a man named Hoyt who lives on the Mrs. Lord farm. Each was accompanied by a young lady.

A witness who saw the start at the head of Scott street says that both drivers lashed their horses in- to a run, and the animals raced down the grade at such furious speed that the noise, accentuated by a Comanche yell from one of the drivers, sent people rushing to their doors. At the depot, just around the curve in the road, the Mikesell buggy struck another buggy going in an opposite direc- tion. It was occupied by Alva Pi- per, his wife and three months-old babe, and Miss Garver. The occu- pants of both buggies were pitched into the street, but escaped with bruises.

Both buggies were damaged. The Hoyt buggy passed on up Bunker Hill, returning some time afterward and passing through the crowd without stopping.

Mr. Piper and his family were able to depart for home at 11:30.

There was but one sentiment ex- pressed by the crowd of over 100 persons who either witnessed the performance or gathered immedi- ately after, and that was hot indig- nation at the recklessness which takes no account of the public safety.

A Loved One Gone Home.

On last Friday morning while on her way to the home of her nephew, Mrs. Susanna Tilley fell at the gate of her own property in Culver, a victim of paralysis, which proved fatal on Saturday at 9 a. m. The funeral was held at the Re- formed church, the services being conducted by her pastor, Rev. A. J. Michael. Tilley, nee Hawk, was born near West Lodi in Seneca county, Ohio, August 1, 1840, and departed this life on July 11, 1908, aged 68 years, 11 months, 10 days. She was united in marriage on May 15, 1859, to Ezra Purchis Til- ley who died in September, 1897. She was one of a family of nine children, four of whom have pre- ceeded her to the spirit world—one a twin sister who was also stricken with paralysis which resulted in her death on Jan. 30, 1905. The surviving members of the family are three brothers—David of Cul- ver with whom she has made her home since 1903, Lewis of Repub- lic, Ohio, Franklin of Argos, Ind., and one sister, Sarah Hartman, living near Culver. Besides these she leaves many loving friends and relatives who will greatly miss her beautiful life of helpfulness and good cheer. She gave her heart to God in young womanhood and lived a consistent christian life until God called her home.

Card of Thanks.

Diarrhoea, Colic and Cholera Morbus

Are diseases that require prompt attention.

In almost every neighborhood some one has died from these dis- eases before medicine could be pro- cured or a physician summoned.

Those who rely upon physicians often find that they are away from home when most needed.

Every family, and especially those who reside on farms and ranches, miles from any drug store or physi- cian should keep at hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

No physician can prescribe a bet- ter medicine for the purposes for which it is intended.

The remarkable cures effected by this remedy, in all parts of the country, have made it the acknowl- edged standard.

It can always be depended upon to effect a quick cure, and when reduced with water is pleasant to take. It is equally valuable for children and adults.
