Fred Adams attended a meeting in Indianapolis last month. The American Fletcher Bank hosted the seminar which was entitled, "Capital Adequacy for Indiana Banks." The impact felt by those attending the meeting was that governmental agencies in Washington are trying persistently to further regulate the banking system. Governmental control of all banks would be but another step in dependency on the government. Mr. Adams was quoted as saying, "When our government steps in and tells us how to lend money, when to lend money and to whom we must and can lend money, which some new legislation proposes, we all can be assured that the individual is not going to get the considerations he gets now from our Banks. Our Banks' policy has been for over 75 years that customers needs are our first consideration whether those needs come in the form of a loan, a deposit, or a need for guidance in a savings plan. If the government takes over the 'how, when, and whom' of banking, the banking business will not be an independent business but will be a governmentally controlled business." Mr. Adams intends to write to our congressmen regarding bank regulatory legislation.

The "Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act of 1974," a new law which becomes effective June 20, and which regulations our Bank received only June 14, is an example of governmental intervention into customer and bank relations. This act was passed without many bank participants being aware that it was up for passage. The regulations of the bill will be circulated in all the Banks.

A Psychology professor conducted an experiment to prove a point about work. He hired a man to hit a log with the reverse side of an ax. The man was told that he would be paid twice the amount he normally made. The fellow lasted half a day. He gave it up, explaining, "I have to see the chips fly."

PEN**CHEX PROFILE

Have you noticed the advertising our Banks do in the papers, on the radio, in brochures for special occasions? Bob Rust, Culver, is our advertising man. Bob has retired from his superintendency of Culver Schools and has been helping our bank with advertisements and announcements. Bob was not only a school man before his retirement, but also was the publisher of the Culver paper for several years. His journalistic career includes work for his newspaper, work for the Culver Military Academy, and lately, plus our advertising, he has completed a fine historical brochure for his church; The Grace United Church of Christ. The many hours this man puts into the monthly ad planning for our Banks is not known but the many fine praises that have been heard about the Banks' advertising are known and all accolades go to Bob Rust; a hard working, loyal friend of our Banks and their staff members. Thank you, Bob, for a job well done!
